Burglar is Now in Jail.

August Mueller Cleverly Captured by Deputy Sheriff Cummings—Had in His Possession Keys Stolen from Farmers Ward Meeting House and is Believed to be the Man Who Burglarized the Beatie Residence Last Thursday

Sheriff Naylor and his men made a great hit this morning in the capture of the man thought to be guilty of the recent burglaries that have been committed in this city. The indications seemed to point to August Mueller, lately released from the county jail, where he has been confined for the last few months for larceny, as the culprit, and acting on that theory, he had Deputy Cummings hunt up Mueller, who was found on State street at 11 o'clock this morning, and taken into custody.

The outcome exceeded the sheriff's most sanguine expectations. On being searched, there were found in Mueller's possession a bunch of skeleton keys, keys stolen from the Farmers ward meetinghouse which was burglarized a few days ago, 5,000 shares of Klondike-Eldorado Mining company's stock, $425 in cash, several revolver cartridges, four dynamite caps, and other burglaric impedimenta.

CHRISTENSEN TO THE TEACHERS.

Delivers Address on "Discipline and Organization of Schools."

STIRRING CHORUS WORK.

Lowell Boys and Hamilton Girls Surprise Pedagogues With Their Excellent Singing Today.

A general meeting of the teachers of this city was held in the assembly room of the West Side high school at 10 o'clock this morning. The exercises were opened by a stirring chorus of boys from the Lowell school, under the direction of Mr. Wetzel, which was received with hearty applause.

Then the audience was again treated to another chorus, at company girls from the Hamilton school under the direction of Miss Ethel Lane, who were also received with every manifestation of approval.

Before taking up his subject, Supt. Christensen took occasion to explain a misconceived idea of the resolution recently passed by the board of education relative to resignations, and warmly commending its workings.

Addressing himself to his subject, "Discipline and Organization of Schools," the speaker made an earnest appeal to his relations to manhood and womanhood, a plea for the very best that is in the teacher, his energy, personal appearance, self-caring interest in the work, and by all that constitutes the successful one who would give dignity to the profession. School discipline as an end in order to the work may be facilitated by dwelling upon with emphasis, but in a broader sense the teacher is a character builder. The pupil should be taught respect for order, and a high regard for bearing and dignity in every essential, whether in relation to appearance upon the street, or among his fellows shall be legitimate result. The teacher should be positive in his relations to his charge. The negative, undecided person has no place in the school room. Good order should be maintained by securing interest in the work, and by appeal to that which is noble and true. There are no doubt times when coercion by means of corporal punishment must be resorted to but this means should be a last resort, and when all others have failed. The time will come, in the estimation of Supt. Christensen, when this method of punishment will be a thing of the past. Whatever method is adopted to improve the child, no attempt should be made in a spirit of pique, neither should extra work be imposed as a corrective measure, as the very purpose for which the pupil attends school is thwarted. Fear should never take possession of the child in an effort to inspire respect for good order. While the teacher must be genial, dignified and approachable, he should be "one with them" and not "one of them."

The true teacher will sympathize with child nature, will teach the esthetic, encourage that which is worthy and discourage that which is unworthy. A good teacher is essentially optimistic, and while exerting a strong will power must not taunt the child with that for which he is not responsible. It is the teacher's profession for the purpose of making money only, he is shortsighted, as teachers as a class are poorly paid. It is the province of the teacher also to encourage pupils to secure a good education by attending the high school and university, and his duty to direct him in his choice of a course best suited to him.

In closing Mr. Christensen, while extending greetings for the work already achieved, made an earnest appeal to the teachers to prosecute vigorously the work to which

TELEPHONE SWITCH BOARD.

Connections Therewith Will be Made Tonight—The Result.

The management of the R. M. Bell Telephone company will cut over the service tonight, to the new $75,000 switchboard, and tomorrow, the service will be via the new local system. This necessitates the discontinuance of the present call system by which central is called by turning the box cranks. All that will be necessary to call the central office after this evening, will be to merely take the phone off the hook and place it to the ear. This action lights a little electric lamp over the number of the phone calling, and central at once catches on. Then on Monday the company will begin removing the present telephone boxes, which are to be replaced by single boxes containing call bells, the receiver and transmitter. An exception, but a small one, will be where the old fashioned party line, Blake service, is in use. This cannot be adapted to the new switchboard, and will remain as is.

