

FIFTY-FIRST YEAR.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM OF REPUBLICANS

National Convention at Philadelphia—Says Republican Victory in November—Events at the Quaker City Assemblage.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 19.—At 12:30 p.m. today the Republican national convention of 1900 was called to order by Senator Hanna and thus the racking excitement of conference and caucus of crashing hands and confusion of hotel corridors gives way to the staidness and form of actual convention proceedings.

The day opened auspiciously for the event. The sky was slightly overcast but there was none of the sweltering of former national gatherings. The air was cool, the temperature below 70, and the indications were for good weather throughout the meeting.

THE PLACE ASSIGNED TO UTAH.

Delegation—Attitude of Silver Republicans—Wolcott's Great Speech—Vice Presidency in Doubt.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 19.—During the reference in Senator Wolcott's great speech as temporary chairman, to the manner in which action by Congress on the currency question had cemented the Republicans of the East and West, the entire delegation from Utah arose and cheered vociferously.

UTAH DELEGATION'S DEADLOCK.

No Probability of Change—Gov. Wells' Statement—All Good Feeling—Lots of Visitors—Mrs. Jones the Observed of Observers—At the Philadelphia Convention.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 19.—The Utah headquarters at the Continental are beautifully and tastefully decorated and thronged every day by hundreds of visitors, many of whom simply come to pay their respects, but the majority to confer with the Utah delegates about the business of the convention.
