RESURRECTION OF THE BODY.

Themes Preached Upon at the Tabernacle Yesterday Afternoon.

CHRIST IS THE TRUE TYPE.

Discourses by Elders Clawson and Penrose—All Flocks Will be Raised from the Grave.

The services in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon were presided over by President Joseph E. Taylor.

Prayer was offered by Elder J. H. Paul. Singing:

"Let the mountains shout for joy." Apostle Rudger Clawson was the first to address the congregation.

There is one great advantage enjoyed by the Latter-day Saints and that is, that after having received the Holy Ghost by baptism and the laying on of hands, they have a right to understand by that spirit the things of God.

Elder Clawson read from the 46th chapter of the book of Alma in the Book of Mormon, in which that Prophet speaks of the resurrection and restoration.

The passing away of the year 1899 and the approach of 1900 is similar to the resurrection, and as we stand upon the brink of the new year, we are unable to recall the moments that are past and gone, we cannot change the record, we may repent of our sins of commission and also of omission, and we may regret to see the closing of the old year, but we cannot change the history of the past year, and so it will be in the morning of the first resurrection, we will come up and be judged according to the deeds done in the body, and we will not be able to call back one moment nor change the conditions in the least.

We should take advantage of the present time, as it presents itself. The great responsibility of this Church does not rest upon the shoulders of one individual, it would be impossible for the President of the Church to carry the great load by himself, but the responsibility is placed upon every member of the Priesthood down to the Deacon, and all these organizations and authorities are needed.

The Lord has been very kind to permit His people to assist in the bringing of His kingdom here, and in this Church will magnify His calling and Priesthood he will in a measure enjoy the Spirit of God, and if he continues faithful he will be promoted to higher positions in the Priesthood, so there is an opportunity for all to advance.

The young men who often stand in their own light, they become negligent in their duties, and the first thing they do is to blame the Bishop for their lack of advancement.

Nine cases out of ten where there is no advancement, the fault is in the individual. The speaker related the experience of a young man who had been field worker and missionary in the field, and when he returned those who had known him prior to his departure, were amazed at the wonderful change that had come over the young man, and they were rejoiced at listening to him testify that he knew that this was the work of God and that Joseph Smith was a Prophet.

And the young man was subsequently called to be a Bishop, because of his faith.

Our success or our failure depends upon our own efforts with the help of God. I rejoice in the principles of the resurrection; we cannot explain, we cannot understand it, but we know that Christ is the true type.

His body and took it up again, and we know that we will receive our bodies again, and that not a hair of our heads will be lost.

ELDER C. W. PENROSE was then called upon to address the congregation. He said the doctrines set forth in the passages read by Elder Clawson were very interesting and very important for all have to lay out their bodies down in a place prepared for the body and the spirit are reunited, and as has been read to us, nothing shall be lost; every limb and joint every muscle and fibre, every part joined on to the other part and all brought up in perfection. And in that condition will man stand up to be judged for the deeds done in the body. This doctrine, he said, was not only in the Book of Mormon, but in the Old and New Testaments, it is the doctrine of Christ, which He taught in person.

This is an important thing for us to understand, so that we may take such course that we may not be afraid of death, nor to stand before the judgment seat of God to give an account of our earthly acts. Our bodies are composed of the same elements that compose the earth and its atmosphere. Chemistry and surgery may show what these elements are and how each part is related to other parts. But no man understands the vital force—the spirit that gives life. One day a man stands full of vitality, every part of his body clinging together; tomorrow the body has a tendency to dissolution, every particle seeking to get away from the others, and the body has to be placed with matter, because of the corruption that ensues.

We can by reason conclude, apart from revelation, that there is a spirit in man, because as man advances from childhood to maturity and grows older and his body becomes weaker and more feeble, he retains his identity and is the same person through all changes and often grows in knowledge and intelligence, while the body is losing powers. The speaker quoted from Ecclesiastes xiii, in which the process of death is set forth and it is declared, "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return to God who gave it."

We are taught by modern revelation that we are the sons and daughters of God in very deed. The spirits of men and women are the offspring of God, Jesus was the first born. He was the first begotten in the flesh, but was the only begotten in the spirit and was indeed our Elder Brother. Christ taught this. In directing His Apostles how to pray He told them to say, "Our Father which art in heaven." He declared he would ascend to His Father and their Father to His God and their God.

