

BOODLE IN TACOMA.

Charges Against Five Councilmen and a Newspaper.

INDIANS ENJOY CITIZENSHIP.

Umattilas Got All the Whiskey They Wish—More Whaleships to Be Built at Everett.

The Tacoma Ledger of Sunday morning makes sensational charges against certain city councilmen and the Tacoma Evening News. The Ledger says: "Messrs. Lister and Hartman, members of the finance committee of the council, have had printed a card in which they pretend to deny rumors and insinuations that have been made during the past few days regarding the finance committee of the city council. As a matter of fact, however, they were endeavoring to keep very few people in the dark, as it was signed by only two of the five members of the committee, and for other reasons, it is worthy of a monthly airing."

"These two of the five members of the committee take pains to say that they have not at any time received any money in the shape of a monthly allowance, or otherwise, in payment for services rendered to any banks holding city funds, and that, as members of the city finance committee, they are not associated with any citizen or associations of citizens, or by the city council, and demand that any person or persons claiming to hold any proof of such payments should be made, that they present such proof to the city council so that an investigation may be made by that body."

"If an investigation is to be made it ought to be made by some more competent authority than that of the present city council. The information upon which the Ledger is based is not to be based upon any means to be submitted to the council. Let a special grand jury be called if an investigation is sought that will really amount to something, and let the evidence, whatever it may be, be submitted to it. Let the jury call the officers of the banks and compel them to disclose whether they were receiving money from them on account of their indebtedness to the city, and on what pretense. It will be found that not only members of the finance committee, but also, as well, have been after them, and with more or less success. Let the jury demand the agreement that was made between the finance committee and the banks, and make it public. The public is a party in interest, and has a right to know how it was represented when the agreement was made. If there shall seem to be a want of confidence in the one side let the jury seek information from the city controller, the city treasurer, and the mayor, all of whom were in the room near the transaction at the time it was made to know, or to think they knew how the members of the finance committee employed by the banks, had the jury find out from the treasurer how many members of this committee have applied to him for loans from the public funds, how many of those loans were obtained illegally and the possibility of making the demands have been pressed, notwithstanding John explain, or make him explain how he has complied with these demands, if he has complied with them. He will know whether or not it is true that the banks which were to have paid the city interest on the bonds, had the members of this finance committee had kept the pledges made to the people when they were elected, now pay him a certain sum of money, and state whether or not, on such a matter, to be distributed among these financiers. Possibly Mr. Lister and Mr. Hartman do not consider that receiving any money in the shape of monthly loans."

"Then follow attacks on the personal integrity of Lister, Harris, Hartman, Cayton and other councilmen, and are charged with extorting loans from banks and making illegal gains. A circumstantial story is told of how the News got $1,000 out of two banks by means of the Bank of Tacoma, for suppressing an article attacking them."

RED MEN AS CITIZENS.

Umattilas Have Fun Since the Saloons Were Opened to Them.

Fandleton, Or., March 24.—Old Wolf the Indian employed by the Indian trader, is in jail for creating a disturbance during the night at the Transfer hotel saloon here. He came to town, procured whiskey, and after drinking it in the saloon drew his pistol and shot towards a man, but the bullet missed, passing through the wall. The majority of the Indians carry a bow and frequently ride out of town yelling and shooting into the air.

Whatcom County Road.

Whatcom, March 24.—Special.—Much satisfaction is expressed in both the bay cities over the governor's approval of the Cascade road bill. Many feared that the large excess of legislative appropriations over the state's probable income from taxation during the next two years would make it seem necessary to the governor to veto the measure, in common with many others that cannot be considered absolutely essential to the state's general welfare at this time. Whatcom county is now assured of a wagon road to the south, and the completion of the bay cities to Blanchard will connect the bay cities with one of the finest farming sections of the state. The portion of the appropriation available for this section of the road is much less than it will cost, but it is hoped that the commissioners of Skegitt county will not hesitate to make a sufficient appropriation to complete the work.

In the course of two or three years this county will have another excellent wagon road outlet to the Skegitt valley, via the Chukon and Lake Samish road now in course of construction. One section has already been completed, and yesterday a contract for another two-mile section was let to Wilson & Breckinridge, of Everett, for about $2,000. It is intended to complete the entire road in three years, from the time it was commenced, and distribute the improvement assessments over a period of five years, thus making the burden easy upon the people benefited.

