

NOTHING DONE YET.

The Democratic Congress Carrying Out Its Programme.

SEVEN WEEKS OF IDLENESS.

Silver and Tariff Legislation Not Likely to Pass—Some Hope of Appropriation for Lake Washington Canal.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The do-nothing policy decided upon by the Democratic leaders in congress is being carried out to the letter. Nearly two months have lapsed and nothing tangible in legislation has been accomplished.

There will be some further bluster, of course, in amending the tariff law by Chairman Springer and the men who are always with him in preventing any important legislation, but it is not considered possible that any important changes in the provisions of the McKinley law will be made.

It is still believed that Chairman Holman, of the appropriations committee, will follow out his niggardly plan in preventing any appropriations being made for various improvements and measures of like local importance.

Those Republicans that expect nothing to be done at this session will, therefore, not be disappointed if the Democratic programme is carried out.

Politicians in both parties are paying so much attention to presidential politics that they neglect the duties of their office by the failure of being able to do anything for their constituents in legislative work.

THE COUNTRY NOT BANKRUPT.

Democrats Learn That the Receipts Exceed Expenditures.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 23.—By request of the ways and means committee, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Spaulding appeared before the committee today. The subject of the inquiry is to secure official information as to the revenues and expenditures of the government, as preliminary to any possible tariff legislation.

The total revenue receipts (estimated) for the current fiscal year were $282,000,000 against $460,079,000 for the fiscal year of 1890, and the actual receipts $17,151,000 less.

It is estimated that the receipts for the current fiscal year will be about $77,000,000 more than the expenditures for the corresponding six months.

The expenditures (estimated) for the current fiscal year were $282,000,000, or about $4,000,000 less than the estimated receipts.

ator David B. Hill calls the Sherman financial legislation, and a demand for the enactment of a bill for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. The people were said to be crying for these things; mortgages were piling up; the prices of the commodities of the farmers were going down, and there was ruin staring the country in the face if these great remedial Democratic measures were not at once enacted into law.

Now that the Democratic party with its majority of 150 or more, has been brought face to face with its responsibilities and the exigencies of a presidential campaign, the wiser heads in the party have discovered that the elections meant no such thing.

They have themselves created a sentiment of demand, if there be such a demand, and are now compelled in some way to answer. The party was divided between Crisp, who represented the conservative policy in dealing with the tariff; and Mills, who presented the Cleveland sentiment on the subject. Crisp triumphed; Mills is in the sulks, endeavoring to be returned to Washington City as a United States senator for a vindication; Cleveland is still writing letters; Mr. Springer is attending banquets; but the real policy of the Democratic party is not shaped by these men.

It is as clear as the sun at noonday that there is to be no legislation of a general character relative to the tariff or silver at this session of congress. Instead of proposing, as they should do, if they desire to act in good faith with the people, whom they claim to represent, and pressing for passage a tariff bill which would indicate squarely and manfully the Democratic position, it is proposed to introduce little tariff bills, half a dozen of them, dealing with separate articles, such as wool, salt, tin plate, cotton ties, bunding twine, etc.

It is not expected that these bills will pass, but they are good enough to hang Democratic speeches upon attacking the Republican position and legislation, and resulting in a derangement of values and uncertainty as to the future development of American manufactures.

They are a promise to the importer and the farmer for the future, and a threat to the manufacturer; they do nobody any good and they do infinite harm.

The same is true in regard to the free coinage of silver, to which the Democratic party is committed overwhelmingly by its votes in both houses of congress.

For a time it seemed as if there was no way out for them, but they have recently hit upon a scheme which will undoubtedly be adopted. They do not propose to offer or press for passage a free coinage bill. Instead, they adopt the recommendations of the Republican president, and the financial position of the Republican party in congress is the result of their proposal.

It is still believed that Chairman Holman, of the appropriations committee, will follow out his niggardly plan in preventing any appropriations being made for various improvements and measures of like local importance.

Those Republicans that expect nothing to be done at this session will, therefore, not be disappointed if the Democratic programme is carried out.

TRAIN ROBBER SLAIN.

Exciting Chase After Two Desperadoes in Kansas.

ONE MURDERS A POLICEMAN.

After Killing One Possessing Secures the Other—The Dead Bandit a Cousin of Gov. Francis, of Missouri.

