

PRINCE HENRY IS BANQUETTED

Luncheon at Sherry's—Arion Society Visited—A Thousand American Journalists Entertain Him—Germany Pleased.

New York, Feb. 26.—Prince Henry of Prussia remained on board the Hohenzollern this morning. A visit to Grant's tomb, which the prince had desired to make early in the day, was postponed because the wreaths to be placed on the sarcophagus were not finished in time. It was a quiet day for the prince compared with the busy one he had yesterday.

He was entertained in the afternoon at a luncheon at Sherry's at which tion. It fills me with joy to see that all German societies of New York city have participated in this occasion, which I do not take as tendered to me, but to my brother, his majesty, the German emperor, my high sovereign.

Gentlemen, most of you are citizens of this splendid country—the United States. From your old fatherland you have brought here a certain sense of duty which has undoubtedly to a large extent helped you to the success you have attained as citizens of this country. It is my wish that you may, as citizens of this splendid country, adhere to the same sense of duty which actuates your brethren in the old country.

Reid, German Ambassador von Holleben, Edward C. Corbett, Corbin, Admiral von Tripitz, Senator Lodge, Admiral von Eisele, Charles Emory Smith, Senator Hawley, Senator Bennett, Count Baugissa, Charles W. Knapp, Capt. von Gramme, Gen. Corbin, Rev. Dr. Gotthel and Wm. C. Bryant.

As the prince took his seat the electric lights were dimmed and the Prussian eagle above him on the southern side and the power was also increased in every one of the 2,500 incandescent lights that burned in the room.

Mr. Ritter called upon Bishop Potter, who offered a brief grace.

As the evening proceeded hundreds of handkerchiefs were waved from the boxes above the dining hall. An orchestra high up in the second tier of boxes played popular national music and when a tune came to the notice of the crowd they sang it. At "Die Wacht am Rhein" the crowd arose and after singing it lustily, there were loud cheers and the prince got the same enthusiastic treatment.

Excellent moulded statuettes of Prince Henry were distributed as souvenirs.

At 10:25 o'clock Mr. Ritter, rapping for attention, proposed the health of the president of the United States and Kaiser Wilhelm, and called upon Whiteley Reid to respond.

"When a few weeks ago we received the news that the prince was coming to visit this country we conceived the idea that you, sir, and the representatives of the daily press of the United States, should be brought together on this occasion. It seemed to us particularly fitting that we, makers of newspapers, should assume to do honor to a German prince, for we are all, in our way, makers of the immortal Gutenberg, who discovered the art of printing."

"An invitation was called to Berlin and promptly accepted. Our royal guest has not only not only our country but also been welcomed by the American people that, although I should be the very last at this table to introduce a political subject, I feel it my duty to do so. I have violated one of the most sacred traditions of our country—the Monroe doctrine—in representing the German emperor, have not set upon you."

COULDN'T DO IT. Milk Diet Failed.

"Food that will actually lift one out of a sick bed is worth knowing of. A Chicago lady writes: 'I want to thank you for your Grape-Nuts. Food has made in a case that was considered almost hopeless.'"

"I know you do not look upon Grape-Nuts as a medicine, but enough about that. I certainly do build up work out systems, it seems to me it is closely allied to a tonic. Now about the cure."

Last spring a dear girl friend fell ill and was taken to one of the hospitals, but weeks before entering the hospital she had been able to take nothing but milk to nourish her. All this food she tried to live on the milk alone.

"The doctor in the hospital endeavored to keep her alive with broth and other food, but her stomach refused to retain anything but milk, and very little of that at a time."

"I worked away at the resident physician until he consented to my taking for her a small quantity of Grape-Nuts for her. The poor child was so very weak and nervous and so frail that I felt quite dubious about the outcome, nevertheless, I bought a box of Grape-Nuts Food, which I intended to give her, to feel that it would bring her over. After she had rested a little while I warmed some milk and poured in a little of the Grape-Nuts Food, and persuaded her to take it. She did so with fear and trembling, for she did not expect to keep the food down. After giving her the food she felt better, and she will tell you that it was an interesting one, she fell asleep. When she finally awoke her first words were, 'Did I really keep the Grape-Nuts?'"

"She had kept them but could scarcely get them down. After two or three hours I gave her a little more with the same result. Gradually and cautiously I increased the amount until after a few days she was able to eat a saucer full with no bad effects."

any one spot of ground, you have captured us all and made us all your own."

"Before beginning his speech the prince said to the press: 'I am very glad to see you here. I am very glad to see you here. I am very glad to see you here.'"

"Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: I am fully aware of the fact that I am speaking at a long table, and I am fully aware of the fact that I am speaking at a long table, and I am fully aware of the fact that I am speaking at a long table."

"You will meet many members of the press and I wish you therefore to keep in mind that the press men in the United States rank among my personal friends."

"It will interest you to know that something about the nature of my mission to this country. The facts are as follows: His majesty, the emperor, has minutely studied the recent and rapid development of the United States, and his majesty is well aware of the fact that your country is rapidly becoming a world power."

At the end of the speech the prince was heartily applauded.

Mr. Ritter at this point introduced Charles Emory Smith, saying that Mr. Smith had been a minister once, a great orator, and is known as the silver-tongued orator of the press of America. Mr. Smith responded to the toast 'What We Owe to Germany in Literature, Art, Science and Music.'

Following Mr. Smith came Charles W. Knapp, who was introduced in a few appropriate words by Mr. Ritter. Mr. Knapp responded to the toast, 'International Amity.'

