

FULFILLMENT OF ANCIENT PROPHECY

The Mission and Message of the Latter-day Saints.

ELDER H. J. CANNON SPEAKER

Reads From Scripture, Showing Passages Supporting Declaration Regarding Preaching Gospel.

The mission and message of the Latter-day Saints are the fulfillment of ancient prophecy, said Elder Hugh J. Cannon at the tabernacle yesterday afternoon.

President Anthon H. Lund presided over the services, which had an opening and closing exercises the rendition of two hymns and an anthem by the choir, with invocation and benediction by Elders Rodney C. Badger and Charles H. Hyde, respectively.

"The authority of the Lord and Master is upon earth, and a request from his servants on an occasion like this is equal to a command."

"Knowledge of God and his dealings with men comes from high. Peter's testimony of his Lord and Master did not spring from a human source."

"If there is efficacy in the life and death of the Son of God, men and women living today are as much entitled to a testimony as was the first apostle, for man's salvation now is as precious as in afore times."

"By obedience to the principles of righteousness mortals may and will attain to salvation. Christ suffered more than any other was ever called upon to undergo. He was a man of sorrows, and in a position to judge impartially his brethren in their trials and tribulations."

"The mission of preaching the doctrine of repentance has been placed upon the Latter-day Saints. This was as foretold in olden times. There is no desire on the part of this people to deceive any one. The promise is given that the speaker after truth may know for himself the plan of salvation."

"The elders of the Church are commanded to go out among all nations crying repentance and declaring that the time of the end is fast approaching. The message has gone to all tongues and people. A proclamation of Christ's coming would be hailed with joy by every Christian. If the message were believed in its true import, however disbelieved, the promise of a millennial reign is God-given, and it matters but little to the faithful when or how fulfillment will come."

"The gospel of the kingdom must of necessity be preached throughout the nations; not to compel fear, but to produce hope and faith in the human heart; to appeal to the best that is in the soul."

"There is happiness in doing good and seeking good, and in these only can peace and comfort be found."

"It is contrary to the divine plan that man should be compelled to accept salvation. Each has his agency to obey or disobey, and he is accountable should the choice be contrary to righteousness. The same rule applies to every mortal, great or small."

"The thought of the promise is a comfort to the hungry seeker after truth and knowledge, hampered now on every hand. Obstacles encountered here will have no existence in the eternal world, and the march of progress will go on forever."

"The claim that false Christs have arisen and others shall arise does not detract from the promise, for the King of kings and Lord of lords, to bear righteous sway over the earth and its inhabitants."

GOING AFTER SALOONS.

Council Wants to Even Up Election Tactics.

While it is hardly possible the question of saloon regulation can be ignored at tonight's session of the city council it is not probable that definite action will be taken on the matter. This session has been held up at several recent meetings of the councilmanic body and was given over to the municipal laws committee. A report will be called for tonight.

Saloon men are imploring the councilmen for time, declaring the matter will doubtless come up during the coming session of the legislature and urging the council to keep its hands clear of the proposition. American councilmen, however, have an idea they want to mix in the matter of squaring American accounts with the liquor dealer because of the latter's failure to "come through" to the American campaign fund at the time of dire need during the last campaign.

City Atty. Dinwidy will ask the council to take action looking toward the enforcement of the smoke ordinance and since the matter has no opposition, the city attorney will receive some definite response to his request that the ordinance be made again operative.

INSURRECTOS MOVING NORTH

Madero's Forces Headed Toward Colonia Juarez, According To Dispatches.

ARMED WITH WINCHESTERS

A. W. Ivins Says Mormons Will Fight For Mexican Government—Colonies in Fight Zone.

Regarding the dispatches from the Mexican frontier to the effect that the Insurrectos had fought a battle Wednesday in the vicinity of the Mormon colonies, and that the colonists were arming themselves in preparation to repulse an attack, if any were made, Elder A. W. Ivins, who expects to leave for Mexico early this week, said there was no doubt of the fact. The fight is reported to have taken place at Managua, 125 miles south of Nueva Casas Grandes, in Chihuahua, and two Insurrectos were reported killed and a number of police and Insurrectos wounded. The dispatch further said that 200 Insurrectos, who started to clean up Managua Wednesday, are now reported to be within 50 miles of Casas Grandes and headed for Colonia Juarez. A telephone message from Juarez said that everyone was heavily armed, and the Mormons were prepared to protect their town.