LAMAR, Mo., Jan. 23.—The Missouri Pacific train which reached here at 12:30 this morning was boarded at Shelton by two men, who went to the express car and held up Express Messenger Houck, Baggage-master Hall and Passenger Agent Barrett, from whom money and jewelry were taken. Houck was surrendered to open the safe and a small amount of money was taken from it.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 23.—Soon after the robbery at Lamar a dispatch was received at Fort Scott to watch for the two men, stating that they left on a freight train for that place. Policeman McLemore saw the men get off a northbound freight train which arrived at Fort Scott this morning, and he hailed them. One of them shot him dead. As soon as they shot the policeman they jumped into an empty box-car of a freight train which was just pulling out, looking for the men. Shortly after a passenger train from Lamar arrived. Among the passengers was Detective Chester, of the Missouri Pacific, who was in pursuit of the bandits, accompanied by United States Marshal Mapes. Marshal Abbott, of Fort Scott, joined them, and the train started in pursuit of the freight. At Miami station the freight was overtaken and the officers boarded a car immediately behind the one in which the bandits had taken refuge. The latter immediately opened fire upon their pursuers. The officers returned the fire, and shots were continuously exchanged through the ends of the car the way to Harrisonville, five miles. Here a posse which had been summoned met the train, surrounded the car and called upon the fugitives to surrender. They replied by firing through the sides of the car. After exchanging shots for an hour one of the robbers was killed. The other was seriously wounded. He is seriously wounded, and gives the name of Charles Meyers, Kansas City, Kan. A reporter called at the house in Kansas City, Kan., where Meyers said he lived. Two women were found, one of whom said she was Meyers' wife and the other his mother. Asked what she expected they said he left last night with his brother-in-law, S. C. Francis, for Harrisonville, and was expected home tonight. The women were very nervous and reserved in answering questions, and made no comment when told of the robbery and wounding of Meyers and the killing of his companion, Mrs. Meyers said her husband had been running a "joint" or Kansas saloon. The police do not know him. It is supposed the dead robber is S. C. Francis.

The police of Kansas City, Kan., received a telegram tonight from Meyers, saying: "Tell my wife it is us; I am badly wounded." The "us" evidently included Francis. The latter and Meyers married sisters. Francis was a cousin of Governor Francis, whom he greatly resembled, and a nephew of Judge Cowan, of St. Louis. He was heir to an estate near Baltimore, bequeathed to him in trust by his father. Meyers is a son of a wealthy Missouri stockman.

He Loved Another Man's Wife. CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A young German, well dressed, registered Friday night at the Commercial hotel as Andrew Hoyer, Sacramento, Cal. Today he was found dead in bed, having suicided with a revolver. He left a letter warning men in general to beware of falling in love with other men's wives, which he said was his trouble. He bequeathed a gold watch and set rings to Emma Hoyer, 512 Elston avenue, Chicago. His wife called on her. She said he was a wild brother of her husband, who went West two years ago. He was a baker, always in trouble over love affairs, but wrote a short time ago that he had married in California. The reporter asked if Emma Hoyer was the other man's wife. Mrs. Hoyer said she was a wild brother of her husband, who went West two years ago. He was a baker, always in trouble over love affairs, but wrote a short time ago that he had married in California.

LIVED BY HIS WITS.

Swindling Operations of "Attorney" R. A. O'Neill.

IN SEATTLE AND TACOMA.

He Dearly Loved His Wife—Never Paid Any Bills, and Borrowed All the Money He Could.

R. A. O'Neill, a young man formerly of Seattle, has been found out in Tacoma, where he was less successful in swindling than he was in this city.

O'Neill is about 22 years of age, well built, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and has symptoms of a black mustache. He dresses well, talks cleverly and makes himself agreeable to the ladies.

On January 6 he presented himself at the Montello block, Tacoma, and engaged rooms. He would be joined in a few days by his wife, he said. A suite of rooms at $105 a month took his wife and he engaged them, promising to make a payment in a few days.

His baggage consisted of a valise. From the 6th to the 18th of January he busied himself in negotiating loans, securing money from a large number of persons, many of whom refuse to admit that they were taken in. His story was that he was about to open a law office, that he had been associated with Colonel J. C. Haines in Seattle, and had resided at the Vendome hotel while in this city.

Edwards of Tacoma was referred to as an old friend. O'Neill negotiated with Colonel W. H. Ellinger for the purchase of a certificate of life membership in the Law library, for which he was to pay $100. He had no funds at the time but would certainly have money by the 20th instant.

