INDUSTRY OF THE MORMON PEOPLE

Elder German Ellsworth Draws From This Topic an Interesting Discourse.

ELDER H. J. GRANT SPEAKS.

The Effects of the Doctrine Revealed To Joseph Smith Are Related and Experiences Are Told.

The services in the tabernacle yesterday were in charge of President John R. Winder. President Anthon H. Lund was also present, with Elder Heber J. Grant of the quorum of twelve and Presiding Bishop C. W. Nibley. The first hymn from page 101, was sung by the choir. Prayer was offered by Bishop C. W. Nibley. "Glorious things of thee are spoken" was then sung by the choir. The speakers were German E. Ellsworth, president of the Central States mission, and Elder Heber J. Grant.

Elder Ellsworth spoke of the favorable location of the Latter-day Saints. He had visited many of the old scenes in the eastern states, and excellent as they were, he was glad that the people were forced to come west. He compared the material conditions in the east with the wastes to which the people came under the leadership of Brigham Young. He believed the work required on the part of the people in order to live, was beneficial to them. Reference was made to changes in the physical condition of the old scenes, some of which have gone back to timber.

At one point in the discourse, a mortgage to publish the first 5,000 Books of Mormon, now the demand is so great that an edition of 100,000 has recently been printed. The effects of the truths of that book, as well as the doctrine, were touched on, especially in connection with the idea that baptism of children is necessary to salvation.

The speaker read at length from the Book of Mormon regarding baptism and referred to the feeling in the world that baptism is non-essential, and not necessary in order to secure membership in the church of Christ.

The disposition of the Latter-day Saints to work, both in a spiritual and temporal way, was spoken of, the evidences of their industry being seen at Kirtland and Nauvoo, as well as in the west. When they did well, according to their means and opportunities, which contrasts strongly with the manner of life of those who have followed them in some places where they lived in the east.

The restoration of the authority to act in the name of the Lord, its necessity and its effect on the rest of the world was also touched on.

The speaker said, "Praise the Lord All Ye Nations."

ELDER HEBER J. GRANT.—Elder Heber J. Grant said he rejoiced in the spread of the gospel and the change of sentiment regarding the Latter-day Saints in all the world. The lives of the people must impress every one who examines them. This is especially true of the missionaries who go out without previous training and some without ever having previously stood on their feet before an audience. The elders are able to do this and meet opposition because they have the truth. In their work they do not as a rule get disheartened, though temporary defeat may be met sometimes. The missionaries do not go out and find out that the work is not true. If it were false, the fact would surely have been found out by some of the missionaries during the last three quarters of a century. The experience of Elder Kirtland and Welch in the Southern states was mentioned. They were threatened as they were about to attend to some baptisms, when they sang the hymn beginning, "Truth reflects upon the unwise," which had a great effect on them. They were not disturbed during the ceremony and were afterwards asked by the mob to sing again.

Some of the stories circulated in regard to Joseph Smith were spoken of, after which the forecast of Josiah Quincy as to the place he might occupy in history, was read.

He considered the statement that Joseph Smith established Mormonism as a result of a weakness due to epilepsy, to be the weakest thing he ever heard of. The description of the man given by Josiah Quincy, was read. Such a man as Quincy would not have made a great eulogy to an epileptic. He also read regarding Joseph Smith's advanced ideas in liberating the slaves and reimbursing their holders, which would have saved war. The matter which he was regarded by Brigham Young and other great men who were older than he, was taken to be significant of the greatness of the man.

The influence of the religion established by Joseph Smith on men's lives, was told in the story of a young man who accepted the gospel in Scandinavia, and who was cast out of his home on a stormy night because the priest, but it gave up his connection with the Mormons.

He also narrated the experience of his own mother, who was expelled from a comfortable home because she believed in the divine mission of Joseph Smith.

Those accepting the gospel were exhorted to live so that their lives might be above reproach.

The chorists then sang the anthem, "Hosanna to God and the Lamb," after which the benediction was pronounced by Joseph E. Taylor.
