

FOR THE GLASSWORKS

Material for Seattle Plant Now Coming From Germany.

FACTORY READY IN TWO MONTHS

Undertakers in Conflict With the Coroner—Asa R. Gardner Deputy U. S. Marshal for Alaska.

"If present plans do not miscarry, the Seattle Glass Works will be manufacturing window glass and bottles inside of two months" was the statement made by E. B. Mackey...

Mr. Mackey said that Henry L. Hochstetler, who left this city several weeks ago, is on his way back from Germany with a consignment of fire clay, fire bricks, flat-ironing ovens, etc., and will reach this city some time next month.

With the one furnace eight blowers will be used, with an annual output of 50,000 boxes of window glass.

In speaking of the business outlook for the company, Mr. Mackey said: "The demand on the Pacific coast is enormous, and outside of the output of a small bottle manufactory in San Francisco everything is imported from the East and Europe."

There is demand enough in this city to keep a large-sized factory busy all the time. The silica, which is secured in the Cascade mountains, is so far ahead of the demand by the San Francisco house that there is no need of comparison.

It has been ascertained by the first German chemists to be as fine as any in Europe.

There is no reason why we should not turn out as fine work as they do anywhere in the world in our line.

Undertaker Meets Coroner. Complication From Two Reports of a Death on Mercer Island.

Two reports concerning one death caused a good deal of trouble yesterday and put Coroner Askan in anything but a pleasant state of mind.

In the future, he has decided that, if anyone moves a dead body that should be viewed by him, without first having his authority, or that of his deputy, he will have the offender arrested.

Yesterday morning Eugene Lucas, one of the dead man's friends, reported the case to Honney & Stewart, and asked them to go to the island to view the body.

Coroner Askan wanted to know why Greene went after the body without letting him know about it, and Greene explained that it was not a coroner's body.

Another Wallace Man In. Asa R. Gardner, Anti-Fusionist, Chief Deputy of Alaska Marshal.

Asa R. Gardner, a well-known resident of Sitka, Alaska, commonly termed "the Judge," who has been Justice of the Peace for a time in this city, took his departure yesterday for Juneau.

Mr. Gardner was one of the strongest anti-fusionists in the last Democratic county convention, and for his fealty to his chief, and as a procurer of numerous proxies for Rufus E. Bennett in the eastern portion of the county, he led the anti-fusion movement.

Mr. Gardner was given a happy birthday by the Sitka Democratic Club at its rooms in the Hotel Newberry last Saturday evening, at which most all the local Federal agents attended.

France and Madagascar. A Seattle Man's Glimpses of the First Occupation, Ten Years Ago.

"It has been ten years, almost to a day, since the French first set foot on Madagascar," said C. H. Beth, a Seattle architect, in speaking of the recent affairs of the French on that island.

"It happened to be in South Africa at that time, engaged in building a railroad, I took a trip up the east coast, and even touched Madagascar, so that I was brought in right close touch with their movements."

THE GRANT MEMORIAL

Public Meeting Called for Next Saturday Night.

The memory of Frederic James Grant is to be perpetuated, and it will undoubtedly be in connection with the University of Washington.

At these meetings various plans were considered to carry out the wishes of the general association, and yesterday afternoon a decision was reached by the board which will be submitted to the association at a meeting to be held on next Saturday evening in the Chamber of Commerce.

All members of the association and those who wish to contribute to the memorial are invited to be present at that occasion to hear the report of the board and to consider the plans as thus far outlined.

Mr. Grant was a warm friend of the university and a great believer and supporter of the American educational system.

DEATH OF WARREN B. TROW. He Passes Away Within a Few Hours After Arrival From St. Paul.

Warren B. Trow, of St. Paul, died yesterday morning at the residence of his son, C. J. Trow, corner of Lane and Twentieth streets in this city, from lung trouble.

Mr. Trow lived in St. Paul for many years, where he was well known and highly respected.

A MOTHER'S VIEW. Seattle, Oct. 20, 1895.

To the Editor: Kindly allow me a few words concerning the recent dismissal of a teacher from the public schools for whipping a child.

Skulls on the Highway. Murderer Holmes' Case Recalls a Chicago sensation of Years Ago.

A few evenings ago a group of gentlemen were discussing the probable guilt of H. H. Holmes, convicted at Philadelphia of the murder of Dr. F. P. Fitzgerald.

While the expressman and junior were busy excavating a trench for their store, they came upon a skull, and a few minutes later they discovered a human frame.

"The next morning a farmer coming to town early discovered a skull and several other bones belonging to a human frame lying on the prairie.