Challis, Ida., was connected yesterday, with the trunk system of the telephone company, and an item of interest is that the Boise strike is at an end, and the boycott is declared off. Thirteen subscribers had notified the company to take out their instruments in consequence of the strike, but several of these quietly sent around word not to be in any anxiety hurry to do it.

WOODMEN'S ENTERTAINMENT.

At the hall of the Modern Woodmen of America, on last evening, was given the first of a series of joint entertainments for the members and friends of the three organizations participating, the Royal Neighbors and Camps 10671 and 10922 of the Modern Woodmen. There were 126 people present and all seemed to have had an enjoyable time. The program consisted of a song by Mrs. Crompton; a song by Mr. John James, written by Dr. Jos. Parry of Wales and dedicated to Mr. James, this song entitled "Make New Friends, But Keep the Old," was so well rendered that Mr. James was called upon for an encore. Excitement was given by Mrs. Naomi Trebbe and an exercise with the Indian clubs by Mrs. Trebbe concluded the program. A feature of the evening was a Kanjarow court, which afforded much merriment for the guests of the evening. Mr. Franklin, the caterer, was fined one dollar for serving refreshments, and others were fined for various offenses of minor importance.

GLEN MILLER RETIRES.

Gives Up Newspaper Work to Enter The Magazine Field.

A change in local journalistic circles which will occasion some surprise is the announcement that Glen Miller, who has been dramatic critic of the Tribune for the past 13 years, has resigned his position to enter the field of magazine writing. Mr. Miller came to Salt Lake in 1889, and was one of the founders of the widely quoted real estate firm of Miller and Miller, "not brothers, no relation." Prior to coming to Utah, he had been dramatic editor of the Kansas City Times, and desiring to keep in touch with theatrical work, he accepted the dramatic editorship of the Tribune, a position which he has filled with credit for various months since. Keeping up his work even while he was United States marshal here. During his recent trip to the east, Mr. Miller entered into a contract to supply regular articles for the various magazines of the west, and the time this will call for necessitated his giving up his dramatic work. His new pursuit will not interfere with his work as head of the Home Investment company, which he continues as heretofore.

JEWELS FOR LIBERTY.

Mrs. Marshall Pawns Diamonds to Keep Out of Jail.

Mrs. Carl Marshall pawned her diamond earrings and saved her husband and herself from serving a term in the county jail. Marshall was proprietor of the Ping Pong saloon on West Second South street, but his place was closed several days ago under an attachment issued at the instance of the Zang Brewing company to satisfy a claim of $100. When the sheriff took charge of the place he found that instead of the bottles in stock containing the "real stuff" they were filled with water.

Marshall made an appointment to meet his creditors and settle up at 10 o'clock at night, but instead of doing so he and his wife went to bed and boarded the train for some northern point. After waiting for the man to show up his creditors became impatient and had the sheriff make a search for him. With the result that he and his wife were hauled off the train and taken to the county jail. The woman pleaded for their release but was refused. Finally a happy thought struck her, and calling a messenger boy, she took off her valuable earrings and sent them to a pawnshop to secure the necessary amount to obtain the freedom of herself and husband. They left for the northern city and the creditors took charge of the stock of liquor.

Manassas, Va., Nov. 1.—In the fitful glare of locomotive lanterns President Roosevelt at 4:30 this morning started briskly from his private car in the railroad yard here and greeted cordially the little group of newspaper men, special officers and railroad men who had gathered to see him start on his hunt for wild turkeys. He was attired in a khaki suit with leggings, a long heavy overcoat and a black stouch hat. A servant handed to him a double barreled shotgun which he threw familiarly into the crook of his left arm. The president after a quick survey of the starlight, remarked to Secy. Root, who had preceded him from the car, that they were in luck as to the weather. The president and Secy. Root were joined at once by Surgeon-Gen. Rixey, Secy. Cortelyou and J. T. Leachman, sheriff of Prince William county.
