Emperor William Opens a Law Court at Leipzig.

BISMARCK IN STRONG HEALTH. Cruelty to Army Recruits to Be Repressed - The Emperor Not Yet Well.

Berlin, Oct. 26.-At the dedication of the Emperor Frederick memorial church the emperor appeared in public for the first time since his illness, which commenced at the Kiel fete, being brought on by overexertion upon that occasion.

A curious feature of the dedication ceremonies was the choral sung in the church, "When the Lord Sends a Cross Let Us Patiently Bear It," composed by a boy 15 years of age, Friedrich von Willibrod, who, years ago, suffering from the same complaint as Emperor Frederick, sent it to the latter. Young Willibrod died at the same time as Emperor Frederick.

Emperor William opened the new supreme law court of the empire at Leipzig today. He arrived at noon and the king arrived at the railroad station together with the two sovereigns walked together down the front of the court of honor, and then drove through the town to the new law court building, and were heartily cheered by the crowds who lined the route, which was profusely decorated and lined by troops, military associations and school children.

The Federal council members present at the law court, where the arrival of the monarchs was announced by a military band. Prince Hohenlohe, the imperial chancellor, read documents which were deposited beneath the last stone of the buildings, in which the emperor concluded the Imperial unification of the judicial system of the country, through the institution of a civil code. They expressed a hearty desire that the emperor's supreme court will contribute to the universal triumph of justice, right and honesty, and may they flourish in all German towns.

Baron Kasner, the Bavarian minister, then handed a trowel to the emperor and the president of the reichstag, Baron Huelbergher, presented his majesty with a mallet, with which he struck the stone. Prince Hohenlohe, in the name of the emperor, said: "In the name of the emperor, right shall remain right in Saxony." The emperor again tapped the stone and the ceremony was concluded with cheers for the emperor and the king of Saxony, the judges of the supreme court and the reichstag. At the banquet which was subsequently given at the main hall, the emperor expressed satisfaction with the new law court building, and drank to its prosperity. The emperor also drank to the health of Prince Hohenlohe and other guests.

An accident occurred at the Dresden railroad station during the evening. The station was packed with people anxious to witness the emperor's departure, and the great pressure of the crowd bore down the iron railing guarding the platform. A boy was killed and many people were severely injured by the overturning of people which followed.

Prince Bismarck's health at present is excellent. He walks and drives daily, and seems to have quite recovered from his recent illness. Dr. Schweininger, his physician, owing to ill health, has been compelled to abandon most of his practice, and will remain at Friedrichsruh until the end of the year.

The emperor during the week spent a few days in shooting on the estate of Herr Wedel, chief of the imperial household. Next week his majesty will take part in the battles of Philip Eulenberg's preserve at Liebenburg.

HE WAS SHOT DOWN ON THE SPOT.

HE WILL ARRIVE AT HOT SPRINGS ON WEDNESDAY.

READY TO FIGHT JIM CORBETT. Corbett Says He Is Glad, and Hot Springs Expects a Fight After All.

New York, Oct. 27.-A special to the Herald from Hot Springs says: All doubt of a fight between Fitzsimmons and Corbett for the heavyweight championship of the world has been removed from the minds of the officials of the athletic association and the citizens' committee, and they have begun to make preparations for holding the event in Whittlington park on November 1. They are convinced that both men are now anxious and willing to fight. They base their opinion on the fact that Fitzsimmons has just consented to come here to settle the issue under the auspices of the Hot Springs organization.

The news of Fitzsimmons' intentions through the medium of telegrams to Mayor W. W. Waters and President Babcock, of the Hot Springs Athletic Association, the message to Mayor Waters read as follows: "Corpus Christi, Tex., Oct. 25.-W. W. Waters, Mayor of Hot Springs, Ark.: You can arrange for training quarters if you think it necessary. Will be there with Fitzsimmons on October 29, ready to fight. Martin Julian." Mayor Waters immediately sent the following dispatch: "Every provision will be made for Fitz's comfort upon his arrival here on October 29. A special message to President Babcock is as follows: 'The articles I signed the other night for a contest before the Hot Springs Athletic Association held good. I will have Fitz there October 30.' The articles referred to by Julian were prepared by the mythical Jack Dalton, and were signed by 'Fitz's manager' and a misapprehension. President Babcock said that as Julian recognized them, as stated, his club was perfectly willing to abide by them.

The news of the attack spread like wildfire, and hundreds of citizens hurried to the scene. The mob, however, was pacified by the cooler heads to pacify the mob, but all is apparently in vain. A telegram was forwarded to Gov. McKinley at 2:30 p. m. asking him to order the militia. About thirty shots were fired. It is not known whether the attacking party fired or not.

At 2:45 o'clock the situation remains the same. The mob is very poorly organized, having loaded up with whiskey to get up their nerve.