A Kitsap County House Burned.

Crested Springs, March 24.—Special.—The residence of Mr. Mook, at Point White, Kitsap county, was burned to the ground Monday, the 15th inst., the fire presumably catching from the stovepipe to the ceiling. Mr. Mook and one son, who were the only members of the family at home at the time, were working in the field at the back of the house, and did not discover the fire until it had gained so much headway that it was useless to try to extinguish it. The dense smoke which filled the house made it difficult to save anything, but with the assistance of the crew and passengers from the steamer Canby a number of articles were saved before the four fell in. Some clothing, a small amount of bedding, the trunks, a few pieces of furniture, part of the library and a portion of the provisions were saved. Most of the furniture and pictures, all of the carpets, dishes, silverware, knives, forks, and most of the family wearing apparel, bed, pillows and bedding were lost. Among other things, Mr. Mook lost several dishes which had been in her mother's family several generations, and were of that account highly prized. Mr. Mook lost a valuable watch and chain, pocket-knives, a number of valuable pictures. This misfortune comes with especial severity on Mr. Mook, who is in poor health and has a large family to provide for. He is a member of Stevens' post, G. A. P., Seattle.

The Tacoma Perimeter.

The Tacoma perimeter, that is the Republican primary election held in the Republican primaries Saturday night, the administration was victorious and the land company and water company faction was beaten. The Ledger says: "As far as can be learned from the results of last night's Republican primary election the candidates for the council to be placed in nomination at the ward conventions tomorrow night are as follows: First ward, Henry Longstreth; Second ward, P. D. Norton; Third ward, Theodore Huggins; Fourth ward, D. P. Day; Fifth ward, Fred Salm or W. W. Laddell; Sixth ward, J. W. Kiehn; Seventh ward, Samuel Rice or Frank Chandler; Eighth ward, George F. Whitty. The vote in the Third ward is almost impossible to analyze, as the division is practically numerous and their strength divided in such an equal manner."

Maloney After Another Office.

Whatcom, March 24.—Special.—There is a rumor afloat to the effect that the astute Tillikum politician Martin J. Maloney, deputy collector of this port, who quickly sid out of town a few days ago, ostensibly to relieve a brother official at Marcus, has really gone to Washington City with a pocketful of Tillikum's money for the purpose of securing a present, it was thought Henry Drum was an applicant until it developed that he preferred to be a bank examiner. Maloney's position is practically a sinecure, particularly so since the Sumas office was established, but notwithstanding the fact that his duties are not arduous and that opportunities for diversion are numerous, Mr. Maloney is not and never has been altogether satisfied with it. It is well known that what he wanted was the United States marshalship, but failing to get that he took the deputy collectorship here upon the solemn assurance of the chief Tillikum that he would be supported for something better whenever a good opportunity offered. Mr. Maloney has never let go of the string upon Mr. Wallace, which he tied when he helped to make him national committeeman and that the A. R. U. men did nothing to violate the law.

Immense Profit in Whaleships.

It is reported that employees of the large company which has been building the steamer in a short time. Estimates on the earnings of the new whaleback City of Everett show a net profit of $5,000 a month. The steamer is to be built in a few years. It is said that just before Capt. RELIGIOUS FIGHT IN MANITOBA.

Protestants Determined to Expatriate the Papal Legation. Minneapolis, March 24.—A special to the Tribune from Winnipeg, Manitoba, says: Manitoba has reached a crisis in its history, the result of which has been a likely to break forth before long. It is a war so bitter that it may wreck the confederation of the Dominion. The Catholics are fighting for their papal legation, with grim determination, while the Protestant majority, with equal resolution, declares that the papal legation, recently abolished by the Canadian legislature, shall never be re-established. The excitement is intense. In the churches today the preachers confined their remarks to the religious struggle. The Protestant preachers begged the Protestants to stand firm, and the Catholic clergy appealed to their congregations to never waver on the point.

The Orangemen are Taking a Hand in the Struggle.

The Orangemen are taking a hand in the struggle. Maj. Stuart Mulvey, grand master of the Orangemen, said: "It cost a small amount of money to subvert the Orangemen on the banks of the Saskatchewan in 1881. How many millions will it take to make slaves of the people of Manitoba by subverting them to the Catholic hierarchy?"

A Few men who foresee the consequences are urging moderation.

Eugene Debs at Sacramento.

