

CAN'T FIND THE BODY.

But There Is No Doubt John Seljan Was Murdered.

BLOOD ALL OVER HIS ROOM.

Robbery the Object of the Crime—Horrible and Mysterious Tragedy at Omaha.

Omaha, July 3.—Five badly frightened individuals occupying murderers' cells at the police station, a residence resembling in many respects a slaughter house, the unaccountable absence of John Seljan, are the features of a peculiar tragedy which is engaging all the Omaha police and detectives tonight.

A boarding house at 136 Pierce street is the scene of the crime. A hasty examination of the bedroom in which the man is supposed to have been murdered shows unmistakable signs of a bloody conflict. A great pool of blood was located near the head of the bed, and the bedclothes were saturated in several places with blood.

Several of the persons had blood on their clothes. All those concerned are Poles. Monday the missing man received money from the crime, it is thought, committed. The police are of the opinion that after the murder was committed, the body of the murdered man, which was found on the river bank, was placed there for the purpose of leaving the impression that the man had committed suicide by drowning himself in the river.

The discovery of the clothes and the early appearance of the police at the cottage prevented the murderers from carrying out the further arrangements of removing the tell-tale blood, the blood stains and bloody bedclothes. The body, it is believed, was removed from the house some time during the night, judging from the fresh wagon wheel tracks directly in front of the house, which indicate that a wagon had been backed up to the sidewalk in front. The condition of the blood on the floor indicates that the killing could not have been done much later than midnight. The fact that Seljan's clothing was soaked with blood is taken to indicate that he was killed soon after he returned home last night and before he had undressed. Several residents of the neighborhood say that Seljan had a great deal of money yesterday and that he said he had just received a large amount from the company.

The police are trying to find the body. Two trunks were taken from the house during the night and sent to St. Louis. The police are investigating this case. They think the body has been cut up and placed in the trunks.

Moro Escaped From the White. William C. Greenfield, agent of the North American Commercial Company at Wood Island, Alaska, says that the statement of Jacob Jansen and Ingwald Loe that they were the only survivors of the sealer C. G. White who escaped sound from the wreck is incorrect, as one Olsen, the hunter, Andrew Johnson, Tom Hansen, Patrick Rooney and two Japanese escaped unharmed. Nine men were still in the hospital, in a building which had been rented by the North American Commercial Company for the purpose, when the Francis Cutting sailed.

The Most Miserable Man.

"The most miserable man is the one who is all the time anxious about his health." Use Paine's Celery Compound and keep well and strong. It is like other ordinary remedies—it is medicine. Try it.

A MYSTERIOUS POWER.

It Is Exerted by Diminutive Annie May Abbott.

SHE DEFIES NATURE'S LAWS.

Wonderful Displays of Strength at the Seattle Theater by a Little 98-Pound Georgia Woman.

Annie May Abbott, the little woman whom Sandow, the great strong man, could not lift on account of that mysterious power of resistance she possesses, was at the Seattle theater last night and won a great triumph in her marvelous exhibition.

Some people call her an electric woman, others a hypnotist, in fact pronounced to which the force would mysteriously have diagnosed her case and yet Miss Abbott is still frank to say she does not know what is the force within her. The fact that Miss Abbott weighs only 98 pounds and yet can lift six or seven men in a chair would be enough to attract attention, but when she did that and many other equally wonderful feats at the Seattle theater last night there is cause for wonder and study as to what this power really is.

It has been practically demonstrated that she does not rely on physical strength, because in many of her experiments people from the audience placed their hands between hers and the object to which the force would mysteriously be imparted, if it was used. Each time the audience said that they felt no pressure or pulling away. A long stick was placed on her open hands, and although from one to three men pushed it, it remained immovable.

She stood on one foot, took a stick in her hand, and then allowed a strong man to push against her. She did not stir. Three men pushed and still she was not moved. Then five men tried to push her off her feet, but it was no use.

The only chair which was held up in the air. Miss Abbott placed her open hands against it and a strong man tried to pull it down to the floor, but the chair stuck to her open hands like glue. A man would try to hold a chair, and the little woman would push him all over the stage. A man placed his hands between the chair and Miss Abbott's hands. It was the same old story—the man trying to hold the chair was pushed about like a baby, and the man whose hands were under Miss Abbott's said he did not feel any pressure. A pole was held down by six men, with another sitting upon it, yet the little woman lifted the pole and the seven men walked across the stage. She would look into the eyes of a little boy and tell him he must keep his feet on the floor and in a majority of cases the boy could not be lifted. A little boy who sat in the audience about thirty feet away was asked to stand up. He did so and Miss Abbott told him to think hard that his feet could not be raised from the floor. A gentleman sitting near at hand who was finally persuaded to try to lift the lad. He tried again and again before the little fellow's feet gave in the least.

