

FIFTY-FIRST YEAR EXCLUDED PUPILS RETURN TO SCHOOL None Denied Admission by Principals or Teachers—The Board of Education Assumes All Responsibility.

The public schools were opened this morning to all children and as a result the place of nearly every seat was vacant there was a radiant smile on the face of each child...

SCHOOL BOARD NOTIFIED. Will Hold It and Principals Responsible for Admission of Pupils.

Clerk Moreton of the school board this morning received the following positive order and instructions from Health Commissioner King, on behalf of the board of health...

MAYOR THOMPSON'S STAND. Attitude on the Vaccination Question—Thinks Law a Good One.

Mayor Thompson's attitude in the vaccination question is that he will stand firm in the enforcement of the board of health's mandate...

SUPT. COOPER'S POSITION. Holds It the Duty of Principals to Obey School Board.

Superintendent Cooper visited a number of the schools this morning and noted a big increase in the attendance...

THE COUNTY SCHOOLS. Superintendent Ashton Mails a Letter to the Trustees.

In pursuance to the action of the county board of health, as given in Saturday's "News," which threw the county schools open to all healthy children...

COUNTY LEADS OUT. Attorney Christensen Decides to Take the Initiative in Paul's Case.

Action against Prof. Joshua H. Paul would have been commenced on Saturday last, but for the fact that as there is a city ordinance concerning the question as to whether or not the State law there was a question in the attorney's mind...

ARRESTED TWO OF SNAKE'S BAND

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 28.—A special to the Star, from Muskogee, I. T., says: Marshal Bennett, who left here yesterday, has arrested two light horsemen of Snake's band...

OPPOSE COMPULSION. State Superintendent Nelson Hears from Nearly All Counties.

State Superintendent of Schools A. C. Nelson, sent the following communication to the various county school superintendents...

LIVING ON THE SEAMY SIDE OF LIFE

Young Woman "Forsakes" a Business Man, Enters a House of Shame, and Tells the Story of Her Downfall to the Police.

The wine room, private dining apartment and late supper elite, in places of questionable resort form a combination that has been giving the police considerable trouble of late...

LAWMAKERS AT WORK. Take Up Legislative Duties After a Two Days' Rest.

The State Senate resumed work shortly before three o'clock this afternoon and the House some time after...

HIS WIFE WOULD NOT COME HOME

The county commissioners held their regular session this morning and transacted the following business: Mr. Frederick Hanson of Hunter...

PARSONS DIVORCE.

The Parsons divorce case, an account of the trial of which was given in Saturday's "News," was finished late in the afternoon of that day...

PROMISSORY NOTE SUIT.

About 5 o'clock p. m. Saturday, Clark-Eldredge & Co., filed a suit in the district court against Geo. Lingren to recover $2,059.86 alleged to be due on a promissory note.

A FRIENDLY ACTION.

A friendly action was commenced in the district court Saturday afternoon by the Utah Light and Power company, against the Union Light and Power company and the Salt Lake and Ogden Gas and Electric Light company...

PRIESTHOOD MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Priesthood of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will convene in the assembly hall, Salt Lake City, on Friday, February 1st, 1901, at 7 p. m.

BISHOP LEONARD PREACHES.

(SPECIAL TO THE "NEWS")—Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Harry L. Cannon has been appointed postmaster at Driggs, Fremont county, Idaho...

ARRESTED TWO OF SNAKE'S BAND

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 28.—A special to the Star, from Muskogee, I. T., says: Marshal Bennett, who left here yesterday, has arrested two light horsemen of Snake's band...

OPPOSE COMPULSION. State Superintendent Nelson Hears from Nearly All Counties.

State Superintendent of Schools A. C. Nelson, sent the following communication to the various county school superintendents...

LIVING ON THE SEAMY SIDE OF LIFE

Young Woman "Forsakes" a Business Man, Enters a House of Shame, and Tells the Story of Her Downfall to the Police.

The wine room, private dining apartment and late supper elite, in places of questionable resort form a combination that has been giving the police considerable trouble of late...

LAWMAKERS AT WORK. Take Up Legislative Duties After a Two Days' Rest.

The State Senate resumed work shortly before three o'clock this afternoon and the House some time after...

HIS WIFE WOULD NOT COME HOME

The county commissioners held their regular session this morning and transacted the following business: Mr. Frederick Hanson of Hunter...

PARSONS DIVORCE.

The Parsons divorce case, an account of the trial of which was given in Saturday's "News," was finished late in the afternoon of that day...