MORMONS WELL ARMED. "All the Mormons are well armed," said Elder Ivins this morning. "They are provided with 30-30 Winchester rifles, and have plenty of ammunition. They will fight for the government and against the Insurrectos. The Insurrectos are composed mostly of Mexicans, or a mixture of Indian and Spanish blood, principally Indian. In Mexico there are no organized bodies of men, as in this country, but any citizen of the Mexican republic is liable to be called into service as citizen soldiers in time of war. The Mormons colonists will probably respond to such a call, and fight for the government."

MOVING NORTH. "Managua, where the fighting occurred, lies between the Mormon colonies and Guerrero, which was reported captured by the Insurrectos last week. Guerrero is about 200 miles south of Colonia Juarez, in Chihuahua, and is about 75 miles farther south than Madera, the other Chihuahua town reported to be under control of the Insurrectos. The country is somewhat sparsely settled in the northern part of Chihuahua, but it appears from the dispatch that the Insurrectos are dreaded by the Insurrectos, and it is entirely likely that they will attack the Mormon colonies. If they do, they will meet with a warm reception, for the Mormons are able to defend themselves."

AMUSEMENTS

The Russian Dancers—The great troupe of Russian Dancers, which is headed by the Russian dancer, is in the city. The Republican of that city gives them a column notice, in which it says:

"Anna Pavlova and Mikail Mordkin danced last night at the Auditorium. There is the simple fact. Adjectives in the positive seem cold and inefficient; in the superlative they evade the issue by suggesting comparisons that cannot properly be made. For example, it may be said that she is graceful; that she is lovely. But to say that is not to distinguish her as she must be distinguished above all other dancers. Denver has seen. A more appropriate expression of the truth might be to say that she is grace and loveliness and poetry and music."

The advance sale is now on. Theater—"Polly of the Circus" comes to the Theater next Monday night, instead of this evening, as had been erroneously announced.

Colonial—The advance sale is now going on for the big comedy Wednesday night, to be given at the Auditorium. The Nazimova engagement opens Thursday evening.

Orpheum—The new bill of the week will be seven nights with Denver headlines as printed in last Saturday's News. Last week's big business record is expected to be duplicated.

Garrick—This week's offering by the Ingersoll company is "The Woman in the Case," a play in which Blanche Walsh made so great a success here a few years ago.

RACING WITH THE WEATHER.

P. J. Moran Rinsing Work on New High Line.

Racing with severe weather, P. J. Moran has more than half a thousand laborers scattered throughout City Creek canyon excavating for the new high line water pipe in an effort to complete it before the first of the year. Delivery has begun on the pipe ordered for the high line, and with this Mr. Moran expresses himself an confident the work can be accomplished in that time.

