

FOUNDERS' DAY IS CELEBRATED

Eleven Hundred Students Participate in Commemorative Exercises at L. D. S. U.

TWENTY-THREE YEARS AGO

Founders' Day of the L. D. S. university was fittingly observed today, the principal exercises being held in Barratt hall. There were 1,100 students present, many of their parents, members of the faculty and Church authorities. Probably never before in the history of the great institution of learning has there been such a spirit of enthusiasm, loyalty and encouragement manifested as in today's exercises.

The program began at 9 o'clock this morning, when the 1,100 students, headed by the band, marched to the various places where the institution was formerly housed. The strains of lively marches, with college and class yells, with streaming banners and shouts of joy, the students visited in their historical march, the old Ellerbeek home on First North, between First and Second West streets. From there they marched to the Templeton building, then to the old Social hall, where the school was founded 23 years ago today, then to the Leon House and finally to the magnificent buildings now constituting the home of the university.

Barratt hall was beautifully decorated with the "various colors, blue and gold, with class colors, waving banners and flowers. The band led the march to the hall and on the way the prep, then the freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors. Every seat in the hall was occupied and many were compelled to stand.

One of the most beautiful songs of the day was that sung by the seniors entitled: "We're the Class of Seniors, Hurray, Hurray," to the tune "My Wife's Gone to the Country." After a selection by the choir, Joseph E. Taylor offered the opening prayer, followed by a selection by the orchestra, a well trained body of young musicians.

President Francis M. Lyman has introduced and addressed the beautiful gold and blue flag, he presented it to the school. "I regard it as a great pleasure," said President Lyman, "with you on this anniversary of the founding of this splendid institution, and I present to you this beautiful flag with the hope that you will all abide by the principles of truth and light."

In a neat speech Prof. B. S. Hinckley replied to the presentation and on behalf of the school accepted the beautiful gift. "Back of us are 23 years of struggle and triumph," said the speaker. "Thousands will march behind this banner and tens of thousands are marching toward it, but stand more loyal than those present will ever sing its praises."

The school sang "Hail to the Gold and Blue," and then Prof. Willard Dore, the first teacher of the institution, delivered the main address. He spoke in part as follows: "Every movement that is worthy and lasting has its origin in a splendid idea which finds lodgment in the heart of an active and aggressive man, and is put to practical application. The founding of this institution is no exception. The idea conceived by President Brigham Young, and carried into effect by the founding of the institutions that bear his name at Provo and Logan, appeared strongly to certain men in Salt Lake City in the year 1836. The idea was well expressed by one of these men, Wm. B. Douglass, in the following words: 'We send men to West Point in order that they may become educated soldiers; to Annapolis in order that they may become engineers; and to the government supports these institutions for this purpose. And it is just as necessary that we have educated latter-day saints, and that the Church support schools to produce them.'"

With such men as Angus M. Cannon, Wm. B. Douglass, Wm. A. Rossiter, Alonzo E. Hyde, Francis Cope, Wm. H. Rowe, Spencer Clawson, Rodney C. Badger and others, who effected this movement, to conceive an idea was to act upon it; and in the summer of the year named they went out to work upon the idea of establishing a school in Salt Lake City. Money was freely donated by public spirited citizens, and negotiations were soon opened with Dr. Masser, principal of the Brigham Young academy at Provo, looking to the founding of the institution. The negotiations resulted in his vigorously taking the matter in hand and assisting in the preliminary arrangements. He brought with him to take charge of the work the present speaker, who had just entered upon his third year as teacher in the academy at Provo. The movement of the Social hall was secured from President John Taylor largely through the influence of Brothers Douglass, Rossiter and Hyde, and fitted up with the best furnishings obtainable at that date.

"Here, after full preliminary arrangements were arranged, Dr. Masser and I met the students on the first day of the school's existence, November 15, 1836. The experiences of that first day were unique. The establishment of the school was a revolution. The students were interested in the proceedings attending the organization of classes, etc., and a certain degree of surprise was manifested by the innovators. One of the boys was telling his friends about it afterward. 'We went into a place,' said he, 'and there was a Sunday school. Brother Masser was there, and there was a boy usher that met us at the door and showed us in. I found out afterwards that he was to be our teacher. This was his delicate way of referring to me. The students were graded, three classes being found necessary in some subjects and active work was commenced at once. I remember that during the first term, I had to conduct three different arithmetic classes during the same recitation period. The attendance ran up to about 75, and then we turned applicants away.'"

Prof. Dore concluded by saying a few words to the students, the faculty and the Church authorities, and the wonderful strides that the school has made.

