

THE NEWEST IN COATS

With so many of our winter garments trimmed and overtrimmed, the sight of a simple thing like the model here gladdens the eye and satisfies the soul of the person who places taste above style.

Velour of warm reddish purple is the fabric used and the fur trimming so simply applied is brown-toned kolinsky. The cloth-covered buttons match the coat. The belt is faced with purple satin.

The Tam O'Shanter with its peaked front brim is a novel thing made of dark purple velvet. The peak or visor is seen on many of the exclusive millinery models for midwinter.
