THE WARRANT WIGGLE

City Treasurer Boggs, of Tacoma, Bought Warrants. PAYING CITY MONEY THEREFOR. They Were Void Because Issued in Excess of Debt Limit.

Boggs Deposited Them in Banks, Which Received for Them as Cash and Sold some of Them—Boggs' Redemption Canceled Them, Supreme Court Holds—Banks Must Now Redeem Them Again, and Consequently Banks Sue to Have Accounts With the City Readjusted—Interest on City Bonds Due and Unpaid in New York.

Tacoma, Oct. 15.—Special.—For several weeks past there has been a great deal of agitation in the city council and on the streets regarding the city's financial condition and the safety of the public funds on deposit in the various banks.

The suits of the Columbia National and German-American banks brought in a court of equity. The complaint recites that between December 18, 1893, and April 16, 1894, when Boggs' term expired, the latter, as city treasurer, deposited with the plaintiff a large number of instruments purporting to be outstanding unpaid warrants of said city, drawn in favor of divers persons and corporations upon the general fund of said city.

Finally, the plaintiff asks that its account with the city and its treasurer be opened and adjusted, and that it be permitted to correct the account by the canceling of the credit. Lehman, Heuston & Hammond appear for the treasurer.

It will be remembered that a few weeks before Boggs went out of office in 1894 the Post-Intelligencer fully exposed the dealings of the treasurer in regard to the unlawful character of his office acts.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that interest on the city hall and funding bonds, amounting to $18,000, was due today in New York. Arrangements had been made by the Columbia National bank to meet the interest, when the county treasurer withdrew the county's deposit, amounting to over $7,000, on the instructions of the county commission.

THE COBN FAILURE. Suits Begun by Creditors to Recover Goods Sold by Them. Tacoma, Oct. 15.—Special.—Two suits were filed today by unsecured creditors of M. Cohn & Co., asking that sales of goods to the insolvent firm be set aside, on the ground of fraud, and that the merchandise be returned to them.

CORBETT FITZSIMMONS

Doesn't Expect the Fight Will Be at Hot Springs. STEVE BRODIE TO BE REFEREE. The Governor Says Emphatically There Will Be No Fight. Declares That He Won't Even Let the Men Shake Hands Inside the State—He Can Count on the Militia, but Says He Can Prevent the Battle Without Troops.

Texarkana, Ark., Oct. 15.—Champion James J. Corbett passed through Texarkana this afternoon en route to Hot Springs. About 300 people were at the depot to get a glimpse of Corbett. They were disappointed, however, as Corbett did not appear in person, and did not show himself.

Whatmore, Oct. 15.—Special.—It is reasonably certain now that Night Watchman Schloboom, at the Bellingham Bay Improvement Company's mill, was responsible for the shooting of Charles Bellingham, the night freeman, yesterday morning. Schloboom was sitting only a few feet away from Bellingham when the accident occurred.

It is reliably reported that ground for the salmon cannery in the city of Walla Walla, owned by the English capitalist who is backing the enterprise, from Capt. Roeder, that the site adjoins the state quarry in progress south of town and there are very few idle men around.

IRVING PARBERRY THE CHIEF WITNESS FOR THE STATE

He Called Leone Lanterman. Lanterman Came, and Straub Brutally Shot Him to Death. The Boy Who Decoyed the Victim to His Doom Tells a Straight Story of His Part in the Murder—Straub Turns Religious as His Earthly Prospect Grows Dark.

Friday Harbor, Oct. 15.—In the Straub murder trial Irving Parberry, the 17-year-old boy who was with Straub at the time of the murder, was put on the stand at 8:30 o'clock this morning. He told a straightforward, clean-cut story, every word carrying conviction. He is by no means fluent, having a slight hesitation in his utterance, but the very tones of his voice bear a truthful ring, and the thoroughness of his manner seemed to shut out the possibility of deception.

"Straub gave me a six-shooter and ordered me to go with him to the field where the Burness and Lanterman were at work. At first I refused, but when he beat me, and told me I would have to call and holla for Leone Lanterman. Then I went and called to the men in the field. I called Leone Lanterman, and he came. He was humped, and I holla to him: 'You humped — of a —' Then Leone started toward me. I was standing on a fallen tree, and when he took a step toward me I saw he was going to where I was. He said: 'What's eating you?' and struck at me. I dodged him and struck him in the back with an ax. Then Straub came up with a stick and as he picked it up off the ground Straub stepped out from behind a rump-stump and yelled: 'You humped back — of a — I have you where I want you now. I'll make you out hell.'

