

SUCH A PRIM LITTLE MISS

By Betty Brown

If her hat is fussy and feathery and flowery and all trimmed up, then Our Little Girl is not correctly "hatted." But if her hat is prim and trim and plain as Little Brother's then she may consider herself a most fashionable little person.

The very fashionable little person

I am introducing to you in this picture, which is published by courtesy of the Marshall Field publication, Fashions of the Hour, is wearing the correctest of little girl sailors. It's fine Milan straw of white edged black and a black velvet band finished with a bow. In navy blue, black and brown the same style is effective.

TODAY IN ILLINOIS HISTORY

June 27, 1809.—Nicholas Jarrot of Cahokia, a French patriot loyal to America, complained that the British agents and traders at Prairie du Chien were arming the Indians and rousing them to violence against the people of the border country.

Scientists estimate that 15 per cent of the earth's crust is aluminum.