PROMISSORY NOTE SUIT.

About 5 o'clock p. m. Saturday, Clark-Eldredge & Co., filed a suit in the district court against Geo. Lingren to recover $2,059.86 alleged to be due on a promissory note.

A FRIENDLY ACTION.

A friendly action was commenced in the district court Saturday afternoon by the Utah Light and Power company, against the Union Light and Power company and the Salt Lake and Ogden Gas and Electric Light company...

PRIESTHOOD MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Priesthood of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will convene in the assembly hall, Salt Lake City, on Friday, February 1st, 1901, at 7 p. m.

BISHOP LEONARD PREACHES.

(SPECIAL TO THE "NEWS")—Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Harry L. Cannon has been appointed postmaster at Driggs, Fremont county, Idaho...

FILIPINIO FEDERAL PARTY PETITION

Sent to Congress—Irreconcilable Insurrectionists Accepting American Sovereignty—Want Civil Government.

Washington, Jan. 28.—When the Senate convened today the presiding officer, Mr. Frye, called attention to the following cablegram, which was read: "Manila, Jan. 28.—To President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington: 'Accession to Federal party by thousands in all parts of archipelago. Attitude of hitherto irreconcilable press and the general public opinion show that labors of party to bring peace will soon be crowned with success. Until now political parties have attempted formation of plans more or less questioning American sovereignty. Our platform makes main plank sovereignty of United States with liberty to each citizen to pursue peacefully his political ideas. Hour of peace has sounded. On our platform are grouped many Filipinos of hitherto irreconcilable ideas, but some more obstinate decline to join, for though willing to accept sovereignty of indefinite continuance of military government makes them distrust purpose of the United States and delays their submission. 'Adjournment of present Congress without giving President authority to establish purely civil government with usual powers and postponement for at least a year of such government until new Congress, will certainly confirm this distrust. Directory of the Federal party believes conferring such authority on President would inspire confidence and hasten acceptance of sovereignty of peace. Directory therefore prays both Houses of Congress to authorize President McKinley to establish civil government whenever he believes it opportune. 'FRANK H. BURNS, 'DR. PABLO DE TAVERO, 'FLORENTINO TORRES, 'JOSE NAK TOMAS DEL ROSARIO, 'C. E. ARELLANO, 'Directory of Federal Party.'"

CAPE COLONY INVADERS.

Capetown, Jan. 28.—It is reported that invaders have reached Ondershor district, where they had a slight skirmish with the defense forces.

FILIPINIO FEDERAL PARTY PETITION

Sent to Congress—Irreconcilable Insurrectionists Accepting American Sovereignty—Want Civil Government.

Washington, Jan. 28.—When the Senate convened today the presiding officer, Mr. Frye, called attention to the following cablegram, which was read: "Manila, Jan. 28.—To President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington: 'Accession to Federal party by thousands in all parts of archipelago. Attitude of hitherto irreconcilable press and the general public opinion show that labors of party to bring peace will soon be crowned with success. Until now political parties have attempted formation of plans more or less questioning American sovereignty. Our platform makes main plank sovereignty of United States with liberty to each citizen to pursue peacefully his political ideas. Hour of peace has sounded. On our platform are grouped many Filipinos of hitherto irreconcilable ideas, but some more obstinate decline to join, for though willing to accept sovereignty of indefinite continuance of military government makes them distrust purpose of the United States and delays their submission. 'Adjournment of present Congress without giving President authority to establish purely civil government with usual powers and postponement for at least a year of such government until new Congress, will certainly confirm this distrust. Directory of the Federal party believes conferring such authority on President would inspire confidence and hasten acceptance of sovereignty of peace. Directory therefore prays both Houses of Congress to authorize President McKinley to establish civil government whenever he believes it opportune. 'FRANK H. BURNS, 'DR. PABLO DE TAVERO, 'FLORENTINO TORRES, 'JOSE NAK TOMAS DEL ROSARIO, 'C. E. ARELLANO, 'Directory of Federal Party.'"

CAPE COLONY INVADERS.

Capetown, Jan. 28.—It is reported that invaders have reached Ondershor district, where they had a slight skirmish with the defense forces.

FILIPINIO FEDERAL PARTY PETITION

Sent to Congress—Irreconcilable Insurrectionists Accepting American Sovereignty—Want Civil Government.