Big Failure at Louisville. Bamberger, Bloom & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods, Assign. Louisville, Ky., Oct. 26.-Bamberger, Bloom & Co., the wholesale dry goods firm of this city, made an assignment at 10 o'clock today to an assignee, J. H. Finance and Trust Company. At the same time the individual members of the firm, Levi Bamberger, of New York, and Julius Bamberger and Leo Bloom, of this city, were ordered to sell their property to the same trust company for the benefit of their creditors. No schedule of assets and liabilities has been filed, but it is estimated that the firm's net worth is $1,200,000, and that the nominal assets will equal that amount. In 1889 the firm's store was destroyed by fire and their business was subsequently abandoned. Long, vexatious and costly litigation, then came the bad years of 1892, 1893 and 1894, and the strain was too great for the resources of the firm, and today the assignment came. Bamberger and Bloom have been known as scarcely without a rival west of the Alleghenies. The firm has a branch house in New York. The business was established in 1870, and during all the years of its history has been known for its integrity and commercial soundness.

Bamberger, Bloom & Co. had the largest net earnings in the world. Their accounts are in Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, Illinois, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Georgia and Texas.

A STRONG PRACTICE GAME. University and S. A. C. Have Some Vigorous Play, Neither Team Scoring. The usual Saturday afternoon practice game between the eleven of the University of Washington and the S. A. C. team in its regular season, which was held in the last of the second half on the university ten-yard line Bird fumbled while running with the ball and Ostrom fell on his knees across his own goal line. The decision was close, as to whether it was a touchback or a touchdown, and a hot discussion ensued. The referee called it a safety touchback, but by mutual consent the game was changed to a touchback. The final score was therefore nothing to nothing.

THEY DIED DESPITE WARNINGS. Franklin Miners Voluntarily Went Down in the Denby Shock. The coroner's jury in the Franklin mine tragedy returned a verdict finding that the men "went voluntarily into the mine," and met their death. Coroner Askam examined twenty-one witnesses, all of whom testified that the men went down the slope after being repeatedly warned not to take the risk. The verdict in full, was as follows: "The undersigned jurors, duly summoned to appear before O. P. Askam, coroner in and for the county of King, state of Washington, to inquire into the death of G. W. Adams, John H. Glover, John H. Adams and James Stafford, do hereby return the following verdict: That the deceased, George W. Smalley, aged 22 years; John Adams, aged 23 years; John Adams, aged 23 years, were natives of America, and that the above parties, at the time of their death, were employed by the Franklin mine on the 17th of October, 1895, about the hour of 12 o'clock a. m. of said day, in said county of King, state of Washington, and that they voluntarily went down to their death by suffocation in the Franklin mine on the 17th of October, 1895, about the hour of 12 o'clock a. m. of said day, in said county of King, state of Washington, and that they voluntarily went down to their death without any orders from the Oregon Improvement Company, or any of its agents, servants or employees.

ARMS FOR PATRIOTS.

THE LATE GUARDBOAT CAPTURE.

Insurgents Ambushed the Spaniards When They Came Ashore for Water, Then Took the Vessel. Havana, Oct. 26.-Lieut. Francisco Gallego, of the Spanish navy, commander of the small gunboat Dios de Mayo, formerly a pilotboat which on October 19, was captured by the insurgents in Asserador bay, near Santiago de Cuba, the officers and crew being subsequently released and brought here as prisoners, have been tried by court-martial.

The evidence furnished at the trial shows that the lieutenant left Santiago de Cuba on board the Dios de Mayo with a crew of twelve men, under verbal orders from the commander of the cruiser Reina Mercedes to watch the sixty miles of coast between Turquino and Santiago de Cuba. He was instructed not to communicate with the land. The lieutenant obeyed his orders, but on October 9 he went into Asserador bay to replenish the guardboat with water. He sent a boat ashore with a corporal of marines in charge, and with four sailors at the oars. On landing the boat's crew were compelled to go some way inland in order to reach fresh water.

While filling the vessels they were captured by a large force of insurgents, who then brought two field pieces to the water's edge and threatened to sink the vessel unless the lieutenant surrendered all the small arms and ammunition on the boat. There was no wind to enable the vessel to escape, and Gallego complied with the terms, turning over nine rifles, nine swords and 1,000 rounds of ammunition. In due course of time the guard boat anchored near the Reina Mercedes at that port, and reported to the commander of that warship and was promptly placed under arrest.

Key West, Fla., Oct. 26.-Letters from Cuba state that the insurgents have taken several revenge on Rogue Corral, whom they suspected of treachery. Corral was mayor of a town near Cienfuegos, and professed devotion to the patriot cause. The insurgent leaders used him as a medium of communication with friends in the United States. Recently the insurgents learned that Corral had been corrupted by Spanish agents and had been playing traitor. Tuesday morning the corpse of the mayor was found outside the gates of the town. He had been hacked to death with swords and decapitated. Pinned to his breast was a card reading: "So perish all traitors to Cuba."
