

ONE CENT -- LAST EDITION -- ONE CENT

ONE DEAD--FIREMEN PERILED--FIRE
SWEEPS SOUTH SIDE LUMBER YARDS

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Newspaper, Daily Except Sunday

VOL. 5, NO. 259

Chicago, Monday, July 31, 1916

398

SUIT ON HERALD ECHO OF FAMOUS "SOUP POISON" CASES

Marciel Pfister, Former Chef of Woodruff Inn at Joliet, Sues Paper for $50,000—Claims Story About Him
Hindered His Getting Job.

The day after a couple hundred of the city's biggest business experts were poisoned at the University club Mundelein banquet every paper in town exposed the filth of the club kitchens.

But a few days later when the club blamed a chef for the soup episode and issued a statement that the guests had been poisoned, the trust press grabbed quickly at this theory and laid the blame on the "anarchists" of the city.

Eager to whitewash the dirty kitchens of a club which is kept up by some of our best-known business men, and glad to rap the anarchists, the papers played the "plotter" theory to a finish.

The Chicago Herald appeared especially wild along this line. To cap a long series of anarchist stores, the