

PLANS FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Education Decides to Hold Competitive Contest For Utah Architects.

PLUM WORTH WORKING FOR

Successful Plans to Drive Five Per Cent of Cost of Building—Consolation Prizes.

Consulting Architect W. B. Ittner of St. Louis, who has been employed by the board of education to draw up a program of specifications to which plans for the new high school building must conform, met with the board last night in the office of that body in the city and county building to discuss his ideas of the style of architecture demanded by the location chosen for the institution and of the features which should be incorporated in the building.

The plan of the school board is to hold a competitive contest, in which all Utah architects are eligible. To make the plum well worth knocking down, 5 per cent of the entire cost of the building will be paid to the architect who furnishes the plans for the structure. Since it is planned to spend $500,000 in its construction, competition for the job will doubtless be strenuous. The drawings to be submitted to the board are not for the choice of a set of plans, but to determine the architect best equipped to draw the plans for the board. After this choice has been made he will then be assigned to draw the permanent plans.

CONSOLATION PRIZES.

Consolation prizes of $500, $200 and $200 will be awarded the second, third and fourth best.

The recommendations presented by Mr. Ittner were adopted by the board members of which have expressed themselves as highly pleased with his services thus far. The consulting architect will immediately formulate his program of specifications so they may be procured by all architects who desire to enter the competition.

DEATH OF MRS. J. A. JENNINGS.

Well Known Salt Lake Woman Dies in Los Angeles Hospital.

Word was received late last night that Mrs. Ella Louise Jennings, wife of Dr. Joseph A. Jennings, formerly of Salt Lake, died at the Clara Barton hospital in Los Angeles Tuesday. Owing to the ill health of Mrs. Jennings the family moved to Los Angeles a little over a year ago, where she was so much benefited by the climate that the family decided to make that city their home. Three weeks ago Mrs. Jennings came to Salt Lake to attend to household articles that she intended sending to Los Angeles, returning there after completing this errand. She was the daughter of the late H. C. Dinwoody, and besides her mother the following brothers and sisters survive her: H. M. Dinwoody, L. G. Dinwoody, Mrs. R. P. Morris, all of Salt Lake, and Mrs. T. Wright of Ogden. Her mother, Mrs. Annie Dinwoody, resides at Ogden with her daughter, Mrs. Wright.

The body will be brought to Salt Lake for burial. Besides her husband, Mrs. Jennings is survived by the following children: Devereaux, Clifford, Helen and Gordon Jennings. The family will leave Los Angeles Thursday with the body.

RETAIL DEALERS ORGANIZE.

To Wage War on Dishonest Clerks and Customers.

The Retail Business Men's association of Salt Lake was perfected last night at the Commercial club. H. W. Walker was elected president; Milton E. Lipman, vice president; W. O. Carls, secretary, and H. J. Wallace, treasurer.

Twenty-three prominent retail business men signed the charter membership and a campaign will be inaugurated against dishonest employees and customers who obtain credit who are not responsible. The association will meet once every month to discuss such matters and are beneficial to the retail men and their customers.

AMUSEMENTS

Theater—Salt Laker, who thought they had heard the last word uttered in the way of theatrical entertainment, had their eyes opened yesterday afternoon at the Salt Lake theater. Nothing as bewitching in its special line has ever been seen on those historic boards. Public interest had been whetted to the highest point by the announcement that the two great dancers, Anna Pavlova and Mikhail Mordkin, came with the stamp of the Imperial Opera House of St. Petersburg.

The entertainment they provided yesterday was a long one. The orchestra alone would be worth the price of admission, and when its music was played merely as the accompaniment to such dancing, pantomime in ballet, and such picture grouping, it afforded a sense of enjoyment little short of staggering. The entertainment was divided into three parts: First came the legend of Azyria, a lovely from the Arabian Nights. It was a 20-minute sketch all acted in dumb show and danced by the two stars with the corps of assisting artists.