The dinner was concluded at 11:45 p. m., and the prince immediately left accompanied by his suite. He was very heartily cheered as he went out of the banquet room.

LUNCHEON AT SHERRY'S.

New York, Feb. 26.—The luncheon given in honor of Prince Henry by twelve New York gentlemen and a German government official to about 100 Americans from all parts of the United States, who are of eminence in the finance, commerce and industries of the United States, at Sherry's today, was a most notable one.

The luncheon was served in the banquet hall. The floor was covered with crimson rug, and the walls were paneled by tapestry, the same decorations prevailing in the balcony which extends along the east and south sides of the hall.

The menu bore the prince's flag as emblem, the motto 'Got Mit Uns' and the international code signal, 'You are Welcome to Breakfast.'

In arranging the menu it was borne in mind that the prince had before he arrived in New York that he hoped he would have an opportunity to partake of some characteristic American dishes, and it was also in consideration of the fact that the prince had a German taste for canyaback duck that it was boiled and not roasted.

At the seats of the ladies invited as guests were placed the bouquets of jessamine and gardenias, Prince Henry's favorite flowers, and when his royal highness saw the ladies wearing these favors he sent for one and pinned it on his own hat.

The Americans at the tables A and F were designated as special guests in the booklet of 44 numbered pages, each containing a story, and on occasion which told of the achievements of each of the 'captains of industry' who had been invited to the function.

A copy of the booklet was presented by Ed. von Holleben, who when seated with his royal highness aboard the yacht Hohenzollern on Tuesday, and it was evident that the prince had made a careful study of the contents, for when introduced to each 'captain of industry' after the breakfast he showed a remarkable knowledge of their achievements by conversing with each of them.

GREETING TO THE EMPEROR.

New York, Feb. 26.—The editors who dined with Prince Henry tonight as guests of Herman Ritter, sent a telegram to the emperor, which was forwarded to the German emperor, and after cordial endorsement by the guests, was forwarded. It read as follows: 'To the German Emperor—The editors of the daily newspapers of the United States, 1,000 in number, in honor of your illustrious brother, send you cordial greeting and all good wishes for a long and prosperous reign. We hail the presence of Prince Henry in this country as an omen of even closer ties of amity, and heartily reciprocate all of the splendid and repeated overtures of friendship you have been graciously pleased to extend. 'MELVILLE E. STONE, Secretary.' GERMANS ARE PLEASED.

reception tendered his brother has been freely expressed to members of the royal household.

In official circles it is considered that the emperor has personally accomplished, by sending Prince Henry to the United States, what it would have taken years to do otherwise. An inspired statement published by the German press, with double leads, is as follows:

"The highest political circles are immensely pleased at the excellent course, up to the present time, of Prince Henry's visit. The conviction is entertained that these festive days will substantially contribute toward rendering the relations between the two countries permanently friendly, and especial delight is expressed at the cordiality of the personal intercourse between President Roosevelt and Prince Henry."

Augustus Healy was made first vice president, succeeding R. Covert; W. G. Garrett was chosen second vice president, in place of L. H. Latham, and J. J. Princess of Wales Has Narrow Escape.

New York, Feb. 27.—The Princess of Wales had a narrow escape at the Shire horse show when a herd of 100 animals, which were being led down the ring and the royal party was looking on, broke through the crowd and scattered the animal, which got almost beyond control. The groom made a dash for the exit through which the prince and princess were just about to pass. They appeared totally unaware of the danger until the shouts of warning from the spectators, who were alarmed by the noise, called their attention. The princess, who was now next the animal, realized her danger. The groom managed to pull the animal to one side as it dashed past the royal party, only missing her royal highness by a very few feet.

New Zealanders Stood the Brunt.

PRINCE HENRY'S ARRIVAL AT THE BANQUET TENDERED BY THE PRESS OF THE UNITED STATES

30 men from different parts of the United States, 'captains of industry,' prominent in industry, commerce and finance, were present.

The evening program included a visit to the Arion club, a review of a parade of German societies and the dinner given by the New York Staats Zeitung to the American press in honor of Prince Henry.

The prince and party entered the main entrance of the Arion society's hall on Park avenue. There he was met by a committee of the club, headed by President Frank von Brinen, who extended a cordial welcome.

The prince left the Hohenzollern at 12:30, and escorted by troop C, went to Sherry's. Heading the procession was a squadron of mounted police, Prince Henry rode in an open limousine, and following were carriages containing members of the prince's suite and Rear-Admiral von Baudissin. The party arrived at Sherry's at 12:30, where luncheon was served.

From the dinner given by the 'captains of industry' Prince Henry, preceded by mounted police, who cleared Fifth avenue of all vehicles, sending them into the side streets, was driven to the Hohenzollern. After a two hours' stay the prince, accompanied by his suite, Ambassador von Holleben and Admiral Evans, was driven to the Arion society hall, there to review the torchlight procession of the German societies. He was escorted by troop C of Brooklyn and mounted police.

As the prince took his seat the electric lights were dimmed and the Prussian eagle above him on the southern side and the power was also increased in every one of the 2,500 incandescent lights that burned in the room. It gave special brilliancy to an already attractive scene.

Mr. Ritter called upon Bishop Potter, who offered a brief grace.

As the evening proceeded hundreds of handkerchiefs were waved from the boxes above the dining hall. An orchestra high up in the second tier of boxes played popular national music and when a tune came to the notice of the crowd they sang it.
