McKINLEY WINS AGAIN.

The Delegates From Illinois Instructed for Him.

WITH VIGILANT TONGUE AND SILENT MOUTH.

The Fight Between Cullom and the Ohio Man Highly Courted.

Delegates and Audience Were Overwhelmed for McKinley—Gen. Oglesby Sent to the National Convention in Place of Ex-Interoceanic Candidate Commissioner Lister.

Springfield, Ill., April 29.—William McKinley, of Ohio, is the choice of the Republicans of Illinois for president. He was so declared at the Republican state convention here today. He was not only declared the choice, but the overwhelming choice of the people of the state who believe in the principles of the Republican party. Every effort and scheme known to veteran politicians was brought to bear upon the delegates to induce them to name another man, but all the schemes failed. That the people of the state were pleased with the choice was made evident by the applause of the 12,000 spectators and visitors who gathered from all parts of the state to attend the convention. Nearly 100,000 people crowded the grounds, and for nearly five minutes shouted and yelled and cheered. His name was called in the air, and for a time it looked as though the vast crowd had gone mad.

The contest was between the Republicans who believed Shelby Cullom should be honored as the standard-bearer in the presidential contest by the people of this state, on the one hand, and the Republicans who favored McKinley on the other. Arrayed on the side of Senator Cullom was an organization known as the Cook county machine and a large number of leading politicians and statesmen of Illinois. They had to do this because Cullom had, as had ever been formed in this state, but all their plans went wrong today, and while Senator Cullom and his backers met here they met in defeat. At the conclusion of the convention there was a meeting of the delegates at large to elect the victors, and they announced their determination to lend their sincerest and heartiest cooperation in the election of Maj. McKinley.

The battle today was short, lasting scarcely an hour, but in that time the structure of the contest was revealed in a state convention. The candidates for state offices were all nominated, with the exception of the trustees of the state university, before the delegates at large to the national convention were brought up. Up to this time there had been no enthusiastic demonstration of any sort. But, when the chairman announced that the hour for the battle had come, every one in the great building became alert and waited with bated breath for the first gun of the battle. The first shot was fired by Cullom's men in the shape of a resolution instructing the national delegates at large to support him at the 28. McKinley for that matter was offered the outburst of applause was tremendous.

The chairman waited patiently for several minutes to allow the speaker to address the delegates to cool off, and then he attempted to resume order, but he might as well have attempted to stop a Kansas cyclone. He raised his voice and spoke in a hoarse, hoarse voice, but it seemed only to increase the tempestuous outburst. Seeing it was impossible, he allowed the storm to spend itself. From this time on, Senator Cullom's friends gave up hope. They felt that nothing could stop the determination of the delegates to name Maj. McKinley their choice for president. All the speeches that were made in behalf of McKinley there was not a word said that in the slightest reflected on the ability of Senator Cullom as a statesman and leader. Every one of the speakers referred to Cullom in the highest terms and praised him for the faithful services he has rendered to the state. It was stated that the Ohio man was the logical choice; that the people wanted him, and that to refuse to name him would be to refuse to obey the wishes of the people they represented.

When the convention met today James A. Ross was nominated for secretary of state on the third ballot, receiving all the Cook county votes. The vote for him was 79; for I. N. Pearson, 56; J. H. Morrison was nominated for auditor on the second ballot, receiving 67 votes to 64 for C. McKinley. Henry H. Herz was nominated for state treasurer on the first ballot.

After a warm discussion the convention, by vote of 52 to 38, refused to table the resolution instructing the delegates to vote for McKinley. Furious cheers followed the announcement. Then Mr. Fuller moved that the resolution be referred to the national delegates at large to vote on it. The motion was unanimous. The motion was carried unanimously.

When the speaker following the adoption of the McKinley resolution stood, he called the committee on delegates at large to order, and the names of R. W. Patterson, editor of the Chicago Tribune; William Penn Nixon, editor of the Inter Ocean; Joseph W. Fisher, editor of the Bloomington; and D. T. Litterer, editor of the Springfield. Samuel Raymond of Chicago, offered a minority report substituting ex-Gov. Richard V. Oglesby for D. T. Litterer and Mayor George B. Swift in place of William Penn Nixon.

Albermarl Madden spoke at length against the adoption of the minority report, and urged that the roll be called upon the question of substituting Mayor Swift's name for that of William Penn Nixon. The vote resulted 95 for substitution, 70 against, and the convention refused to substitute Swift for Nixon.

D. T. Litterer then arose and withdrew his name in favor of R. J. Oglesby, Gen. Oglesby's name was substituted for that of D. T. Litterer, and the roll was called upon the question of selecting alternates was taken up. The platform of the convention was taken up, and the platform was adopted. The state university trustees were then nominated, after which the convention adjourned.

CRIPPLE CREEK'S RUNS

The Town Quiet and the Work of Relief in Progress.

COLORADO CITIES SEND AID.

Vagabonds Driven From Town and Vigilance Committee Talked Of.

Twenty Acres of Smoking Debris, Around Which Sheltering People Gather, Looking at the Embers of Their Former Homes—Railroads Carrying Refugees Away Free.

