

NEW QUARTERS FOR DESERET MUSEUM

Dr. Talmage in Charge of Housing of Exhibit in Vermont Building.

A REMARKABLE COLLECTION

Scientific Specimen Most Valuable—Mummies of Ancient Races—Casts of Mammoth Mastodons, Etc.

Now that the Vermont building has been completed, the Deseret Museum will have permanent, suitable headquarters for the really remarkable specimens contained in its exhibit.

But it will in all probability be six months yet before we can possibly have the mammoth skeletons properly mounted, placed in case or rack, framed or mounted in condition to be opened to the public.

When compared with some of the collections in the great eastern centers where they have unlimited means at their command, our collection may seem small but for its size it is one of the best and we have some rare specimens unsurpassed in any collection.

COLLECTION OF SELENITE

Then the doctor pointed out his unequalled collection of selenite or gypsum crystals discovered in Wayne county, amounting to more than 20 tons of choice specimens, some of which are almost as large as a man and weigh hundreds of pounds.

In the south part of the room were human bodies safely buried up in boxes, the mummified remains of an ancient race. With one exception these are found in a double-up position, but a large case has been built for the unusual extended specimens.

Then there are the casts of mammoth mastodons and other prehistoric animals, of fishes, of insects, of the great sea nautilus, etc.

There is on hand a fine collection of paper mache model flowers and a perfect human skeleton with removable parts all of which are of inestimable value to students in botany and physiology.

In the rear is a broad corridor leading

VALUABLE PRISMS

Here have been mentioned only a small part of the thousands of interesting collections from the various countries of the earth where missionaries and collectors have collected rare native products from the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms, and the almost countless rare manuscripts, ancient coins, rare and historic ever furniture and other objects of vast interest too numerous to mention.

During his travels, Dr. Talmage has ever been on the watch, securing a great number of fine specimens through purchase and by exchange. He has found his 50 tons of giant selenite crystals worth to the museum almost as much as gold.

These two large exhibit rooms have been beautifully constructed, affording ample light to show off the display to the best advantage. Nearly a dozen of the old cases will be used in the new quarters, but a large number of new ones have been ordered and should be here in time to receive the exhibits when ready for placing.

CURATOR'S QUARTERS

In the north front of the building Dr. Talmage has had arranged a suite of five beautiful rooms for his private use. The first is his reception room; next to this is his private den, where he has a handsome solid oak desk, top desk, the first ever brought to Utah. It cost $500 in its day, and was brought over by John W. Young for President Brigham.

HONOR TO FOUNDER

"The object of the founders and the present directors of the Deseret museum is educational first of all," said Dr. Talmage, "and too much praise cannot be given to the late Joseph L. Barfoot, its founder. He was a man honored and respected while he lived, and the rough granite column in the city cemetery today is a symbolical of the sturdy qualities of the first curator of the Deseret museum."

WILL ARBITRATE

The executive committee of the building council, Thomas Kearns, and Contractor George Curly met Monday evening at the home of Mr. Curly, men should return to work on the Kearns building pending arbitration on the dispute between the inside wiremen and the contractors. The committee on arbitration is composed of Messrs. Kearns, Curly, Manager R. W. Nicol of the Salt Lake Electrical Supply company, and two members of the building trades council. A meeting will be held on Mr. Nicol's return from Denver.

SWAVE COUPLE TURN A FEW MEAN TRICKS

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schneider Rent a Home and Buy Furniture With Bad Checks.

"Has anyone seen Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schneider of Everett, Wash.?" queries Mrs. Lizzie Meyers of 250 West Temple street, the Standard Furniture company joining in the chorus.

Mr. and Mrs. Schneider were nice people. They landed in Salt Lake, dressed in goodly clothes, with their comely figures and impressive and suave manner set off to perfection. They wanted to settle in Salt Lake, the city of opportunity. So they secured from Mrs. Meyers her house at 161 West Fourth South street. But their roommates had not arrived. Would Mrs. Meyers identify them so they might cash a check for $20. As Mrs. Meyers desired $12 rent in advance, she would gladly accommodate the check for $20.

At the bank she was asked to endorse the check, which she did. Later it was returned to her, and $20 collected from her. As the Schneiders had kindly paid the month's rent of $12 in advance, she is only $3 out.

Then this charming couple lied themselves to the Standard Furniture company. They bought $90 worth of goods, cashed the check for $40 which the manager obligingly presented them with. Not to be outdone in courtesy, they returned him $20, as part payment on the furniture.

The Schneiders have gone. Mrs. Meyers mourns her loss, and the loss of $38. The Standard Furniture company had $20 paid as first installment on their furniture, and though they have recovered their goods, they long for the other $20.

AMUSEMENTS

Orpheum—Patrons of vaudeville will find a bill of artistic merit waiting them at the Orpheum this week. There is no disparagement to the Finney Sisters—billed—and worthily too—as "Head Liners," to state that there are several acts on this week's bill that are fully entitled to that distinction.