Washington, Jan. 28.—When the Senate convened today the presiding officer, Mr. Frye, called attention to the following cablegram, which was read: "Manila, Jan. 28.—To President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington: 'Accession to Federal party by thousands in all parts of archipelago. Attitude of hitherto irreconcilable press and the general public opinion show that labors of party to bring peace will soon be crowned with success. Until now political parties have attempted formation of plans more or less questioning American sovereignty. Our platform makes main plank sovereignty of United States with liberty to each citizen to pursue peacefully his political ideas. Hour of peace has sounded. On our platform are grouped many Filipinos of hitherto irreconcilable ideas, but some more obstinate decline to join, for though willing to accept sovereignty of indefinite continuance of military government makes them distrust purpose of the United States and delays their submission. 'Adjournment of present Congress without giving President authority to establish purely civil government with usual powers and postponement for at least a year of such government until new Congress, will certainly confirm this distrust. Directory of the Federal party believes conferring such authority on President would inspire confidence and hasten acceptance of sovereignty of peace. Directory therefore prays both Houses of Congress to authorize President McKinley to establish civil government whenever he believes it opportune. 'FRANK H. BURNS, 'DR. PABLO DE TAVERO, 'FLORENTINO TORRES, 'JOSE NAK TOMAS DEL ROSARIO, 'C. E. ARELLANO, 'Directory of Federal Party.'"

CAPE COLONY INVADERS.

Capetown, Jan. 28.—It is reported that invaders have reached Ondershor district, where they had a slight skirmish with the defense forces.

GEN. FUNSTON DISPERSES REBELS

Manila, Jan. 28.—Gen. Funston reports that practically all the organized insurrectionists in his district have been dispersed with the exception of disconnected bands in the mountains. Sixty-five more rebels in the island of Panay have surrendered to the United States authorities at Cabatuan.

REDMOND ON VICTORIA'S REIGN.

New York, Jan. 28.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser from Dublin says: John Redmond, leader of the united Irish party, speaking at Wexford, said: "All the world is assembled in London, not in triumph, but in sorrow around the bier of her who to English people at least will live in history as a great constitutional sovereign. But Ireland was absent, Ireland, of all her empire, stood apart, sullen and dissatisfied. 'Ask your English rulers why. It is not because the Irish race is hard of heart and cold of nature; it is not because of any want of respect for the personal virtues of the lady from whose weary hand the sceptre of power is snatched by death. 'It is because the reign which is just closed has been for Ireland and all the Irish race more disastrous than any reign in three hundred years. During this reign a million and a half of our people have perished by famine; five millions have emigrated to other lands. 'Under the sway of this monarchy there have been forty coercive acts depriving Ireland of her constitutional rights. 'What has converted Canada from a land of rebellion to a happy colony would transform Ireland to a contented land."

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "Traviata," and "Rigoletto" rank close to "Il Trovatore" in popularity, and such works as "Lombardi," "Ernani," "A Mask Ball," "Attila," "Aida," "Otello" and "Falstaff" all have recognized places in the estimation of musicians. The last opera written by the great master was "Falstaff," produced with Victor Maurel in the title role. Giuseppe Verdi was the son of an innkeeper, and was born at Roncole, in the duchy of Parma, Italy, Oct. 9, 1813. He received his first lessons from an organist in Milan. His first work was a musical drama, "Oberto il San Bonifacio," but the opera which first brought him fame was the noble "Pilarim's Chorus," so often sung by our Tabernacle choir, is taken. His life was given up to music, and he wrote incessantly for almost 70 years. He was elected a member of the Italian parliament in 1861, and was appointed to lead the Italian Musical Institute at Florence in 1871. Almost every country in Europe conferred titles of distinction upon him, and the vicerey of Egypt, on the completion of "Aida," appointed him one of the Order of Osmanli.

COMPOSER VERDI PASSES AWAY.

Ah... I have sighed to rest me. The immortal Verdi is no more. When this intelligence is flashed over the world, thousands of minds will run the immortal song from which the above strain is taken, the "Ah Che La Morte" from the prison scene in "Il Trovatore." It is perhaps not saying too much to say that no song that was ever rendered in opera has been oftener sung or more generally admired than this selection. How many times the opera of "Il Trovatore" has been sung since it was written, perhaps no one could say, but that number would be a mere tithe of the times it has been rendered on the concert platform and in parlors and drawing rooms. Verdi's fame as a composer might very well rest upon "Il Trovatore" alone, but his extraordinary wealth of musical attainments is well illustrated by the fact that he wrote many other operas as most as popular: "