Let us not forget one of the founders, the Church. Let us show loyalty to the Church, loyalty to the principles taught in this splendid school so that you will become good and loyal citizens with reverence for country and obedience to its laws.
The school choir sang "Land of Freedom," and Joseph E. Taylor, one of the founders, spoke briefly upon the struggles of the early days of the school and the remarkable achievements obtained. Miss Irene Smith read an interesting paper on "Our School," and President Anthony H. Lund made a few earnest remarks on the moral, spiritual, mental and physical advantages obtained at the school. He complimented the students on the splendid showing made and spoke words of encouragement upon the good work. The benediction was pronounced by Angus M. Cannon.

This afternoon the time is taken up in sports. The program calls for class relay races, a tug of war, basketball between class teams and a flag rush. The police, Monday night, gave out the report which had been given to them by the landlady of the place, to the effect that the old man had registered at the hotel under the name of "Judge" Harper; that the landlady and other habitués of the place had seen him drunk there for three days previous to the time of his injury; that he had occupied room 10; that he had fallen over the banisters from the third to the second floor.

Large Gathering Present Upon a Most Interesting Occasion—Pres. Smith Offers Prayer.
Most interesting and appropriate services were held in Emerson ward Sunday evening, the occasion being the dedication of the new chapel of that ward, a large congregation being present. The opening prayer was offered by Counselor Badger. A program of vocal and instrumental music was rendered, and Bishop Arbuckle made a few remarks suitable to the occasion. He was followed by the report of the building committee which was made by former Bishop Atwood. Attention was called to the economical feature of the erection of the new edifice, as all the brick used for lining was made on the grounds. A small plant was erected there and the material made and put into place. Much of the work of finishing the building was done by members of the ward who are carpenters, painters, cement workers and others. They devoted their time and labor for the erection of the building.

The benediction was offered by Bishop David A. Smith.
The meeting was closed with remarks by Bishop Arbuckle. The acceptance of the reports of the committees followed and a vote of thanks was offered to the donors of the building. The benediction was offered by Bishop David A. Smith.

GORGING MYSTERY LEFT UNSOLVED

Police Department Accepts Story Of Landlady and Drops Investigation.

SON CHARGES MURDER.

Says His Father Did Not Fall Down Stairs, But Was Killed and Then Robbed.
In spite of the fact that Edmund F. Goring demanded a rigid official investigation into the circumstances surrounding the mysterious death of his father, Ernest E. Goring, who succumbed last Monday night to injuries received in the Crescent rooming house, 223 south state street, chief of Police Barlow has refused to take any action in the matter, and the case has been dropped for good, as far as the police department is concerned.

Last Monday night, a hurry call was sent in to the police station from the rooming house, and the patrol wagon, in response to this call, went to the place and returned with Goring to the emergency hospital. Dr. F. B. Steele, the police surgeon, was called in, and after Goring died two hours later, Dr. Steele signed a certificate to the effect that he had died of fracture of the skull at the base of the brain. The aged man had a large laceration on the forehead, the front part of the head, so that the scalp was peeled over the skull for several inches, leaving the bone of the skull exposed.

The police, Monday night, gave out the report which had been given to them by the landlady of the place, to the effect that the old man had registered at the hotel under the name of "Judge" Harper; that the landlady and other habitués of the place had seen him drunk there for three days previous to the time of his injury; that he had occupied room 10; that he had fallen over the banisters from the third to the second floor.

SON MAKES INVESTIGATION.
Last Saturday, it was stated, after an investigation by young Goring and his friends, that the landlady had deliberately lied to the police and that the police had swallowed her story. Chief Barlow had accepted the landlady's statements. The landlady last Saturday admitted that Goring had not registered under the name of "Judge" Harper, she stated that she had "made a mistake" in giving her first report of the circumstances to the police; that she was not present when Goring came in to the rooming house, but that she had seen him on the third floor, about 7 o'clock, Monday night; that at 9 o'clock, she heard a noise, and on going out she saw Goring lying on the stairs, head down, with a pillow in his arms, and that his head was bleeding.

NO INVESTIGATION.
Chief of Police Barlow has made no personal investigation. He simply received the report of the police, who had swallowed the landlady's story. As this mysterious case stands now, Chief of Police Barlow refuses to take any action in the matter. He says that Goring's death was an "accident." He does not explain the fact that the landlady told the police that Goring had been in the house for three days previous to the accident, which was false; that she said Goring had registered as "Judge" Harper, which was false; that Goring had occupied room 10, which was false; and that he had been drinking, "rolled," robbed of $20 and that the aged man was murdered.

SEEKS HER DEATH IN SHALLOW POOL

Mrs. Wilhelmina Dittmer, in Fit of Despondency, Commits Suicide Today.

IN DIVORCE COURT FRIDAY.

At That Time She Learned That Her Husband Had Been Freed by Court And Married Again.