"When he said that, he shot Leone Lanterman a groan and started back for the field. Then Straub was going to kill me. Blythe rushed forward with a hoe in his hand, and Straub fired his rifle at him. Blythe pretended to be wounded and dropped. Straub then came up to where I was and started to fire again. Blythe jumped up and started and ran zigzag, dropping every now and then, and darting about. Then Straub came up to where I was and he got away, and so he started up the trail that Leone Lanterman had taken. He told me to follow him, and made me fire the revolver which he gave me. I shot, but as soon as I saw that Straub was out of sight in the alder bushes along the trail I started and ran to the beach, going toward Straub's house. When I got to his house I broke down the door, got a shotgun and loaded it, and a .32-caliber rifle. Then I went out and hid on the hill, for I was afraid Straub was going to kill me. He came back in the direction where I hid, but I did not answer. Then he put his gun behind a tree and called to me. I got up toward the house for me. When he got no answer he started toward the house. But he had a dog with him, and the dog got on my trail. When the dog barked Straub looked up the hill and saw me, and he saw, too, that I had him covered with my gun. Then he talked to me awhile, and we went up to the house. He got some more ammunition, and we started for my house. On the way Straub said: 'The humped back — of a — lies as he goes. Then Straub was going to kill me. He always claimed that he lived on Blakeley and Decatur islands, but people won't have to ask where he lives now.'

"Straub broke down completely at the jail Sunday and asked to be taken to the church. He had been working on the hill, and on Sunday, completely overcome by emotion, he spoke again and again of religion, and said: 'Nobody needs it worse than I do.'

Penitentiary Bollermeier Has His Sentence Cut Short. Walla Walla, Oct. 15.—Special.—John Bollermeier, a convict, was sentenced in February, 1890, for ten years for robbery, was today pardoned by Gov. McGraw as a reward for good conduct. He is a boiler maker and was working on the boilers in the penitentiary when the pardon came. Being the only one there who can do the work, he will be retained and paid wages for a few days until his work is complete.

John Miller was arrested in 1893 with a man named Martin for robbing a man in the Whitechapel district, and both of them were convicted on the testimony of one man, whose name could not be learned. In Portland, Ore., the attorney prosecuting in Portland was W. W. Newlin, and he has since written to Gov. McGraw saying he had very serious doubts as to the guilt of either man. In the meantime, Newlin was entirely irresponsible and unworthy of belief. On these representations of Newlin and McGraw, the pardon was granted. Miller's pardon was for the same reasons.

Horrible Crime in Tennessee. A Negro Tortured by a Mob Before Execution. Memphis, Oct. 15.—J. F. Ellis, a negro who outraged a white woman, was captured yesterday near Holly Springs, Miss., and is now in the custody of the state. He is in the custody of three officers. He has confessed his latest offense, and also says he was tortured by a mob of white men and shot to death. He was taken to the state penitentiary in Mississippi. He will almost certainly be lynched on arrival at Braden.

Sign of the Times. The Famous Ironquills Club, of Chicago, Gives Up Its Rooms. Chicago, Oct. 15.—At a meeting of the Ironquills Club, the leading Democratic organization in Cook county, last night it was decided to give up the club rooms. The club will now have no permanent place in which to hold its meetings. It is said, however, that at some time in the future new headquarters will be secured. The club has been in financial straits for some time.

Eastern Bondholders Want a Receiver for Seah Valley Irrigation Company. North Yakima, Oct. 15.—Special.—Messrs. Reavis & Englehardt, on behalf of Eastern bondholders, today made application in the superior court for the appointment of a receiver for the Seah Valley Irrigation Company, on the ground that the interest was defaulted and the property owned and managed by the company was mismanaged. The case was continued for two weeks to give both sides an opportunity to present the facts.

Bellingham Bay News. Whatmore, Oct. 15.—Special.—It is reasonably certain now that Night Watchman Schloboom, at the Bellingham Bay Improvement Company's mill, was responsible for the shooting of Charles Bellingham, the night freeman, yesterday morning. Schloboom was sitting only a few feet away from Bellingham when the accident occurred.

Fairhaven, Oct. 15.—Special.—About seven men are now employed at the Pacific Coast Milling Company's mill, which is turning out a large amount of cedar siding and finishing lumber. In the dry kilns, which are the largest of the kind, having a capacity of 50,000 feet, the hot air fan system is used. The short cedar is cut into shingles, of which the daily output will be about 100,000 feet. The mill is in progress south of town and there are very few idle men around.
