

CARPENTER KILLED BY HIGH VOLTAGE

Two Other Workmen Burned by Rampant Current This Morning.

ONE MAY NOT SURVIVE

Steel Pipe Fell Across High Tension Wires at Service Plant for Church Buildings.

Parley P. Pratt, a carpenter working on the new power plant for the Hotel Utah, which is located between West Temple street and First West, just west of the temple block, was almost instantly electrocuted shortly before noon today when a large steel cement pipe he and others were placing on the roof of the building fell across a high voltage wire of the Utah Light & Rail-way company that ran alongside of the building.

Cecil Matthews, a carpenter's helper whose address is unknown, was badly shocked and is in such a condition that his recovery is doubtful. He was taken to the Holy Cross hospital.

W. M. Cole, a laborer at the building, was badly burned and went to the hospital with Dr. H. A. Hosmer, who was called just after the accident.

Many of the other workmen assisting in the placing of the heavy pipe were not shocked by the terrible voltage that went coursing through it as it met the wire is wondered at by all those on the building at the time.

For nearly an hour the injured men lay on the roof of the building which is high above the ground. The work is in charge of the Trent Engineering company, who are the contractors for the building, and W. I. Powell, the time-keeper for the company, seems to have been the only one in charge at the time.

POLICE ON THE SCENE.

When the police arrived, Patrolmen Phillips, Armstrong, Eckstead and Giles did noble work in bringing the men to the ground. Pratt was still alive a few minutes after the accident, and Dr. Hosmer stated that had his fellow workmen possessed presence of mind enough to direct the workmen to keep up respiration artificially, his life might have been saved.

When the four policemen arrived on foot, the men were still on top of the roof and no attempt had even been made to get medical attendance. Officer Phillips immediately telephoned for the police and the work of rescuing the injured and dead men from the roof of the building began.

Officer Armstrong took off his coat and went to the rescue of the injured while Phillips directed the work from below. A scaffolding was made and the body of Pratt was the first to reach the ground. Dr. Hosmer examined it at once and pronounced life extinct.

In a few minutes more Cole and Matthews were back on the ground and being rushed to the hospital. Matthews is only shocked but so that he could not move a muscle. Cole is badly burned about the hands and arms where he came in contact with the charged pipe.

FELL ACROSS WIRES.

The pipe that the men were placing is about 16 inches in circumference. It was being hoisted by a crane which could be run into a form near the edge of the building, when it slipped from the ropes that held it and came across the high voltage wires. There was a sharp flash and a small burning flash and Pratt was seen to drop back on the floor. The other men also fell.

Timekeeper Powell rushed up the ladder and everybody became excited. Pratt never uttered a word after the accident happened. The other workmen removed the pipe from the wires and several of them received minor shocks in doing so. Then the police came, and the work of rescuing the injured from the roof of the building began.

Several thousand volts of electricity must have shot through the pipe as it touched the wires because the body of Pratt does not show even a burn.

Pratt is married and has a family. He was about 40 years of age. He lived with his wife and three children at 230 north Third West street. He was a member of Local 184 Brotherhood of Carpenters. Business Agent Wilkes of the local notified Mrs. Pratt of the death of her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were former students of Verml.

TO REMOVE GREAT POLES.

Telephone Company Relocating Trunk Line on Second West Street.

The Bell Telephone company is planning to remove the great poles on Second West street, as soon as the telephone trunk line there has been relocated. To accomplish this, the company is laying conduits on north State and North Temple streets to the junction of Main and Center streets, where the north bound toll lines will be transferred to run out on the latter thoroughfare instead of as at present, on Second West street. If this street is asphalted before the telephone company is ready to remove its poles, these will be sawn off at the pavement line and the holes filled with asphalt by the company. Contractor Moran is "making hay while the sun shines"; in fact, pushing the paving so rapidly, that if the present stress of "Texas winter weather" keeps up, the entire street from Third South to Warm Springs will be completed before the public realizes it.