FITZSIMMONS IS FREE.

Acquitted of Manslaughter in Killing Con Riordan.

CROWD CHEERS THE VERDICT.

After Shaking Hands With the Jury Bob Hurries Away to Begin Training for the Dallas Battle.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 3.—The defense in the trial of Bob Fitzsimmons was closed with the testimony of Dr. C. A. Lyon, of New York. From the description given of Riordan he would judge that he was affected with hypertrophy, which gives the heart a spasmodic action. He thought that the kidneys were affected with Bright's disease, also, from the description of Riordan's condition, he would judge he had an enlargement of the liver and an affection of the left lung.

"Is it not true," was asked by Attorney Hennessey, "that when there is a disease of the internal organs of the abdomen the arteries of the brain are degenerated?"

"Yes, sir, and those conditions increase the probabilities of a hemorrhage of the brain."

He said he had found in performing autopsies that the brain was more or less lacerated in removal. A flow of thirty drops of blood into the fourth ventricle would cause immediate death. He said further that when he examined Riordan a year ago he found symptoms of disease as described by him, and taking this into consideration with the swelling of Riordan's feet, he would judge that he had symptoms of dropsy. At that time he warned Riordan not to take violent exercise, as it would prove fatal. The minutes of the autopsy were placed in evidence by the defense and they then rested the case.

Attorney Hennessey summed up for the defense and District Attorney Shove for the prosecution, after which Judge Ross delivered his charge.

At 10:15 o'clock this evening the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, after having been out about three hours and three-quarters. The announcement by the foreman of the jury was greeted by rousing cheers and the crowd taking this verdict as the gavel of the judge was powerless to quiet the enthusiasm.

Fitzsimmons was congratulated by hundreds of men, and taking this into consideration with a telegram from his wife, announcing his acquittal. After shaking hands with all of the jurors and with Judge Ross, Fitzsimmons went immediately to his hotel, and at 11:30 this evening he left for New York.

Fitzsimmons said before leaving for New York that he would begin training tomorrow at Coney Island for his coming battle with Corbett.

The Corbett-Fitzsimmons Fight. Dallas, Tex., July 3.—The refusal of Corbett to fight Fitzsimmons has had no perceptible effect on the managers of the Florida Athletic Club. It is not even looked upon as a "frost." The fact that eminent lawyers have decided that glove contests are not prohibited by law in Texas, and that the mill will surely take place in the ring at Dallas on October 31.

PORTLAND RACES.

Portland, July 3.—In the six and a half furlong race Raindrop injured her left hind leg. Portland was broken and the perforal lacerated. It was thought she would be injured for life, but a veterinary surgeon states that the animal will be ready for the track again in three months.

LOSSES BY POWER HOUSE FIRE.

Only Small to Third Street Line—Small Damage to Machinery.

The losses of the Third street company in the fire at the power house of the Consolidated company on Fifth and Pine streets have been adjusted, and the amount determined to be only $225. The work has been done under the direction of George P. Lowe, the underwriters' electrical appraiser.

The small loss on the Third street company's property is due to the fact that the dynamo, which were thought to have been ruined, in reality were not injured. They have all been taken from the ruins and set up in the Western mill. Today the company will operate its line from them.

The losses of the Consolidated company have not yet been determined, but there is no doubt that they will not be nearly so heavy as at first reported. The engines, boilers and dynamo have been found comparatively good in condition and they can be set up again with but little expense. The heaviest loss of the company was on the building and cars.

Receiver Grant of the Third street line, says the saving of the apparatus is due to the skillful work of the fire department.

Secretary Herbert has acted on the findings of the court-martial held at Mare Island navy yard in the case of Lieut. Y. W. Buchanan, division officer, and Receiver Grant of the Third street line, tried for culpable negligence resulting in an accident to a gun, causing the death of Gunner Johnson. Secretary Herbert approved the acquittal of Buchanan, but in the case of Dorn disapproved the findings of the court-martial which acquitted him.

The Standard Oil Company has sold every dollar of its holdings in the Chicago gas trust. Mr. Rockefeller, it is said, expressed the conviction that it was no longer policy for the Standard to invest in outside enterprises on account of the growing hostility of the public to such enormous aggregations of capital and the suspicion with which they were regarded by the people. He therefore decided that the Standard Oil Company had better get out of Chicago while it could do so without loss.
