

LAUGHING AT JORDAN

Democrats Cannot Be Cajoled to His Support.

CLOSE OF THE REGISTRATION.

The Republican Candidates - Caucus Nominations Too Late for Publication Yesterday.

The Democratic city central committee, or the members of it, met again in Randolph & Chapin's offices yesterday afternoon, and there was a regular out and out consideration of the proposition to support Dr. Jordan, or the grounds that he was still a good enough Democrat, even though for mere purposes of political diplomacy, he was now trying to figure as a Populist.

There are two Jordanians who are members of the committee, Lane, who was acting secretary until the return of Terry on Monday, and Hart. These two argued in favor of the late action as strongly as they were able, but their propositions were general, grandiose and vague. The other members wished to know, or pretended to have such a wish, as to exactly what Dr. Jordan proposed in return for the Democratic support asked, and first one and then the other of the two Jordanians gave answers that were as a rule met with good-natured laughter. The majority of the members are opposed to any treaty with the Jordanites, and this was so apparent that the discussion dropped.

There followed a talk of other candidates, in which the names of Miller, Daulion and Schram figured prominently. It was argued that either one of these would make a good Democratic candidate, and in addition would poll a large popular vote. Having talked over the situation carefully the committee decided to call a meeting of the Democratic caucus to be held on Thursday, probably at the Hotel Northern.

Meantime, the Skookum Club and other Democrats are working earnestly in the first ward to have a straight Democratic delegation sent to the convention, to offset at least in Mr. Lane's ward, all that gentleman is trying to do among his Democratic friends in the interest of Dr. Jordan.

The names of delegates nominated at the Republican caucuses were carefully scanned yesterday, but the names gave no indication of anything short of a harmonious convention, free from all factional features. Alderman Anderson was making a busy canvass during the day, and Maj. Harlan was looking especially cheerful. On Saturday the name of Frank Black, of the Seattle Hardware Company, was prominently mentioned as a candidate for mayor, and in his absence from the city the possibilities of his obtaining the nomination, should he express a wish for it, have been very favorably discussed.

A POOR REGISTRATION.

Below That of the Last General Election by Nearly One-third.

The registration room in the house of delegates was bustling with activity long past midnight, for when the books closed there was a hurry on the part of the courteous clerks to get the total returns completed in time for publication in the Post-Intelligencer. City Clerk Stewart had his three deputies at work, and a number of special clerks. These have been under the charge of his deputy, E. W. Melse, who has large experience in the closing days of registration, until during the last two days the extra force numbered nine. This force was kept thoroughly occupied on Monday, when the number of voters registered their names was up to 74, the highest ever registered in one day, and it was expected that yesterday still a larger number would rush in at the last moment to save their rights as citizens at the approaching election.

Up to noon these expectations seemed likely to be realized, for about 250 voters came up to register. During the afternoon, however, the registration fell off, just as it has on other days, and although early in the evening there was something of a rush, few had to wait many minutes before having a chance to register as voters. The registration yesterday was principally from down-town wards, voters who had put it off until the last moment because the place of registration was convenient to them. From six o'clock to ten it seemed as if the whole first ward was registering, and the balance of the city was expected to follow.

Last of the Nominations.

Following are the nominations for delegates and judges in the three precincts of the forty-five which were not published yesterday.

For the New Engineering District - Tacoma Makes a Bluff Demand for It, but Too Late.

The weekly meeting of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce was largely attended yesterday, owing to the interest felt in the army post matter, those present being E. O. Graves, president of the Chamber, in the chair. Also present were James B. Metcalf, S. L. Crawford, Jacob Furth, E. S. Meany, F. S. Tucker, F. D. Schuyler, J. W. Clise, John Leary, T. W. Prusch, J. S. Poligmann, Andrew Knox, A. B. Stewart, G. W. Adair and W. B. Walker, a new member.

