

MR. SANBORN'S LOVE.

His Wife Says It Was Lavished on the Clairvoyants.

SO SHE PLEADS FOR DIVORCE.

The Well-Known Merchant Accused of Many Misdemeanors—Objections to Badlong Verdict.

The strained relations that have existed for a long time between Charles G. Sanborn, the well-known West street merchant and proprietor of the Brunswick hotel, and his wife, have culminated in a divorce suit, filed last evening at 5 o'clock in the superior court by Mrs. Sanborn. She accuses him of leading her and of improper relations with clairvoyants.

Lucinda Sanborn and Charles G. Sanborn were married October 6, 1876, in Illinois, and have three children, Agnes E., aged 15; Jennie R., aged 13; and Charles G., aged 15. For several years they have lived in Seattle, and Mr. Sanborn has been well-known in business circles.

Mrs. Sanborn states that on September 2, 1895, Mr. Sanborn shook his fist in her face and threatened to strike her. May 2, 1894, he accused her of abusing one of her children named Nellie on her death-bed at Proseport, Ill., October 22, 1894, and of being the cause of her death.

On numerous occasions, it is alleged, Mr. Sanborn has threatened to kill his wife. About four years ago Sanborn bought his mother, despite the objections of Mrs. Sanborn, to live with them, and according to Mrs. Sanborn's story the mother-in-law was not a respectable person and made her life a burden.

The complaint says that in January, 1895, while the Sanborns were conducting the Brunswick hotel, Mrs. Sanborn, at a room and medium, engaged a suite of rooms at the hotel. Almost immediately Mr. Sanborn became enamored of her and spent a large portion of his time with her company, and on May 11, 1894, at Seattle and at numerous other times committed adultery with Mrs. Arper. It is alleged that Mr. Sanborn repeatedly told Mrs. Arper presents and sent her goods and provisions, and when Mrs. Sanborn objected Mr. Sanborn threatened to strike her and put his fist in her face as a threatening tone said:

"Just wait till I get my hand on your throat and I'll fix you."

Continuing the complaint says that Sanborn spends a large portion of his time with M. M. Guy, a clairvoyant and medium, who has rooms 13 and 15 at the National hotel, and has at numerous times committed adultery with her. Mrs. Sanborn's story, but she cannot give their names. Mr. Sanborn is also represented as drinking to excess, and consequently an improper person to have charge of the children.

The property consists of the household goods at the Brunswick hotel, 505 Front street, stock of groceries, tea, etc., at 80 and 84 West street; grain and feed in the Chopard block, Ballard; notes and life insurance policy.

Upon affidavits presented to Judge Osborn an order was issued restraining Sanborn from disposing of any of the community property, not to interfere with ordinary routine business, and not to appear in court tomorrow morning to tell her he should not pay his wife $50 a month alimony pending the action. Mrs. Sanborn says she will let the court decide what the permanent alimony should be after the trial.

THE VERDICT A COMPROMISE.

Therefore Badlong Will Appeal From Judgment for His Boy's Clothes.

The 10 verdict that Mrs. M. C. Budlong obtained against her ex-husband, George E. Budlong, in an action for $30 to pay for clothes purchased for Walter Budlong, is to be contested as hard as the defense lawyer has.

A notice of intention to move for a new trial was filed yesterday. It will be claimed that the jury was guilty of misconduct in not returning a conscientious verdict and that there was error in the assessment of the amount of recovery.

An affidavit was placed on record by J. T. Ronald, in which he says that he has been informed by one of the jurors that the verdict was a compromise. There was eight for the defendant and four for the plaintiff for the full amount. The juror that was talking to Mr. Ronald was of the opinion that the verdict should either have been for the plaintiff in the full amount or for the defendant. The jurors came to the conclusion that as the amount involved was small and it was evident there could be no agreement conscientiously and that the result would be to entail the expenses of a new trial, they favored a verdict for the full amount should compromise and accept a verdict for $10. This, Mr. Ronald contends, was not a conscientious verdict, and he thinks that the court should allow the jurors to be recalled and examined he can prove what he alleges.

AN Official Gamble for Office.

It is not often that gambling is allowed in the courthouse, but at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, October 8, there will be a little game of chance in the county commissioners' office. It will be a contest to decide who will be road supervisor in three districts where the candidates received the same number of votes. County Auditor Berman sent out letters yesterday to the following to come in and draw straws: Thomas Provan and Henry Weis, Redmond, district 4; John W. Harper and John W. Ward, in the district of Diamond district 5; Peter Colman and Frank O. Mason, Cedar Mountain, district 33.

The Longstaffs Will Bring New Suits.