When we leave these earthly bodies we will dwell with our own kind in the spirit world. As there are chemical properties that have a natural affinity for each other, so it is with intelligences in the natural and the spiritual life. If we have been pure and righteous here, we will mingle with the pure and the righteous in the next world; but if we have been corrupt and unrighteous here, we will associate with the corrupt and the evil there.

In the life and death and resurrection of Jesus Christ we have a type of our own life, death and resurrection. The speaker quoted liberally from the Scriptures, it was spoken of and clearly shown that the body will be reunited with the spirit. Christ had risen from the grave with His body, and appeared to His Apostles who, thinking Him to be a spirit, were frightened, but He said, "Why are ye troubled? Handle me and see a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have."

The speaker dwelt upon the realities of the life beyond the grave and the certainty and necessity of the resurrection of the body and also of the inevitable rendering of accounts, for the manner in which an intelligent and free-willed being, with a will of his own, we had spent the time while in mortality. "It is appointed unto man once to die and after that the judgment." The intermediate state between death and the resurrection was also explained, and the work done by Christ in that condition was referred to.

Just coming upon the new year, the speaker said, let us resolve to live before God, and before all men and in secret. Right conduct has its effects on the body. It can be sanctified or corrupted on natural principles. And this will be manifested not only now but in the resurrection.

We will come forth with bodies adapted to our spirit and according to the laws we have obeyed. If we have lived by celestial laws, we will have a celestial body; if we have lived by the terrestrial law we will have a terrestrial body; and if we observe only the telestial law we will have a telestial body. There is the glory of the sun, the glory of the moon and the glory of another star in glory in the firmament, so also is the resurrection of the dead. The Lord will find a place for each creature, and all will be rewarded according to their several deeds and capacities.

Elder Penrose closed with an earnest testimony of the Gospel, as revealed to Joseph Smith and expressed in the hope that it would come forth in the resurrection of the just and dwell with God and Christ, and the holy angels, and with the just and good of all ages and races for ever and ever.

The choir sang the anthem: "When Thou Comest to Thy Judgment." Benediction by Apostle Heber J. Grant.

THE REV. HENRY IS COMMENDED.

His Rebuke of Evangelist Oliver Finds General Endorsement.

HAS A FOUL VOCABULARY.

See Language that is Fit Only for the Prize Ring and Police Court—Rev. Henry's Remarks.

The Rev. Mr. Henry struck a popular chord in his sermon at the First M. E. church yesterday morning, when he administered a stinging rebuke to Evangelist Oliver who has been holding a series of revival meetings at the First M. E. church during the past two or three weeks. It was with evident reluctance that Mr. Henry delivered this portion of his address. But he felt in honor bound to do so and did it in a straightforward manly way that found an echo in many minds.

The rebuke was occasioned by the constant employment of objectionable language on the part of Mr. Oliver. During his brief stay in this city he has made wholesale charges of the alleged existence of evils of the grossest character. He has referred to the City Council and other municipal officers as "rotten" and "corrupt." Women have been characterized as "heifers." Men have been designated as "dogs" and "puppies," while numerous other vile epithets have been hurled broadcast at the unfortunate object of his attack. He has expressed fear of mistreatment at the hands of some of these, but has gone on to state that he will defend his freedom in the use of free arms and declared his willingness to use them. But Mr. Oliver is not and has not been in any danger in this city and will not be given an opportunity to mistreat him as he will be left strictly alone. In commenting upon the evangelist yesterday, Mr. Henry said:

"A fevered imagination inflamed by thoughts of evil will surely lead the soul in a downward vice. The fountain of light poisoned by impure suggestions is certain to overflow in corruption through all life. The man who projects into the minds of others impure or irreverent ideas, or who uses foul vocabulary in an assassin of character, whether he poses as a minstrel or an evangelist.

"At the beginning of the evangelistic meetings held in this city, I urged our people to attend as much as possible, and to co-operate in every way. Since then I have sometimes been tempted to regret the advice given. Every right-thinking man must certainly condemn the use of words and epithets in the pulpit that would never be tolerated if spoken in a respectable home, or by a teacher of youth in the public schools.

"No man qualified to make a successful defense of purity whose own tongue is foul, nor to defend the honor of the church which is the bride of Christ by the use of ill-tempered, nor men to Christ by offering gratuitous insult; nor to succeed in ruling in a city who cannot control his own spirit from launching into personal abuse because he himself is criticized.