Tacoma's Jealousy. When the army post matter was reached, President Graves read to the board a letter that had been received from Squire detailing how the personnel of the commission had been changed and giving further information. One portion of the communication created some murmuring. Senator Squire wrote that when the announcement was made that a separate engineering department had been established for the city of Washington, with headquarters at Seattle, he received a peremptory telegram from the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce ordering him to leave the engineering headquarters established at Tacoma. A little time after the meeting Senator Squire wrote that when the announcement was made that a separate engineering department had been established for the city of Washington, with headquarters at Seattle, he received a peremptory telegram from the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce ordering him to leave the engineering headquarters established at Tacoma. REV. E. R. HAYWARD DEAD.

A Methodist Minister Who Will Be Missed.

Rev. Eugene Robert Hayward, pastor of the Battery Street Methodist Episcopal church, of this city, died at his residence yesterday morning at 1 o'clock. Mr. Hayward was born in Stockbridge, Calumet county, Wis., October 5, 1846. He was a soldier in the Union army and was wounded in the line of duty. After spending a number of years in the ministry in his native state, where he was very successful, he was especially gifted in evangelistic powers, he removed to Washington. He found an opening in the pastorate and at once entered it, with his accustomed zeal. He has served the Methodist Episcopal churches at Sumner and Buckley, from the latter place coming to Seattle, having been appointed to the Battery Street church by Bishop Joyce.

AT THE UNIVERSITY.

Lincoln's Birthday to Be Observed in an Appropriate Manner.

The anniversary of Lincoln's birthday will be observed at the University of Washington on an extensive scale. The meeting will be held at noon in the university chapel, and an elaborate programme will be presented, comprising sketches of Lincoln's life and other appropriate literary exercises. One member of each class and one member of the faculty will take part in the first public meeting this year at the university, and everybody is invited.

The Woman Who Cares.

To cut down household expenses trades at our grocery store. The woman who doesn't mind whether her husband's pocketbook is light or heavy trades everywhere and anywhere. It's a plain every-day proposition. We sell goods lower than any other grocer in town possibly can, and if you don't take advantage of our prices you're losing just so much money that should and could be saved. You can't excuse yourself on the plea that you don't know that we sell groceries and other articles cheaper than our neighbors. You can't excuse yourself on that plea, because it's the easiest thing in the world to find out. Which do you prefer to do, waste money, or save it? Cooper & Levy, 104 and 106 Commercial street, door south of Vesler avenue.

Spring Brook Stock Farm.

At the annual meeting last night at stockholders of Spring Brook Stock Farm, incorporated, the following trustees were elected: A. J. Wells, A. G. Keene, G. E. Adams, J. E. Maxon, H. M. Vile, B. B. Allen, B. W. Pettit.

New Charter to Be Discussed.

The good and bad features of the new charter made up of voters from the Second to the Fifth. It was a surprise to Deputy Melse, however, when he totally up to the day's registration to 820, for he keeps all such figures in his head and had an idea that the total would be below that of yesterday. The registration yesterday was the largest ever recorded in the city. The fault seems to have been in the vicinity shown during the early days of the registration. The following shows the number in each precinct who registered for the November, 1894, election, and subtracting from it those who registered this year will give the total number of those in each precinct who this year were too busy to register their right to vote. But only partially so, for the population has increased since then, and a number of new voters are registered.

City Hall Notes.

C. J. Eriksson yesterday filed his bond for $250 for the Galathea street improvement. Contractor Baumgartner yesterday began work on the paving of the last block of Second avenue, from Vesler way to James street.

Railroad and Industrial Notes.

Assistant General Traffic Manager F. P. Shelby, of the Great Northern, went East yesterday afternoon. The movement of wheat for export is down by 100,000 bushels from 1,200,000, which came in over the Northern Pacific Monday.

Work on the Northern Pacific freight depot is progressing steadily. The force of about thirty men was engaged inside and outside the building yesterday. The Great Northern announces a rate of 90 cents on staves and heading, rough points, from North Pacific coast terminals to Missouri river and common points.

The Northern Pacific mail and shipping arrangements for January were as follows: From Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern agents, from North Pacific coast terminals proper, 331 cars lumber, 177 cars shingles.