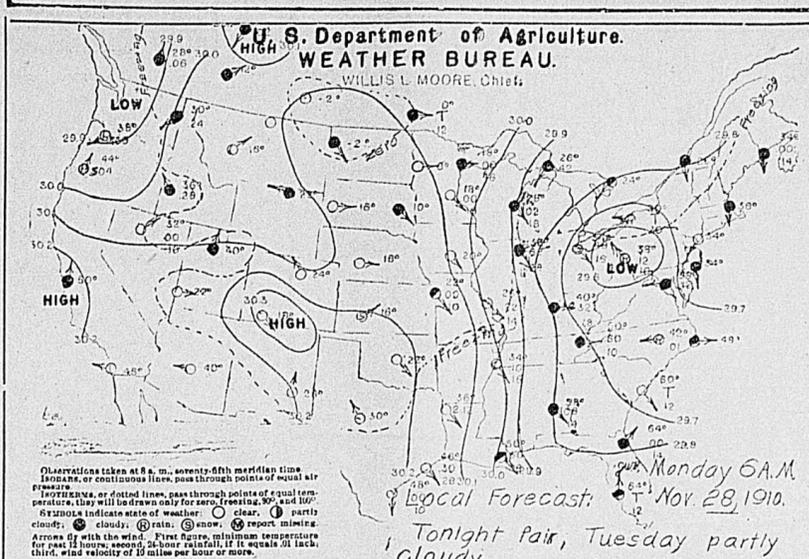

The settling tank, five miles up the canyon, from which the high line will lead, is on a level fully 1,600 feet above the level of Main and South Temple streets. This will afford sufficient pressure to reach the highest houses on the bench.

Upon the completion of the trench, a caretaker's house will be built at the settling tank, and the high line will be modern and will be built after the style of a two-family house, to house the two shifts of employees at the basin.

PRESS CLUB SHOW.

The Salt Lake Press club is planning one of their old time high class shows this winter. A meeting held yesterday afternoon at which the affair was discussed, promises that the show will rank with the ones of the past when those in attendance and those in the cast had a good time, and everybody realized that when the Salt Lake

Today's Weather Chart for United States

For Salt Lake City and vicinity: Tonight, fair; Tuesday, partly cloudy. For Utah: Tonight, fair, warmer south portion; Tuesday partly cloudy.

WEATHER SUMMARY. Since Saturday the western storm has moved to the east considerably and now lies central over western Pennsylvania. This storm has caused general rains east of the Mississippi river, which were especially heavy at Green Bay, Wis., Louisville, Ky., and at several stations in the south. The pressure is now moderately high throughout the west except in Oregon and Washington, the weather in which states is stormy with high temperatures. In most states west of the Mississippi river, however, the temperatures are below normal with generally fair weather.

Tonight will be fair, but on the approach of the northwest low the weather will become partly cloudy.

COMPARATIVE DATA FOR SALT LAKE CITY. The highest temperature yesterday was 41 degrees; the mean was 34, which is 2 degrees below normal. The lowest last night was 49 degrees. The temperature record for this month to date shows an accumulated excess of 199 degrees, and for the year of 823 degrees. The total precipitation for this month was .98 inch which is .30 inch below normal. The relative humidity at 6 p.m. yesterday was 43 per cent, and this morning at the same time was 47 per cent.

DEATH OF YOUNG DOCTOR.

Typhoid Claims Dr. Granville H. Todd Of Rockland, Idaho.

Dr. Granville Harry Todd, aged 30 years, a practitioner of Rockland, Idaho, died after a siege of typhoid fever at the Dr. W. H. Groves Latter-day Saints Hospital last night at 7:30 o'clock. The disease which resulted in his death was contracted six weeks ago, and three weeks ago he was thought well on the road to recovery, and it was hoped that he could leave his bed in a day or two, but his fever became suddenly violent, and his doctors advised that he be brought to Salt Lake. Mrs. Todd accompanied her husband and was at his bedside at the time of his death.

The deceased was born at Sterling, Ohio, July 1, 1880, securing his doctor of medicine degree at the Sterling medical college. In July of this year he moved with his wife to Rockland, Idaho, where he has since been practicing. He leaves, besides his wife, a mother and father at Leipzig, Ohio.

HIGH JINKS A SUCCESS.

Saturday Night's Affair at Commercial Club Much Enjoyed.

The Salt Lake Commercial club's smoker which was given to the members Saturday night was a big success, vaudeville entertainers and opera company stars assisting in making the occasion one to be remembered. The program committee provided many pleasing surprises when Bessie Clifford and the Yama Yama girls of the "Three Twins" company were introduced after the show at the Salt Lake Theater and they sang some of their classiest songs and did several clever dances. Howard and Howard, headliners at the Orpheum, also appeared in their sketch and Victor Morley also delighted the crowd with his vaudeville turn. Charles E. Blesner, black face comedian, joked with the members and he was followed by Lucy Lauler and Charles Ellsworth, a comedy song and dance team.