Nothing more graceful could be imagined than the dancing of Pavlova, her wonderful pirouettes, poses, and leaps upon her toes. Equally striking was the Hunter's dance by Mr. Mordkin, executed to an orchestral number by Tschalkowski, in which the strings told out with exquisite effect. The third part was further miscellanies, the most marvelous of which was a dance accompaniment to Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2. The selection was beautifully played by the orchestra, and was as admirably danced by the two great solo dancers and the assisting artists, who in the meantime, executed by Pavlova and Mordkin in a dance duet, was so startling a reproduction of the old pictures and stately animated into life as to be breath-taking. The audience gave the dancers some tremendous rounds of applause, and it is safe to say that in spite of the heavy advance prices, no one went away who did not exhaust his store of adjectives trying to describe the sensations of the afternoon. The receipts must have reached a handsome figure, probably over $2,000. The company claims that it costs nearly $2,500 to put its entertainment upon the stage, and this total does not seem exaggerated in view of the number of secretaries, managing directors, treasurers, first assistant, minister plenipotentiaries, etc., which swarmed in the box office and around the figures over Manager Typner's shoulders as he cast them up.

tion was somewhat diverted from little Polly, by the extraordinary attraction which came in the theater appropriating dressing rooms, auditorium, and everything else yesterday afternoon, she will go merrily on her way from now on, pleasing a class of patronage to whom the Russian dancers were as so much Greek. Polly will be seen all the remainder of the week at the theater.

THEY GROW.

Good Humor and Cheerfulness from Right Food and Drink.

Anything that interferes with good health is apt to keep cheerfulness and good humor in the background. A Washington lady found that letting coffee alone made things bright for her. She writes:

"Four years ago I was practically given up by my doctor and was not expected to live long. My nervous system was in a bad condition. 'But I was young and did not want to die so I began to look about for the cause of my chronic trouble. I used to have nervous spells which would exhaust me and after each spell it would take me days before I could sit up in a chair. 'I became convinced my trouble was caused by coffee. I decided to stop it and bought some Postum. 'The first cup, which I made according to directions, had a soothing effect on my nerves and I liked the taste. For a time I nearly lived on Postum and ate little food besides. I am today a healthy woman. 'My family and relatives wonder if I am the same person I was four weeks ago, when I could do no work on account of nervousness. Now I am doing my own housework, take care of two babies—one twenty and other two months old. I am so busy that I hardly get time to write a letter, yet I do it all with the cheerfulness and good humor that comes from enjoying good health. 'I tell my friends it is to Postum I owe my life today. 'Read "The Road to Wellville," in pipes, "There's a Reason." 'Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest."

Mr. Harwood was credited with being a member of this committee. In calling attention to the error, Mr. Harwood said to The News: "While I am not a member of the hanging committee, I am very sorry, indeed, to see that there has arisen this unpleasantness on the part of our Utah artists. I think written notices should have been sent out in ample time to all artists of the state notifying them of the time and place of the exhibition and the conditions governing the competition. This would have avoided all unpleasantness. At the same time the members of the committee serve citizenship and perhaps we are expecting more of them than we should."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

One of the most artistic of the season's social events is the violet tea given this afternoon by Mrs. Walter M. Mans and Mrs. Henry Crowther, at the home of the former. The violet idea predominates in the decorations, the dining room being a picture in its blending of green and blue. The table has a Cluny lace cloth cover with green tulle, over which are strewn candied violets and the centerpieces are made of white and green streamers of green tulle extend to the four corners where are placed baskets of violets. A dome of violets surmounts the whole, and all details are done in the prevailing idea. The drawing room is another picture in yellow, its predominant tint, a profusion of yellow chrysanthemums being about, while the hostesses wear gowns of yellow satin, and corsage bouquets of violets. The reception room and hall are in snapdragons and ferns. Arriving during the afternoon are Mrs. Frank Knox, Mrs. Russell G. Schuller, Mrs. Wing B. Allen, Mrs. R. N. Campbell, and Mrs. Noble Warrum. In the dining room are the hostesses, Cosgriff, Aline Macdonald, Alice Felt, Frances Graham and Mercy Lewis.

Mrs. E. A. Wall entertained at luncheon at the Commercial club today, followed by a party at the Salt Lake theater, the table being laid in the gold room and decorated in yellow chrysanthemums. Tuesday afternoon the guests, chiefly members of the Utopia club.