Imperial brands of cereals, Graham and whole wheat flours are registered and guaranteed absolutely pure. Try them from your grocer.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

President Graves said in regard to the location of the army post that he did not desire to appear too confident, and yet there was no doubt of it, that every evidence was in favor of Seattle obtaining the post. The location of the post, as reported in favor of Magnolia bluff, the general commanding the army, the adjutant general, and the commander of this department. Also, the secretary of the army, and the chief of staff, it was very unlikely that such a unanimity of military opinion would be set aside. The army commission while here had asked for the site to be formally tendered, and also as to transportation rates to Magnolia bluff and a supply of city water there. On these two points inquiries had been made and satisfactory answers could be given.

An Old Case Up Again.

The famous collision between the collier William and the steamer Premier near Point No Point was recalled Monday evening, when United States Commissioner Spriggs commenced retaking testimony. The case was before Judge Hanford a long time ago on the libel brought by the Puget Sound Tugboat Company and the Puget Sound Tugboat Company. Salvage amounting to $100,000 was claimed. The testimony was taken in the city and the tug Wanderer went from Tacoma and the tug Tyee from Port Blakeley to the assistance of the vessels, but the information was taken at two points, so leave to amend was given. An answer was filed and now the matter has come up again for the retaking of testimony before Commissioner Spriggs.

Buried With Military Honors.

Mid garlands of flowers and kindly words from classmates and friends, Harry Edwin Booth, the talented young university student, was buried in the View cemetery yesterday. As the casket was lowered to its last resting place a salute was fired by the high school cadets, and taps were given to the solemnly observed martial tone. Dr. Temple made some eloquent remarks over the bier of the dead, and paid him a high tribute. Appropriate music was given by the church choir, and six fellow students acted as pallbearers. Two companies of university cadets were present at the church, and the company of high school cadets followed to the grave. It was a sad ending of so bright a beginning.

FOUR ABSENCES A RESIGNATION.

An amendment to the by-laws was made providing that four consecutive unexcused absences from the board meeting, after notice given by the secretary, be regarded as a resignation. This was proposed last week by Joseph Shipp and was adopted yesterday. A letter was read from W. D. Wood regretting that owing to business and official duties he was unable to attend meetings and tendering his resignation. Jacob Furth, G. B. Adair and others said Mr. Wood was too valuable a man for the board to lose his services, and a motion was carried to accept his resignation.

AMUSEMENTS.

Sousa's Matinee Concert.

The programme for Sousa's matinee concert was published in the Post-Intelligencer yesterday, and interested all by music lovers with interest all over the state and beyond. The matinee performance at the Seattle theater on Thursday afternoon was specially arranged for those who reside outside the city, and the box office is extremely gratified by the number of orders for seats that have come in by mail. Of course, there will be many Seattle people there, too, as the company presents something of the glamour of fashion at touching to it.

Marie Wainwright.

Miss Marie Wainwright, assisted by the best company she ever had, will be the star at the Seattle theater for three nights next week, opening Monday, in a gorgeously costumed revival of "The Love Chase." Nathaniel Hartwig remains the leading man, while Barton Hill and Hattie Russell have been especially engaged for the parts of Sir William Fendlow and Widow Green. Miss Wainwright has recently been most enthusiastically received in this play in New York city. The New York Times said: "Miss Wainwright, always conscientious in her work, was never more so than last night. In appearance, in the display of cordial friendship for Neighbor Wilfrade, the sportsman, and of scorn for the foe he secures, the spell of love for her, and in depicting the phases of love as her heart is affected by the apparent desertion of Wilfrade for another, Miss Wainwright was consistent always, and always charming."

"Paw'n Ticket No. 210."

Tonight will be the last opportunity to see "Paw'n Ticket No. 210." The Love Chase at Corday's theater by the Chase Stock Company. It is certainly one of the liveliest, brightest comedies seen here in many a day, and it is the only play of the kind with a dash and spirit quite captivating. The specialties, singing and dancing, always win a double encore, and in no play has Hattie Russell done so well. It is to be had at a great advantage than in "Paw'n Ticket No. 210." Tomorrow evening the comedy-drama "The Temptation of Money," in which there are many scene effects and a great bridge scene, Miss Chase plays the character.

The Welsbach Light

actor role Clip, and Charles Chase a young sailor, Russell Clark.

The Pickaninny Band.