Those remarkable ways suits instituted by Robert M. Longstaff and his wife, Mary Longstaff against W. H. White as administrator of the estate of Martin V. Stewart were dismissed yesterday by Judge Osborn on motion of the plaintiffs' attorney, but without prejudice to the beginning of another action. The Longstaffs worked for the old pioneer Martin V. Stewart, and Mr. Longstaff claimed $3000 wages due from October 20, 1883, to May 13, 1885, and Mrs. Longstaff $2300 for services from October 2, 1882, to June 2, 1886. New suits will now be commenced by the Longstaffs, but they will be combined, so as to come under the community interest laws.

Suit for University Material Ended.

The suit of the Denny Clay Company against Cameron & Ashcroft and others to recover $2000 for material used in the construction of the University of Washington has been settled satisfactorily to all parties outside of court, and yesterday Judge Osborn granted a motion to dismiss. The suit was for balance due on terra cotta, brick and the brick engaged in 1888, and the defendants claimed an amount of $135 and said they owed only $188. The terms of settlement are private.

A Mortgage on Stuck Junction.

The time when the station at Stuck Junction was likely to become the junction point of a cut-off from Palmer to the present line of the Northern Pacific was recalled by a promissory note and foreclosure suit filed against the estate of P. H. Lewis and others by Doroth W. Walter. The complaint states that on July 12, 1893, George O'Brien executed to Lewis & Co., of San Francisco, a two-year note for $50,000 at 12 per cent, secured by a mortgage on 40 acres in that vicinity. According to the complaint an extension of one year was granted, and the loan was conveyed by deed September 10, 1894, to John Collins, under the agreement that Collins would pay Lillenthal & Co. four-fifths of the amount due and all interest.

TO CHECK THE FEVER

Officers on Guard to Maintain Quarantine.

NO ADMISSION TO THE INFECTED

Nine Cases in the Southern Half of the City Under Guard—Several Cases Near the County Farm.

Policemen are guarding the doors of ten houses in the city this morning where there are cases of scarlet fever, of scabies, and egress and ingress to these houses is absolutely denied to all but the doctors.

In accordance with a request of the board of health that he enforce a strict quarantine where cases of scarlet fever existed, Chief of Police Rogers yesterday and last night put twenty-eight special officers on duty. There is an office stationed at the front door of every infected house, and in some instances there are two policemen to a house. The men are on duty for six hours at a time, being relieved at 11 o'clock and 5.

Up to midnight the following cases were named to the police authorities by the board of health: George Purlock, 211 South Sixth street; George Holmes, 1303 Jackson street; Geraldine Elmhurst, 1424 Main street; Nellie Yerberry, 1424 Washington street; E. L. Johnston, 211 McClaire street.

Resident of Lewis Park, between South Fifth and Sixth, Washington and Yesler avenue. Tracy O'Leary, 401 Thomas street.

The Johnson family, at 211 McClaire street, consists of the mother and three children, and they are said to be destitute. The authorities will say much about the board of health's quarantine, but they are determined to put in force the stringent provisions of the quarantine law, so that the terrible disease may be stopped before it gains a foothold in the city.

Most of the cases so far reported are in the vicinity of the South and Rainier schools, which were closed last year on account of the same disease. There is one case reported from North Seattle.

The disease has also spread to the south beyond the city limits, for Health Officer Rogers has reported to him late Tuesday evening near the county hospital. Among the names mentioned in the report are those of Mrs. M. F. Flebeck and her two children, and a child named Young. The report further stated that the houses were not provided with flags, placards or danger signals of any kind. As the cases are outside of Dr. Palmer's jurisdiction, he promptly reported them to the board of county commissioners, who placed the matter in the hands of the health officer. The latter sent him some small red flags to place on the infected houses.

Nothing was found on the person of the dead man to lead to a complete identification. A purse containing 50 cents, and a partially used tin of tooth powder, were made up of the total contents of his pockets. The railroad ticket was signed H. M. Cady, but Coroner Askam did not consider that name any clue to the dead man's identity, though he thought the letter might possibly lead to a discovery. It was not complete, but was written from Bozeman, Mont., and Dr. Askam thought it came from Mrs. Lacy, a sister of the deceased. When C. W. Amery identified the body as that of his former acquaintance, it was ascertained that DeLille has a sister, Mrs. Edith DeLille, who is a prosperous resident of Taylor Falls, Minn., and that he leaves a widow in that town also. Five or six years ago Isaac DeLille, a brother of Frank, was killed in a lumber forest, and his body was not recovered until almost entirely decomposed.

Frank DeLille was apparently in the prime of life, about 30 years old, and of fine physique. Men who have met him about the two saloons mentioned state that he was a logger, and that he came to Seattle last week from a logging camp near Vancouver.

Herbert Haven, druggist, moved to Gem drug store, Second street, Occidental block.

Union lame, he was unable to give pursuit, but reported the case to police headquarters. The boys were captured about 2 o'clock yesterday morning.