Sacramento, Cal., March 24.—E. V. Debs addressed a fair audience here tonight on the subject of the strike, why it was begun and why it failed. He again took occasion to score Egan, Judge Jenkins and the press of the country. He claimed that he was, as well as the courts, controlled by the corporations and the money power. He asserted that all the responsibility for the bloodshed and destruction of property, while it lasted, rested on the railroads; that the burning of cars at Chicago was done by the United States deputy marshals, and that the A. R. U. men did nothing to violate the law.

Exportation of Russian Flour.

Russia is about to make a determined effort to reach out for and capture some of the great markets for food, such as England, the borders of the Mediterranean, and the United States. The government is backing the project, and promising to afford special transportation facilities for the export trade in flour, and to advance loans to the Russian millers to enable them to extend their operations. These facts appear in a report to the United States consul at St. Petersburg. He describes at length the proceedings of the Russian millers' convention held under the auspices of the Russian government, with the purpose of fostering the exportation of Russian flour. Many subjects were discussed, such as the cost of production of flour, the possibility of finding foreign markets for bran, the best form of government loans, and the establishment of technical schools for millers in the United States. Much Condemnation of the Reichstag.

Conservatives Expect to Gain by It. London, March 24.—The Berlin correspondent of the Times telegraphs that it scarcely needs Emperor William's dispatch to Bismarck, in which his majesty expressed his disapproval of the Reichstag's refusal to authorize Herr von Leitzow, president of the body, to congratulate Prince Bismarck on the anniversary of his birth, to give a political character to the spectacle. The correspondent adds that it is difficult to avoid the impression that Prince Bismarck's admission of the democratic nature of the Reichstag, with a definite yet veiled purpose, in the same manner as that in which they used the cry for relief from the agricultural distress, to cause Chancellor Caprivi. If they had equally wished a majority in the Reichstag there is reason to believe they could have obtained it, but for a fortnight past the Reichstag has been in a state of confusion, and the Reichstag has been in a state of confusion, and the Reichstag has been in a state of confusion.

A talk with the author of "Tribe," Mr. George Du Maurier, reported by Robert Stewart in McClure's Magazine for April, tells us a good story, with a charming candor and cordiality, as "Tribe" itself. The son of a man of talent whose ready pen was always disappointing the high hopes of his father, Du Maurier's youth was full of wanderings and adventures. These he relates with the same humorous frankness with which he met the humorous surprise of his countrymen today. He is a man of the present home life and of his way of working, both as artist and novelist.

A Predecessor of the Alliance Affair.

Madrid, March 24.—In an article in reference to the Alliance affair the Epoca publishes the notes and dispatches exchanged between Spain and the United States in 1855, when the latter country contended that the Spanish man-of-war Ferrolina searched the America mail steamer Eldorado on the open sea at a distance of over eight miles from the Cuban coast. This question was settled amicably. The Epoca adds that a copy of the instructions then sent to the warships guarding the Cuban coast ordered: First, that whenever a warship sighted a suspicious vessel it was to follow her until her cargo and intentions were ascertained; and secondly, whenever a suspicious vessel entered Cuban waters the warship, if powerful enough, should search her, sailing or sinking her if she resisted when there was proof that she was on a filibustering expedition. It is said that Senor Dupuy de Lome will replace Senor Murugua, the Spanish minister to the United States.

Blake is the Stockton correspondent of the Examiner, and had just left the editorial rooms of the paper on Mission street and was proceeding to the Grand hotel. As he turned a sharp corner a tall form barred his passage and demanded that he stop. Instead of complying the pucky newspaper man brought his stick down on the robber's head with all his strength. The footpad howled and drew his revolver, fired at the retreating editor. The bullet passed through his body, coming out near the navel. The attending physicians think the abdomen was not penetrated, and that Blake may recover. He came from Stockton with his wife to spend Sunday here. Blake is well known on the Coast, having worked on papers in San Diego, Fresno, San Francisco and the Puget sound cities. The footpad escaped.

Extracting Butter Fat From Whey.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 24.—The agricultural department at Cornell claims to have made an important discovery which will prove of great economic value to farmers. It is found that butter fat can be extracted from whey by running it through a separator. The department now has in press a bulletin explaining the process. It is estimated that the process would save the agriculturalists of New York state nearly $1,000,000 a year, or to put it in another way, the entire expense of making cheese would be paid by the saving of what has heretofore been a waste.