The club was thrown open to the members at 7 o'clock Saturday evening and they enjoyed themselves until midnight. The main dining room was turned into a theater and a temporary stage was erected for the occasion. The committee's hope of getting the club members out to one big entertainment after weeks of hard work was realized and no complaints were made either by the members or the committee.

The "smoker" committee was composed of W. H. Shearman, Dr. Ned Howett, vice chairman; J. H. Anson, F. C. Barnes, G. C. Charlton, James B. Ceell, R. L. Conley, M. H. Desky, J. H. Deming, W. H. Frazer, Ernest Gayford, Dr. J. N. Harrison, Dr. Ned Howett, Dr. J. T. Kelth, Harold Lamb, Don R. Lewis, A. W. Long, Frank A. Lowe, H. A. McCornick, R. McKenzie, W. S. Zehring, Theo. S. Atrom, B. P. Ott, L. C. Ritter, Sig. S. B. Titcomb, F. A. Timby, J. M. Wilby, William Bowen, F. G. Brooks, A. K. Tierman, Joy H. Johnson, president; J. E. Caine, secretary.

The sub-committee on the program consisted of W. H. Shearman, Dr. Ned Howett and W. S. Zehring.

HEALTH AND INCOME.

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food. Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money. With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset. "I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding-house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time."

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts food, which I did, making it a large part of at least two meals a day."

"Today, I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an over-worked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income."

Ibsen Owes His Vogue to Actresses.

EVERY well-known writer in commenting upon the present vogue of Henrik Ibsen, declared recently, "Ibsen owes more to the women of the stage than any other writer."

A moment's reflection brings forth the truth of the statement. There is no record, either in this country or in Europe of the male star who has succeeded in popularizing an Ibsen play. On the other hand there are scores of actresses who have won success in Ibsen roles, and it is to stars like Nazimova, Mrs. Fiske, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Duse and Agnes Sorma that the Norwegian poet owes to a large degree his present popularity in America, England, Italy and Germany.

The explanation of this is quite simple. Ibsen writes of women, about women, for women. He has made the character of women his special study, and his best character-drawings are of that sex. "Peer Gynt," and Richard Mansfield might be cited as exceptions to this rule, but even Mansfield's greatest admirers will not assert that he ever succeeded in popularizing the Norwegian writer's works, or that his masterly interpretation of the role was as good as compared with Nazimova's Nora, Mrs. Campbell's or Duse's Hedda. Those who went, went to see Mansfield, not to see Peer Gynt.

Some seven or eight years ago Wilton Lackaye, a good actor, tempted the fates in New York with a production of Ibsen's "Pillars of Society." It achieved a lamentable failure. The affair is a joke on Broadway to this day. Justification for the mirth, however, by no means deterred managers with an eye to the future, and they are now commercial intelligence to essay the Ibsen social drama, under which category "Peer Gynt" cannot, of course, be rated once more. The results have been actual "hits" of the season, and Ibsen social drama, under which category "Peer Gynt" cannot, of course, be rated once more.

The success of Madame Nazimova with "A Doll's House," Hedda Gabler and "Little Eyolf" was surely based on something more than mere personification. Even "The Master Builder," most cryptic and baffling drama in the entire Ibsen "theater," was played by Nazimova to a crowded and interested audience.

In her day and language Agnes Sorma was unquestionably the greatest of all Ibsen interpreters. Ibsen himself, after witnessing a performance, declared her the greatest he had ever seen. She has now married and retired from the stage with a title—Duchess of Altona—and is living in Berlin.

Sorma was born in Breslau, Germany, May 17th, 1865. She made her first appearance on the stage when only 15 years old at her native town. It was a few years later that she achieved her first great success in 1889, and went on an important tour through the principal towns of Holland, Norway, Sweden, Russia and Greece, with a repertoire of Ibsen plays.

When asked in regard to Utah's exhibit at the show, he said that it far exceeded his expectations, Utah being well to the front. While her goods are neatly displayed, they are not exaggerated. He is well pleased with the good work that the Utah representatives are doing. Accompanying Gov. Spry are J.