MURDERED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT IN NEW YORK

Four Men Walking Along a Harlem Street, One Dropped Behind Street One, Then All Three Fled.

New York, Nov. 29.—One of a group of four well dressed men, apparently an American, was shot dead as he was walking along a Harlem street early today. According to the only known witness of the shooting, an occupant of a nearby apartment house on Manhattan street from which the group had just emerged, the man was shot by one of his companions. Vincent Blondo, the man who saw the tragic happening, says that one member of the party dropped to the rear of the others as they were walking along the street. There was a flash, a shot, and one of the men in the group fell to the ground. The others leaped over the fallen man an instant and then ran off. A policeman and an ambulance surgeon who were summoned found the man dead.

There was nothing about the murdered man to identify him. His clothing was of good quality and the softness of his hands indicated that he was unused to hard work. The label of a Broadway clothier on his coat gave the police their only clue to work upon.

The authorities have instituted a widespread search for the dead man's companions.

The man was identified later as John Nicholas Korner, a resident of the middle west side.

DETROIT WOOL RATES ARE NOT DISCRIMINATORY

Washington, Nov. 29.—Denying a petition for establishment of a stop off privilege in wool at Detroit the interstate commerce commission today announced that it has found that the present blanket rate of 20 cents to 100 cents on wool "in the grease," applying from Chicago, Detroit and other points to Boston, was not unduly discriminatory or unreasonable as applied to Detroit. The stop off privilege sought was for the purpose of storing, grading and re-sacking.

The commission says the western carriers as a matter of policy give Omaha a certain privilege which the eastern roads deny to Detroit, injuring Detroit to some extent, but the commission adds that it is difficult to see how that can be remedied because the carrying lines are not the same and to uphold the Detroit claim would require a wide extension of the privilege to other points. The commission believes that such privileges should be curtailed because they are a source of an aggregating cause of many of the most serious complaints.

"I always enjoy going to Richmond," said the president. "They have a way of making you feel perfectly at home. And it is simply because they have the greatest respect for the presidency and the man who happens for the time being to fill the office. There is not a bit of politics in the reception they give you. I know this absolutely."

In substantiation of this, Mr. Taft then proceeded to relate a story told him by Maj. J. C. Semphill, formerly editor of the Charleston News and Courier, but now editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Democratic guest at the Taft luncheon sitting next to the major became enthusiastic about the president.

"Taft is simply a bully fellow," declared the guest. "He is the kind of a man you love."

"You bet he is," remarked the major. "But, by the way, are you going to vote for him next time?"

"Vote for him? Vote for him?" exclaimed the astonished luncheon guest. "I'd see him in h—l first."

New York, Nov. 29.—Four times removed to a hospital in 24 hours is the record of Max Selter, a Harlem butcher, who has just established a new record. Selter declared to remain at the hospital but on his way home he fell against a railing and was again picked up unconscious and taken to the hospital. This time an attendant accompanied him when he left for home, but on the way he fell, collapsed and was rushed back for further treatment.

After two hours' rest he was taken home and the hospital physicians supposed they had seen the last of him. But eight hours later there came an ambulance call from a police box a dozen blocks from Selter's home and the attending came in with Selter again. Believing his injuries trivial he had left his home for his private business at his customary hour and on the way had taken a header. The fractured bones were reset and the lacerated hands again bandaged. This time the patient was detained for treatment.

Mr. Atwater, born in this state, at the age of 16 enlisted for the war with the first squadron Connecticut cavalry and later served with Harry's light cavalry of New York. He was taken prisoner in February, 1864, and sent to Andersonville prison, where he was detailed as clerk to make a record for the prisoners of the deaths among the federal prisoners. Suspecting that the list as compiled by him was not being sent to the government, Mr. Atwater made a duplicate of the list given the prison authorities, keeping it from their knowledge.

His list contained some 13,000 names. When in 1865 he was sent to the parole camp at Annapolis, he carried the list with him, secreted in the lining of his coat.

The question of the ownership of the list caused considerable litigation. But recently recognition of his services was given Mr. Atwater by the government.