Wentworth & Vesta open the evening's performance with a tumbling act of the acrobatic type. A clever little dog contributing to an inconsiderable portion to the success of this act.

The Brahams, with their unique photographs, have devised a form of entertainment entirely new to vaudeville. The view of the East river and Brooklyn bridge at night, with the lights of the great city twinkling in the distance, and the reproduction in miniature of the famous battle between the Monitor and the Merrimack in Hampton Roads being introduced. Mildred Moreton, as "The Belle of the Season" presents a winsome picture, and renders several vocal numbers in a pleasing manner.

Clown Zerkho, and his kennel of dogs, contribute what is by far and away one of the best animal acts that has appeared here in a long time. The act will surely draw heavily from the juvenile part of the community during the week.

The only sketch on the bill is a burlesque in which six people are employed, perhaps these people need employment—suffice it to say that the audience universally concluded that the sketch was rightly named "Winning the Wind."

"Cool it Out" Peter Donald and his beautiful wife are a team of which the Scotch people are justly proud. The intrepid drollery of the man supplemented by a splendid tenor voice and a deft pair of feet, and the winsomeness and grace of the woman make up an act that is worth while of "The Mermaids."

Maud and Gladys Finney, it is sufficient to say that they fully merit the distinction given them as headliners. Blessed with perfect form and features, with a smile that is at all times infectious, they disport in a small glass tank of water in a way that little short of marvelous.

The kinodrome presents an interesting and instructive series of pictures showing the different stages of the water industry and this with the well established standard of the Orpheum orchestra makes up a good evening's entertainment.

Shubert—"My Wife's Family," the musical skit being presented this week at the Shubert is one of the liveliest shows of the kind which has been presented in this city for some time. It is a light story on which are hung numerous catchy songs, the kind of rollicking songs which seem to be the popular demand of the day by a civilization gone mad in a rush for wealth, and which occasionally desires an hour of relaxation. Charlie Kelly, as the man with too much money-in-law, was unusually funny. Jack Curtis, Henry Auerbach, Lillian Sutherland, Maybelle Baker and Anna Clark carried off their various stunts to the entire satisfaction of the audience. "Jack and Jill" by Miss Baker and the entire company was a feature which delighted the audience. Miss Southernland's "Trust Me, Honey" anywhere, but I like to stick around," tells the story of the playlet.

Moving Pictures—At the Luna and Isis theaters two big programs of excellent motion pictures are on in full swing and the bills contain more novelty in comedy, drama and instructive films than can be found elsewhere. "Under Both Flags" at the Luna and "Betty As an Errand Girl" at the Isis are among the most popular films.

Announcement of the tabernacle organ recitals at noon, which have not only survived the hot weather, but are constantly increasing in popularity.

"But I know nothing at all about music!" she exclaimed. "That is just the point. You have here in these daily recitals the best chance in the world to become familiar with the best in music. That in itself is a musical education."

Word has been received from Miss Linda Jessup that the summer school of Hickory is closed and the young Salt Lakers who have been combining education and pleasure there, are preparing to return home.

At the same time those who have been spending their vacations here with relatives and friends are preparing for the exodus to eastern colleges. Several young society buds have expressed their intention of entering Columbia.

Mr. J. Langford, Breckenridge entertained at a bridge luncheon this afternoon for her cousin, Miss Dryer of Indianapolis, who is her guest. Sunflowers and goldfish were used in the utmost profusion giving a wonderfully rich effect in gold and brown.

Miss Margaret Richmond entertained informally this morning at bridge, followed by a luncheon for her school friend, Miss Eva Larrabee, of Deer Lodge, Mont.

Last week, in Reno, Nev., Mrs. Ella McDowell Leonard and William McBride of Chicago were married. Mrs. McBride is the daughter of former Judge and Mrs. Samuel McDowell for some time prominent Salt Lakers. Mr. and Mrs. McBride left for Chicago, where they will make their home, visiting en route in Salt Lake and Denver.

St. Mary's cathedral choir day will be observed Thursday, Aug. 11, at Saltair, under the direction of the St. Cecilia choir for the day. The St. Mary's choir, the members of the Junior choir and St. Cecilia chorus will be the guests of Rt. Rev. Bishop Laurence Scanlon, and the most prominent Salt Lakers. Mr. and Mrs. McBride will also be his guests at a banquet in the evening at 8:30. The children of St. Ann's orphanage will be the guests of Manager J. E. Langford for the day. The parishioners of the cathedral will provide luncheon and supper for the children during the day and early evening. The program will be in charge of Miss Nora Gleason, when the pretty little operetta "Dreamland" will be repeated at 4 and 8 p.m.

Miss Nora Sheekel, assisted by her brother, T. O. Sheekel, will entertain at a bridge party this evening in honor of Miss Hilda Greeson and Mr. Coppock. Thursday night, Miss Greeson, who is having a party at her home, will be the guests of her bridal party, will be the guests of Miss Gladys Richmond at a bridge party.