"Having said this much, I will add that the use of language, fit only for the prize ring or the police court may be simply a matter of judgment, poor judgment, and although we condemn impure and irreverent language in the pulpit, we heartily endorse the condemnation of saloons, gambling, prostitution, Sabbath breaking and the worldliness that is honey-combing the church and robbing it of its power with God and man; wherever those things flourish, we believe that there is need for humiliation on the part of the church that these things are permitted to be, and would be glad to be able to join forces with all who engage in an earnest crusade against these evils."

USHERING IN 1900. Populace Roused by Ringing of Bells and Blowing of Whistles.

Those who did not remain up last night to see the old year out, were startled out of their sleep by the clanging of bells and the shrieking of whistles, which combination of din made more noise than has been heard in this city for some time.

At first one might have thought the Filipino army had taken possession of the city, or that the Boers were invading the metropolis, but the cause was a much simpler one. The new year was ushering in their settled back on their pillows, making no effort to arrest the noise.

LOW TEMPERATURE YEAR. 1899 Was One of the Coldest in the History of Utah.

Some will, no doubt, be astonished to learn that, according to the records of the weather bureau, the year 1899 was generally colder by 173 degrees than the average year in Salt Lake. The figures made here by Mr. Murdoch indicate that the people are indebted to December for most of the total deficiency in temperature, that month registering 114 degrees.

In December, the deficiency in precipitation was in proportion to that in temperature. As compared with other years, it lacked an inch and three-tenths. Yet the year 1899 showed an increase over the normal precipitation by 1.33 inches.

The highest point reached by the mercury on the last day of the year was 30 degrees. The lowest was 17, making the average temperature 24 degrees. Yesterday's temperature was only one degree below the normal.

DEATH OF MISS ANNIE COPE. Was a Valued Member of the Herald Local Staff.

After a long, brave battle with disease, Miss Annie J. Cope passed away early yesterday morning. For nearly a year she had been a member of the Herald staff, and her work stamped her as one of the most talented newspaper women of the city.

She was born at St. Paul, Minn., thirty years ago and made a considerable reputation as a writer in that city, before coming to Salt Lake, the trip being primarily for the benefit of her health. Soon after coming here, she lacked an inch and three-tenths of her recovery then entertained were never realized, and she was as the ravages of the disease advanced, so did her wonderful courage develop, and without a murmur or complaint, she went calmly

CONDEMNATION SUIT.

Railroad Company Wants Jennings Property for Depot Site.

SLANDER SUIT DISMISSED.

Miss Jansen May File Another Against Dr. R. Huey.

The Salt Lake and Ogden Railway Company has instituted proceedings against Thomas Jennings in the Third district court for the purpose of having condemned a portion of lot 3, block 84, plat A, same being situated between Second and Third West streets, facing South Temple street. The railroad people are desirous of getting the property for depot and other purposes. In its complaint plaintiff alleges the value of the premises to be about $1,500.

The $1,500 damage suit brought by Miss Selma Johnson against Daniel R. Huey, for alleged slander, has been dismissed, for the reason that a copy of the complaint was not served upon the defendant within the time specified after the service of the summons. Miss Jansen's attorney now threatens to commence a new action. The original proceedings grew out of a remark made by Mr. Huey wherein he is alleged to have intimated that Miss Jansen was guilty of stealing a lady's waist from Cohn's dry goods store, where she was at the time employed. Huey was served with a copy of the summons just as he was about to board a train with his newly wedded wife.

THE DEAD YEAR. Kind of hate to see you go, Sort of used to you, you know, '99. Somehow have a feeling queer, That you are not just a year, But a being, near and dear, '99.

'Tis with something like dismay, That I see you fade away, '99. Not exactly for your sake, But the thought of what you take, Leaves behind a nameless ache, '99.

You contain a new-made grave, '99; But a recompense you gave, '99. There's a life in one in place, Of the old, your vacant face, To fill up life's vacant space, '99.

There was shadow, there was sun, '99. In the checked race we run, '99. In the seasons we have spent, There were good and evil bent. Small results, where much was meant, '99.

Little riches, little fame, '99. To me from your bounty came, '99. But in gifts perhaps the best, I and mine were doubly blest—Love made up for all the rest, '99.

Even though misunderstood, '99. And all our dreams have been of good, '99. From seeds that we have sown, Though in soil to us unknown, Yet may be a harvest grown, '99.

We have traveled on together, '99. Both in cheer and pleasant weather, '99. Whatever there may be, In the path of destiny, You will ever shine to me, '99.

A green spot in Memory, '99. It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every State in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M. V. Fisher of Liberty, W. Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for several years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times."
