THE BIG CAPE NOME RUSH.

The Government Is Preparing For the Gold Hunters.

DEPARTMENTS INTERESTED. Bureaus Being Organized to Govern the Territory—First Expedition to Go on the Bear.

Washington, May 6.—(Special Correspondence.)—While the Carter bill for the government of Alaska is still in the stages of congressional evolution, the executive departments of the government are making preparations for the great rush of fortune seekers who will go to the territory this year. Six departments deal with the territory—the treasury, interior, war, justice, post-office and agriculture. All have made arrangements through interested government officers who are organizing the bureau which will operate during the summer for the government of the Territory and the protection of the people who will dole there.

UNDER THE TREASURY. The treasury department has sent an officer to Cape Nome on the Bear, that the secretary of the interior, in carrying out the duties which the conditions impose, The Alaskan bill will not necessarily make any difference in what is being done by the federal government officers who are organizing the bureau which will operate during the summer for the government of the Territory and the protection of the people who will dole there.

QWITTING SPRING SHOES

What, with newspaper sounding the praises, and customers telling their friends of the many good points in these spring shoes we build for men and boys, we're doing the swiftest kind of a shoe business these days.

There's only one reason for it the shoes must be good. For men, $1.50 up; for boys, $1.25 up; for women and girls, too.

current is varied by the speech vibrations in the telephone. The magnetization is long retained, giving a reproduction of the vibrations and speech when the magnet is again passed through a similar electromagnet.

Actinium is the name given a new radio-active element of the iron group discovered by P. Le Marq to occupy the place of the element, actinium, which was discovered by the late Marie Curie.

The earliest meteorological record now known was made by Rev. William Merle for the seven years 1337-1344, and is preserved in the Bodleian library at Oxford.

About a minute before and just after totally in a solar eclipse, alternate bright and dark bands—sometimes called shadow bands and sometimes iridescence bands—are seen sweeping across the country. The dark bands are but a few inches wide, moving not more than ten to twenty feet per second.

The sand dunes of the Gascony coast are stated by R. Le Marq to occupy a belt four or five miles wide to a height of 125 feet and in some cases reach 300 feet. The shifting sand has been taken to the shore of the Bay of Vegetation, this has been blown about by every wind, and has buried forests and villages, and has caused disastrous inundations by blocking the mouths of the streams. The evil has now been remedied by long extension and nearly a century of systematic work. A gently-sloping, half artificial dyke runs along the beach, next to which is a strip of a quarter of a mile or more wide which has been covered with stunted firs and bushes, and behind this is a great artificial wall of stone and concrete, effectively checking the sand invasion.

From numerous pyrometric measurements, M. White and P. W. Taylor have prepared the following color scale, more accurately corresponding to the temperatures in Fahrenheit degrees: of heated steel under average work—dark cherry red, 1,200 degrees; bright cherry red, 1,375 degrees; red, 900 degrees; dark red, blood red, 1,000 degrees; dark cherry red, 1,175 degrees; medium cherry red, 1,250 degrees; bright cherry red, 1,325 degrees; light cherry, scaling heat, light red, 1,500 degrees; salmon orange, fire scaling heat, 1,600 degrees; light salmon, 1,700 degrees; yellow, 1,750 degrees; light yellow, 1,975 degrees; white, 2,300 degrees.

Guamua, a proposed new paper material is very abundant in Brazil. The fiber is long and very strong, resists the action of water, and is much more easily prepared than that of jute.

The aging of timber, which formerly required long storage, is now completed by electricity in a few hours. In the Nodon-Bron process, a timber is placed in a pile on a lead frame in a large wooden vat, is nearly immersed in a chemical preparation, and is covered with a layer of insulating material, and porous bottoms of felt and linen. The positive pole of a dynamo is connected to the lead frame and the negative to the water vessels. On the passage of the current, the sap is driven to one side of the wood and expelled, and the chemical fluid enters the wood, taking its place. After drying the wood is ready for use.

Winking is a common phenomenon whose purpose is not yet clear. It varies greatly in frequency at different times, and one theory is that it serves to give the eye momentary rest, becoming more frequent as the eye grows tired, while another view is that it serves to moisten the eye-ball. Its duration, which is the slight to interfere with distinct vision, has been a subject of investigation by H. R. Garner. By a photographic method he has shown that the entire wink lasts about four-tenths of a second, the downward movement taking only about seven-tenths of a second, while the upward movement of the lid averages seven-tenths, and the eye is shut about fifteen-hundredths of a second.

The little insects known as "glacier fleas" have been found to be the cause of the color of a recent singular fall of "black snow" at Mollath, Austria. It is supposed that these insects were carried from the Alpine glaciers by a violent snowstorm.

Red pigeons, blue pigeons and rainbow hued canaries are among the freaks Dr. Sauermann, an Austrian experimenter, has been able to produce. The birds are colored by introducing aniline dyes into their food.

Geese are driven long distances to market at Warsaw, Poland, and their feet are protected for the trip by being walked alternately through tar and sand several times.
