of the Union Pacific about 40 miles east of Ogden by being struck with a west-bound freight train. Biglan has been employed at the Union cement plant for several months doing stone mason work on the buildings. For several days past the man had been feeling sick and was not working. He started out Monday evening for a walk down the track, which is about the only place to walk up there, and had gone to near the river bridge, where it is presumed he sat down for a rest, and went to sleep, so that when the freight train came along he did not hear it and was hurled from the track and injured so seriously that he died in less than an hour. The sheriff was notified of the accident, who, with the justice of the peace, went to the scene of the accident and impounded a coroner's jury, who held an inquest over the body yesterday. The unfortunate man was from Alta, Iowa, so it is stated, where he was a factory living. A telegram has been sent there, and no disposition of the body will be made until word is received from there.