Cripple Creek, April 29.—The town is perfectly quiet tonight, notwithstanding the turbulent day. Since the sun went down last night the air has been filled with all sorts of rumors of shootings and lynchings and attempted arson. But none of them has proved true. The report that two bodies would be found in the ruins of the Portland hotel, driven by the presence in the flesh of the supposed dead people. During the day relief was furnished in the shape of provisions and tents from Denver, Pueblo and other Colorado cities. The town was extended to the homeless from citizens of all the towns in the Cripple Creek district. There will be no great suffering, but the people are in a state of distress. The telephone company has given up its wire to any desire to talk to friends. The headquarters have been established, and hundreds are being cared for today. The insurance agents are in session and are endeavoring to make as early a settlement as possible.

In a general way the ground within the fire limits does not present even a decent ruin. The fire swept everything before it just as if a flaming meteor had descended from the sky. The fire moved generally in a northerly direction, spreading out eastward and westward under the impulse of a terrific wind. The smoke, ash, and debris were blown to other warring business structures. The furniture or fixtures, iron, glass, everything that was not melted away.

As the day advanced thousands of people who sought shelter in the neighborhood flocked back to the scene of their losses. Women and children came with husbands and fathers, in most instances, were returned back. The smoldering heaps of debris were constantly bursting into flame, fanned by a rising wind. Twenty acres of the town of Cripple Creek, under the wind gets into them. Every available hose in the town was put in use again by 3 o'clock this morning to flood the heap of debris. The fire was still burning and the very fire lines stand home people awaiting news. Most of them will leave town if they can.

During the night police and militia patrolled the streets and arrested all who could not give strict and prompt accounts of themselves, thus ridding the town of the lawless element. The jail was full by midnight and the police box cars at the Midland depot were improvised into prisons. The morning train brought Sergeant Dunnington and a squad of ten men from Denver, with a look-out for police affairs. A vigilance or relief committee has been organized, and a relief committee has been organized.

The German War With the United States. Potomac, April 29.—Empress William has announced her intention to visit the United States. The emperor, Kaiser Wilhelm, chief of his civil cabinet; the imperial chancellor, Prince Hohenzollern; and Gen. von Falk, chief of the imperial military cabinet. Later Prince Hohenzollern, Baron Marschal von Bieberstein, the minister of foreign affairs, and Dr. Kaiser, chief of the colonial office, had a special audience with the emperor. It is stated that the consultations were with reference to the defeat of a large body of Hottentot rebels in Damaraland in April, when forty-six of the natives were killed and the remainder captured. It is reported that the German and the German lost fifty-six men killed.

The Italian War With Abyssinia. Rome, April 29.—Green books which have been issued show that Italy, in the peace negotiations with King Menelik of Abyssinia, stipulated that if Italy renounced her protectorate over Abyssinia, it should not be replaced by any other power. Gen. Baldissera was instructed to inform Kassala until the autumn, when the final decision was to be taken, unless the city was in great peril, when it could be evacuated.

SEIZURE OF THE COMPETITOR. No Doubt That the Spaniards Acted Within the Law. Washington City, April 29.—Advices have reached Washington City confirming the report from Havana of the capture by the Spanish naval forces of the American schooner Competitor, loaded with arms and ammunition for the insurgents, and with a party of men aboard. Contrary to the first report, however, it was found that the vessel came from Key West, and there is reason to believe that the Spaniards were aware in advance of her departure from Key West and were on the lookout for her off the Cuban coast.

THE PLOT Laid Bare.

RHOODES BACK OF THE RAID.

Damaging Evidence Piled Up Against the Chartered Company.

Hammond's Gaffe Clearly Established—Captured Messages Show the Connection Between Cecil Rhodes, Dr. Jameson and the Reform Committee.

London, April 29.—A short installment of a long message from Pretoria has been received here, which appears to confirm a dispatch from Pretoria published in the Star of yesterday, which is to the effect that telegrams were put in as evidence during the trial of the reformers which, from a cipher discovered in Dr. Jameson's baggage after the flight to Johannesburg and the surrender of the raiders, prove the complicity of the Chartered South Africa Company with the Johannesburg reform leaders and Dr. Jameson. They also prove that the Chartered company had opened a credit for £200,000 in the name of Col. Francis Rhodes, at Johannesburg, to organize the raid, and that the London Times had called the Cape press to the effect that the action in the Johannesburg affair would be prudent. The Times today fully denies the latter assertion. The Pretoria dispatch to the Times further states that documents in the possession of the Transvaal government compromise notable persons and officers in charge of the English raid.

It has been proved that telegrams in great numbers were exchanged between the four reform committees. Leaders already mentioned, at Johannesburg, and Cecil Rhodes, then premier of Cape Colony, and Lord Hertzog, secretary of the British Chartered South Africa Company, at Cape Town, and Dr. Jameson, when the latter was at Pietermaritzburg, December 27 and 28, while the raiders were being organized and actually in movement. These messages, which were in the possession of the territorial government, were produced at the Johannesburg trial, and were expressions as "shareholders' meeting," "rotation company," etc.

Mr. Hammond, it seems clearly established, was an active member in the preparations for the Transvaal raid, and he was the confidential employe and friend of Cecil Rhodes. In one case, for instance, it is shown that he was in Johannesburg, December 27, and that he was in Johannesburg, December 27 and 28, while the raiders were being organized and actually in movement. These messages, which were in the possession of the territorial government, were produced at the Johannesburg trial, and were expressions as "shareholders' meeting," "rotation company," etc.

Other telegrams showed that Dr. Jameson was instructed to start the raid at midnight on December 28, and that he was to be in Johannesburg, December 27 and 28, while the raiders were being organized and actually in movement. These messages, which were in the possession of the territorial government, were produced at the Johannesburg trial, and were expressions as "shareholders' meeting," "rotation company," etc.
