THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

In the prevention of the barbarous fight which had been arranged to be fought between a bear and a dog, the Humane Society, which was organized a few weeks ago, has made a good beginning.

ter will be brought to the attention of the legislature and the city government, and the needed legislation will be asked for. Having this given proof that the society is more than an organization on paper—that it is really in the field and at work under the disadvantages of the laws as they are at present—both bodies will be more readily grant the enactments desired so as to put the society in as good a position as possible to carry on its work.

WANAMAKER AND THE SAN FRANCISCANS.

The real estate sharks of San Francisco have found their full match in the person of Postmaster-General John Wanamaker. They tried wheedling and cajoling; most likely threw out pretty broad intimations of willingness to make an "arrangement," and all of these failing they resorted to sensational dispatches, addressed to New York papers, designed to intimidate and coerce him, which he has publicly and boldly given them to understand is equally futile.

DR. BROOKS' DETECTORS.

The unpleasant controversy over the confirmation of Bishop-elect Brooks as bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts, continues with a vigor that speaks ill for the spirit of his detractors. If there be any truth in the saying that the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church, this agitation will do more to strengthen the partisans of Dr. Brooks and his doctrines both in the church and with the people at large than anything else could. Dr. Brooks has borne himself with excellent discretion throughout, replying nothing to those who have imposed upon themselves the task of defeating his election. He has been plying with questions and pitilessly attacked by anonymous correspondents. As a preacher Dr. Brooks has no living superior, his life has been bishop-like, he is the most distinguished bishop-elect his church has ever had, he is among the foremost of living philanthropists and church workers in a comprehensive sense.

THE BACCARAT VERDICT.

As was foreseen, the verdict in the great English baccarat case has been for the defendants, and the conviction of Sir William Gordon-Cumming of cheating at cards. The finding of an English nobleman guilty of such an offense is however hardly a circumstance to the results of the trial in other respects. The future sovereign of the British nation has been shown to be a habitual gambler; and the counsel for plaintiff during the trial not only fearlessly rebuked the Prince of Wales as an interested party for being present on the trial, but attributed Sir William's signing of the document at Trumpy-Croft to his self-sacrificing desire to shield the Prince's habits from the people at large—a deed which his royal highness acquiesced in. The shock which this handling of royalty without gloves has caused in England cannot be appreciated in this country; but the British public has had the fact that their future sovereign has—as Sir Edward Clarke hinted in the trial—lost his reputation, forced upon it. Queen Victoria by the exercise of her womanly virtues has shielded the British from misgivings as to the moral fitness of their royal family to rule, so that the present shock is all the greater in England and cannot but have received a great impetus by the disclosures of the trial; and what is perhaps more important it has been given a dignity and respectability of which it has been comparatively lacking up to the present time.

THE SEATTLE PRESS.

Walla Walla Sunday Spectator: "Sunday must not be regarded as exclusively a day of religious meditation and devotion. Ecclesiastical authority as a whole does not require it; civil custom takes no cognizance of it. This view is held by a very small proportion of the religious, comprising not only the only the minor denominations of protestantism. The vast majority of both religious and secular, clergy and laity, do not coincide in this view. Sunday is the property of a day set apart for rest and recreation, is secondarily a day of rest and recreation."

A NEW INSECTICIDE.

From a Government Bulletin. Mr. C. G. Buxton, who has been acting as special agent of the Arkansas experiment station during the absence, through illness, of the entomologist, Mr. C. W. Woodworth, reports upon the action of some new insecticides on the cotton worm in bulletin No. 12 of that station. The substances experimented with were: Petroleum sludge, a kerosene extract of pyrethrum, mercuric chloride, oxalic acid, benzoic acid, mercuric chloride, tartaric acid, salicylic acid, cinchonin, bi-chloride of potash, heliobene, lead acetate, and veratrin. All of these substances except the tartaric acid were applied in powder in the proportion of one-fourth ounce to eight ounces of the insecticide to one pound of flour, and none of them proved effective against the caterpillar which acts both externally and internally and which, although used in the proportion of one-half pound to one pound of flour, proved nearly if not entirely equal to Paris green, costing about the same.

THE RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION.

Harper's Weekly. Public feeling in regard to stringent regulation of the immigration and naturalization of foreigners is the dominant feature of the political program for many years. The "Native American" excitement of forty years ago was due to a perception of tendencies which are now confirmed. But in fact the present immigration and political entrenchment were consequent upon the fact that while it is a matter which we have long had in mind and have suggested to some of our agents, Professor C. E. Gillette was the first to give it public mention, though his method of preparing it may differ in detail from that of Mr. Menke.

THE LITTLE ONES.

Ought to be considered. In the mysterious processes of nature, which are generalized in the term "growth," there is sometimes a demand on one part of the system at the expense of another. Some of the complications are beyond the reach of diagnostic observation. It is here that the Potency of S. S. S. makes itself felt. Rev. L. B. Payne, of Macon, Ga., writes: "I was afflicted with the Orphan's Plague as a remedy for blood complaints and as a general tonic, and have had remarkable results from its use with the children. It is such an excellent tonic and keeps the blood so pure that the system is less liable to disease. It has cured some of our children of scrofula."

influenza. Besides this, many children were suffering from diphtheria or whooping cough, and in some instances from both diseases. The gripe is also epidemic at Madeira Island. Hundreds of people are sick, and the cannery factories have been closed, as there is no one to run them.

North Bend News. NORTH BEND, June 8.—(Special).—Work is going on at the Denny Iron mines, and it will not be long until the railroad will be extended to that property. The town of North Bend is steadily improving and is one of the wholesomest places in the state. No other place can beat the Bend for rivers of pure snow water, bracing mountain air and delightful scenery from mountain and meadow.

Saturday night. The big hop ranch presents a magnificent sight in the way of hops. The vines have reached the tops of the poles, and the entire crop appears vigorous and thrifty.

All the fruit trees in the valley are loaded this year, and a bountiful yield is predicted. The big tree cut near here recently for the World's fair was 420 years old. This is a typical Columbian specimen. There are many trees in the neighborhood larger and older than the log taken, and it is fair to say that this special log is about an average of the first-class trees.

General Clarence M. Buell, a chemist, mining engineer and geologist, is visiting here, examining the mineral resources of this section. General Buell is a practical man and has had extensive experience in South America and elsewhere.

Senator Quay at the White House. WASHINGTON, June 8.—Senator Quay arrived in Washington last night, and accompanied by Martin and Judge Gilkerson, second controller, called on the president and had a long talk. To start with, he handed the president the resignation of Martin as collector at Philadelphia. He then talked with the president about his appointment in Washington. The only remark he made and it is expected he will be appointed. In that event Senator Quay will probably suggest someone for second controller.

Another California Murder. SANTA CRUZ, Cal., June 9.—Yesterday in East Santa Cruz Jesus Gonzales was shot through the town hall by the police. He was a Mexican. A week ago a woman who had lived with Gonzales for several years left him and went to the house of Bonito Amaya in Santa Cruz. The house of Amaya is in the city. He returned from an extended tour. He has just returned from the city. He has just returned from the city. He has just returned from the city.

A California Murderer Surrenders. MENDOCINO, Cal., June 9.—Jackson Roades, the slayer of School Teacher D. E. Schull at Cuffey's cove, May 20, has been lodged in jail at Ukiah. He came into Booneville late at night, and, finding some of his acquaintances, said he was tired, hungry and sleepy, and that he desired to give himself up. The only remark he made concerning the killing was: "It's strange what scrapes a man will get into." The feeling at the cove is intense against Roades, and it is feared that should he be brought there for a preliminary examination he will be lynched.