Plunging into the cold and murky waters of a shallow pool between Ninth and Tenth West and Third and Fourth South streets shortly after noon today, Mrs. Wilhelmina C. Dittmer went to her death, a suicide, broken in health and despondent. Neighbors say that lately the unfortunate woman has manifested clearly a mental derangement. Throughout the morning reports were received at the police department of the woman's wanderings and the police tried several times to locate her, but without success. Leaving her home this morning clad in a light dress and an old pair of shoes, she wandered aimlessly about telling those she met that she was going to kill herself and murmuring in a confused manner about her misfortunes. Shortly after 1 o'clock a foreman for the James Kennedy Contracting firm informed the police that he had found a woman lying in a pool at the place mentioned. The patrol wagon hurried to the place, the man of the property with the woman in an attempt to save her life. She died, however, just a few minutes before the patrol, with its horses lathered, dashed to the scene. Mrs. Dittmer is the woman who last Tuesday applied to the district court for a divorce from her former husband, Edward R. Dittmer, not knowing that he had already obtained a divorce from her and that he had married again. She charged desertion and alleged that he was living with another woman in this city, which proved to be the fact, the woman was his second wife. The case was continued last Friday, for one week to permit an investigation as to the manner in which Dittmer obtained his divorce. Mr. Dittmer informed the News by telephone that he had obtained his divorce in regular manner and that after obtaining it he had contracted his second marriage. He is employed as a tailor in a local clothing house.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

This year's Thanksgiving services in the city churches will be held in two sections—one in the First Congregational church, with Rev. Dr. W. M. Padon of the First Presbyterian church as the principal service, and in the Phillips Congregational church, with Rev. L. S. Bowerman of the Baptist church, as the preacher.

COURT NEWS.

DEFENSE NEARS END.
Plumbers' Injunction Suit Drops Near the Close Today.

Ten more union plumbers were called this morning in Judge Morris L. Ritchie's court in the injunction suit brought against them by the master plumbers' association to enjoin them from interfering with the non-union plumbers who took their places when the union men went out on strike. In each case the witnesses denied that they created a disturbance or called the non-union men "scabs," "rats" or other names at any time. It was brought out on cross-examination, however, that somebody who was in the crowd, but did not take any part in the demonstration.

The defense will finish its case this afternoon and the arguments will be heard. It is probable Judge Ritchie will take the case under advisement and allow the temporary restraining order to stand until a decision is reached.

KOTHAFIS STILL UNDER FIRE.

John Kothafis, who is on trial before Judge Thomas D. Ogden charged with the murder of Peter Getz at Bingham canyon on Dec. 23, 1908, underwent a searching cross-examination this morning. Assistant District Attorney E. O. Leatherwood took him back over the events leading up to the shooting and was unable to shake his story of the tragedy to any extent. He was still on the stand when the court took a recess to allow the defense two more witnesses to examine this afternoon, and then its case will be closed. The arguments will be heard tomorrow and the case placed in the hands of the jury tomorrow night.

CHIEF GOES TO OGDEN.

Chief of Police Barlow went to Ogden this afternoon for the purpose of trying to identify certain prisoners held in custody there at the holdups who have been terrorizing Salt Lake City recently. Detective Ripley is also working on several holdups and robberies at the Ogden end.

DISMISSED BY BOWMAN.

The case against Joseph Hammond, charged with having committed burglary in the case of George E. Martin, was dismissed by Judge Bowman in police court this morning, as there was not enough evidence adduced at the hearing on which the accused could be held. It appeared from the testimony of John E. Carlson that he saw Hammond and another young man near his home, but he was unable to testify that he saw them set it afire.

The case against Daniel Williams, charged with having committed burglary in the second degree, by J. B. Gordon, who alleged that the accused had entered room 7, at 145 west Second street, and had stolen a watch belonging to him, was dismissed by Judge Bowman in police court this morning, on motion of Assistant County Attorney Aaron Mayers.

SUES FOR DAMAGES.

Hazel Janesch, 16 years old, by her guardian Max J. Janesch, filed suit against the Utah Light & Railway company this morning in the Third district court to recover $100.00 for personal injuries. Miss Janesch attempted to alight from a Sugar House car at Fourth East and Sixth South streets, when the car was suddenly started and she was thrown to the ground. Her hip was fractured and the injury is permanent.

TRIAL BEGINS TOMORROW.

Trial of the action brought to recover damages for the death of Clint Leitch, the reporter, and son of T. F. Leitch, who was killed on the high line at the Boston Con. mining company's plant in Bingham canyon Feb. 22, 1907, on the occasion of a visit of his wife and two children, will be commenced in the federal court before Judge Page Morris on Tuesday.