The colonel still owns the certificate. January 14 O'Neill was joined by his wife, and about the same time he was requested to pay his board bill. He informed the proprietors of the Montello house that he would surely receive money from his pa on January 20, and he asked for a few days grace once more. On January 18, the young man appeared to be very much distressed, and in reply to sympathetic inquiries he exhibited a telegram purporting to be from his wife's father, requesting her to meet him in Portland the following day. Late that evening O'Neill used the telephone in the house to call for a gunner. O'Neill went down stairs and bade Mrs. Heagy and a few other ladies goodbye. O'Neill stated that he was only going as far as the depot with his wife, and that he would be home as soon as he had seen her safely on the train. He carried two large valises. Subsequent developments showed that he had no other goods in the house. Since that time the couple have not been seen, and are supposed to be in Victoria. Before leaving the house O'Neill called on Dr. Grant S. Hicks, whose office is in the building, and borrowed $10. The board bill still remains unpaid. O'Neill is well remembered at the Vendome hotel, Seattle, where he remained a week, being ejected for non-payment of board. He asked and received permission to have a safe put in his room, and, indeed, purchased one from Charles Hill, who engaged John L. Kahaley to deliver it to O'Neill, C. G. D. Kahaley had an old coal bill against O'Neill, however, and refused to take the job. It is presumed the "attorney" thought the safe would impress his fellow-boarders with his wealth.

Mrs. O'Neill, who comes of a good family and whose parents live on Bellingham street, was not visible during her husband's stay at the Vendome, but the other guests are sure he loved her dearly, for he always said he did. One day, just after Christmas, he went down town and induced a Front street merchant to let him have a $24 umbrella "to show his wife," and he'd buy it for her if she liked it. The storekeeper insisted on a deposit of $2, and is glad he did, for he hasn't seen O'Neill or the umbrella since.

The young attorney used to borrow money and stand off creditors on the strength of a "big divorce suit" that he had on hand. He has no other means of support, it seems, than his wife. His largest creditor is Mrs. McDonald, of Third and Pike streets, who has a board bill of $115. He had a habit of ordering wearing apparel for his wife, ordering it to be sent to Mrs. McDonald's. After delivery of the goods it was found impossible to collect. R. Petkovits, the furrier, is said to be numbered among the mourners.

Disreputable Unknown Cuts up Sad Family at Vancouver, B. C. The Vancouver, B. C., World of January 20 tells the following story, but for some reason or other gives no names: Not long ago a young man came to this city from Seattle. He was hard up, very hard up, but he had a very ally tongue and soon wheeled his way into church and other circles. Through a connection thus established he got a situation and for a time did it very well. As soon as he became financially independent he began to put on airs, and his insatiable badness—which he had kept well hidden while he sought favors—now came to the surface. Finally he left the city in time to avoid appearing in the police court on a serious charge. A day or two ago the firm for which he had worked and a gentleman who had befriended him, received letters from a person in a city just across the border, who claimed that this fellow had stolen the affections of her blind daughter—and he has a clever tongue and a good command of honeyed phrases. The poor mother is apparently in a sad state of mind about it, and asks for particulars as to the fellow's actions here, so that she may, through unwise testimony, convince her daughter of the fellow's villainy. The letters have been answered. The blind girl must have money in her own right to furnish tail for the polished scoundrel.

AFTER ITALIAN DESERTERS. Warrants Issued for Three Seamen From the Riggio. O. G. Spencer, Italian consular agent at Seattle, applied to Commissioner Emery yesterday for warrants for the arrest of three deserters from the Italian ship Riggio at Tacoma. Commissioner Emery issued the warrants and they were placed in the hands of Deputy United States Marshal Bigelow for service. Mr. Bigelow left early in the afternoon for Tacoma.

According to the treaty between the United States and Italy this government agrees to deserters from Italian ships upon the request of a consular agent. Deputy United States Marshal Harry Bigelow returned to the city this morning at 1 o'clock with E. Revello, G. B. Faccini and Pietro Carpena, the deserters.

Deputy Bigelow, with the aid of Deputy McKay, of that city, made a thorough search of the Italian quarter of "Old Town." Friday the deserters were found stowed away in the loft of a cabin. Revello was the first mate of the vessel, and the other two men sailors. They will have a hearing before Commissioner Emery tomorrow morning.

A VERY LIVELY RUNAWAY. Frightened Horses, Their Wagon and a Buggy—A Picky Driver. An exciting runaway occurred on Yester avenue yesterday afternoon and several persons narrowly escaped serious injury. A delivery team belonging to N. A. Sanborn & Co., commission merchants, which was standing near the Yester avenue turntable, at the end of South Second street, took fright at a street car and started down Yester avenue at a terrific gait. The driver tried to stop the frightened horses, but he was powerless. He stumbled and fell and was dragged quite a distance before he let go of the reins.

As usual, Pioneer place was crowded with pedestrians. They were scattered