Playgoers will receive with pleasure the announcement that the great success, "In Old Kentucky," will be presented in this city at the Seattle theater next Friday and Saturday by the same company and with the same effects used in the great production of the play at the Academy of Music, New York, and also at the Boston theater, where it broke all previous records for big business. The Boston Transcript says of the production: "The scenery is wonderfully effective, and the play is far superior to the average melo-drama. There is a great deal of pure heart fun, and every act has its strong situation finely developed."

MAGGIE MORCK MARRIED.

She was the Kent Preacher's Friend, but He Did Not Tie the Knot. The famous scandal at Kent has by no means been removed from the minds of the community, although the minister accused of improper advances toward the young women was exonerated by a council of his brethren in the city. It goes without saying that unusual interest attached to the marriage a few days ago of one of the women toward whom the minister had been friendly.

Nearly a fortnight ago an application was made to Auditor Beman for a license for Walter N. Deitrich, of Tacoma, and Maggie Morck, of Kent, both of them some difficulty was experienced by the applicant in finding a witness who would swear that the young woman was of legal age. A witness was at last found, and the license was issued.

The ceremony took place at Kent last Saturday evening, of course, no one thought of calling upon Rev. Mr. Fulmer to tie the nuptial knot, but the newly married pair started in life with the best wishes of a host of friends.

REAL ESTATE MOVING.

The Parker Block sold for Thirty Thousand Dollars. The New England & Northwestern Investment Company yesterday purchased the Parker block on First avenue south, between Main and Washington, paying for it the good round sum of $30,000. The business was conducted through C. A. McKenzie and A. M. Springer. The purchase has given a hopeful feeling to the property owners of the locality south of Jackson street, and is taken as a sign that investors are already beginning to see the importance of such holdings in view of the filling in of the tide flats and their early occupancy with manufactories and industries of every kind.

An Old Case Up Again.

The famous collision between the collier William and the steamer Premier near Point No Point was recalled Monday evening, when United States Commissioner Spriggs commenced retaking testimony. The case was before Judge Hanford a long time ago on the libel brought by the Puget Sound Tugboat Company and the Puget Sound Tugboat Company. Salvage amounting to $100,000 was claimed. VIOLATED THE GAME LAWS.

Peter Alladio, Proprietor of the Tortoni, Fined $100 and Costs. State Game Warden Frank Boorman is having some men for selling game out of season. On Monday he had Peter Alladio, proprietor of the Tortoni, arrested and succeeded in having him fined $100 and costs in Justice McIlwain's court yesterday. Alladio at first claimed that he had served Mr. Boorman, who, in company with another man, went into the restaurant on Monday and ordered a grouse, with a chicken, but yesterday he changed his mind and concluded to plead guilty.

It is learned on good authority that several more complaints will soon be issued. The manner in which Mr. Boorman discovered that Alladio was selling grouse is quite amusing. On Monday Mr. Boorman and E. W. Johnson, the contractor, went into the Tortoni, took a seat at one of the tables, called a waiter, who asked them what they would like to have.

"Bring us a grouse," said Mr. Boorman. The waiter consulted with Alladio and then the order was filled.

"This is a fine bird," said Mr. Boorman to the waiter. The waiter is reported as having been an adjutant in the army, and he replied that the restaurant got them fresh.

When Alladio was arraigned before Justice McElwain he laughed about the case and said that the same waiter had a piece of chicken covered with cream sauce instead of a grouse. Alladio said the cook and the waiter and himself were laughing when the order was served. Yesterday he was not laughing.

King County Immigration.

The King County Immigration Society met on February 11 and perfected a temporary organization by the election of Maj. S. W. Clark as chairman and H. S. Upper as secretary. After the transaction of routine business and a general interchange of views, the chairman, secretary and Joseph Shippen were appointed a committee to prepare a plan for work to be presented to the society on Thursday, February 13, at 1:30 o'clock, at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, in Seattle, to which time an adjournment was taken. All citizens of King county interested in this important question are urged to be present at that time to aid in the work of adopting a constitution, electing officers, and in other ways placing the society on a solid and permanent basis. It is hoped that every school district and precinct in the county will be represented.