Mrs. Wilford Moyle entertained the members of her card club at a luncheon at her home today. Goldinglow was arranged on the table with most artistic effect, while dainty place cards with hand painted designs of the same flower cleverly carried out the same idea. Covers were laid for 10.

A unique and delightful affair was the Dutch lunch given Monday night by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Maus for Mrs. Paul Luff of Denver, and Miss Mildred Maus of St. Louis, who are visitors in the city. The menu was a treat which the delicious lunch and social chat were enjoyed.

The Sewing club will meet Friday afternoon with Miss Mame Sappington.

Mrs. J. E. Langford and daughters, the Misses Nell, Stella and Florence, accompanied by Miss Ivy Burton, came home Sunday evening after a visit of several weeks in Los Angeles, Ocean Park and surrounding beaches.

Lester Freed has rejoined the Le Grand Young party in Weber canyon.

W. J. Haloran and daughter, Mary, have gone to New York.

Word comes that Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McCormick and Mrs. Galleher of Omaha have reached the Puget coast. They will go to Alaska by way of the inside channel which gives all the delights of an ocean voyage without the accompanying rough sea.

J. Will Gray has returned from an eastern trip.

Miss Margaret Bache, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. McGurra of the Bransford, left Sunday for Brimington, where she will visit at the Elmer E. Darling cottage for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Selen Shiro have gone on an extensive eastern trip which takes in the Thousand Island, New York City and the Atlantic coast.

Mr. William H. Conneligham will entertain Wednesday at the country club with a luncheon given in company with Mrs. Avery, guest of Mrs. A. C. Ewing, and Miss Pauline Terry, a guest at the L. L. Terry home.

Story of Success

GEORGE W. CHILDS. Not doing merely the work he was required to do but doing all he could and putting his whole heart into it were the traits of character that early ruled the life and endeavored of the great Philadelphia publisher, philanthropist, and millionaire George W. Childs.

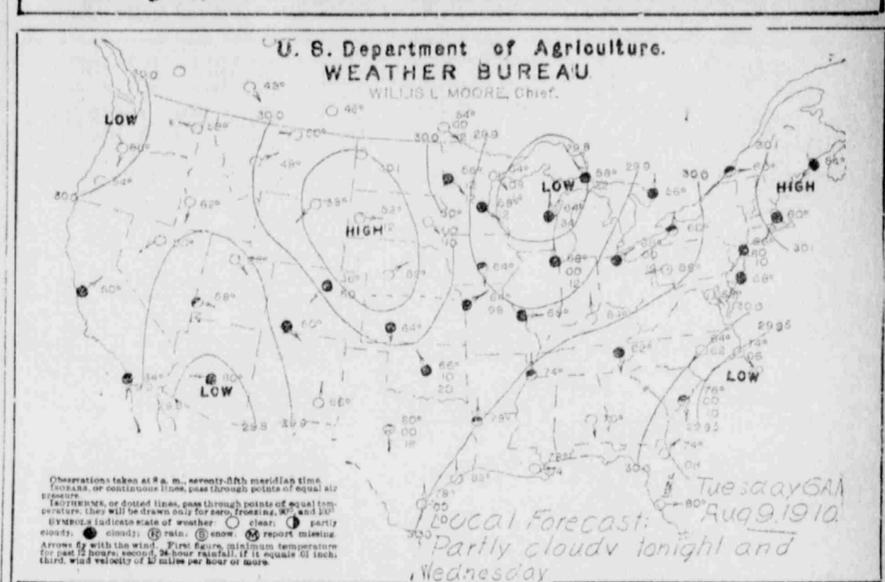

The first employment was in a book store, his income being only fifty cents a week more than his bare living.

He read good books, attended book sales, fixed his ambitions high so that sales at night to learn their market he might always be tending upward, and at the end of four years had saved enough to start a book store of his own.

Saving is a good habit. It is a habit that will grow upon you and will give you influence and prestige, but it may give you the decisive lift at the decisive time.

Pitiable Condition of Hopeless Morphine Fiend

Lying in a corner, in the city jail, moaning pitifully for a dose of "dope," William Smith, 74 years old, a resident of this city for 43 years, is but one of the many instances of the gradual decay caused by the use of morphine.

"Doctor," he cries as you enter the long cell where he and his companions in misery, in the shackles of the same thrill, are confined, "for the love of God, just one dose, just a smooch, please."

will give temporary relief. But one dose only calls for more. Jailer Gillespie is doing all he can for those people like Smith. The department treats these unfortunates kindly and consistently. Those in charge of this class dare not feed the disease. Hence they postpone. They give humane treatment, and occasionally small doses of strychnine to aid them. Once in a while when the ravages of the "dope" become too exacting, and there is grave danger of complete mental collapse, when these men that now have a semblance of mind left, may become mentally unsound, a small "shot" is given them. But they cry and beg for more.
