

THE NOMINEES FOR THE WINNING TICKET

The men nominated by the recent Republican convention are known to a large number of their fellow citizens in every part of the county, either personally, by reputation or by public record as officers in positions which they have previously filled in a most satisfactory manner. It is to be expected that such as have not this personal acquaintance or knowledge an opportunity to see who in manner and ability are best qualified to represent the county in the coming year.

Thomas J. Hummel, nominated for re-election as judge of the superior court, has an enviable career, both in public and as a private citizen. He was born in February 1, 1846, in the town of New York, Ind., on the banks of the Wabash. When very young he removed to Kokook county, Ia. At the age of 15 he went to Chicago, Ill., where he remained for two years, then moved to Kansas. His schooling was had principally in Kokook county and Chicago. Two years of his residence in Kansas was spent in the citizens of King county against the Indians. At the age of 19 he went back to Sigourney, Ia., and commenced the study of law. After being admitted to the bar in 1870 he returned to Kansas and practiced in Washington and Shawnee counties. In 1871 and 1872 he was district attorney for Washington county. In March, 1870, he returned to a member of the lower house of the legislature. So satisfactory was the discharge of his duties that he was re-elected in 1871 and again in 1872. In 1873 he came to Seattle and began the practice of law. In 1877 his worth was recognized by his being elected to the office of justice of the peace. In March, 1880, Gov. Ferry appointed him judge of the superior court to fill a place created by a special act of the legislature. He served in that position in King county from one to three. At the general election in the fall he was elected by a good majority to the same office, and was re-elected in 1882 and again in 1884. During his term on the bench he has won a splendid reputation, not only with the bar, but generally for his strict impartial rulings and his able decisions. Not a few cases, involving the most important questions, have come before him, and his work has been in the highest degree satisfactory.

Arthur E. Griffin, nominated for superior judge, was born in New Haven, Connecticut, Minn., April 1, 1822. In 1849 his parents moved to Monticello, Rev. Minn. He attended the common schools and the academy at Monticello. He then attended the Lake Forest academy, near Chicago, Ill., for three years. He then worked in a hardware store at Marshall, Minn., for three years. Attended school at Chicago in 1851, until he was twenty years of age, and in 1854 came to this state, arriving in Tacoma April 15. He taught school at Alderton and later in the same year was employed in the survey of the Cascade division and the survey of the mountain range. He formed a partnership with James Campbell in the general merchandise business at Enumclaw, Wash., for about six years. Studied law at nights while living at Enumclaw, and in 1861 was admitted to the bar by the Northern Pacific lawyers, Hamilton Lewis, by whom he was supplied with books; was admitted to the bar of King county, July 12, 1862. In 1863, by letter, on favorable report of an examining board consisting of Orange Jackson, Junius Hochster, and Will H. Thompson, signed by the latter, was connected with the firm of Stratton, Lewis & Gilman. He conducted the cases brought on behalf of the miners who were killed in the Roslyn mines, and has been in general practice since that time.

Richard Osborn, nominated for superior judge, has received the honor of re-nomination by the Republicans of King county for superior judge. He was born in McLean county, Illinois, on Christmas day, 1835. When in youth he also he removed with his family to Missouri, where the next five years of his life were passed. Although he had not entered the service of the Union early in the war, enlisting in Company D, Twenty-third regiment, of Missouri volunteers, on August 24, 1861. During the period of his military service, extending over three years, he participated in some of the hardest fought battles in the West and South. He started with Sherman on his celebrated march to the sea, but in an action before Atlanta in August, 1864, he was severely wounded. He recovered, but he was not able to engage in active service, and he considered the war closed. He returned home and resumed his studies, which the outbreak of the war rudely interrupted. He taught school a short time, and then entered the Oklahoma college, in Iowa, and afterwards the state normal university of Illinois, where he fitted himself for teaching. He was appointed principal of the graded school at Whitehall, Ill. A year later he was elected sheriff of McLean county, Illinois, and served one term. Judge Osborn then read law and also attended the law department of the Western university, where he was graduated with the degree of B. L. In January, 1875, he was admitted to the bar, and for several years he gained in the successful practice of his profession at Bloomington, Ill. He arrived in Seattle in September, 1881, and at once began active practice. He was elected attorney in 1883-84, and in the fall of 1888 was elected probate judge. He was later elected judge of the superior court, and has twice been re-elected. He is highly esteemed as a painstaking, deliberate and conscientious judge. Judge Osborn has always taken a deep interest in educational matters, and recognizing his peculiar fitness for the position, Gov. Ferry appointed him a member of the board of regents of the state university. He is a member of John F. Miller post, G. A. R., in the organization of which he was identified. He has been an active member of the order of the Knights of Pythias, having been master of the executive committee of the order for a number of times a good deal of poetry, which has been given to the public through the columns of the Washington and Oregon press. Judge Osborn is married and has four children.

Aaron T. Van do Vanter, nominated for re-election as sheriff of King county, was born in Sturges, Mich., on a farm February 25, 1838. He came to Washington in the spring of 1868, he cleared a farm of 20 acres in White river valley. As a practical farmer in every sense of the word, he was elected to the office of sheriff of King county in the state seat from the Twenty-fourth district and was elected sheriff of King county in November, 1884, after one of the hardest fought political battles ever waged in King county. His enemies concede that he has made up the best and most economical sheriff that King county has ever had.

Edward J. Whittemore, nominated for county auditor, was born in Iowa, May 5, 1826. In 1872 he moved with his parents to Omaha, Neb. From thence he removed to the Washington and Oregon Neb. in 1886, and to Long Pine, Neb., in 1891. During his early youth young Whittemore was engaged in the mercantile business in the different towns in which the family resided. During 1851-2, in order to round out his education, he went to the city of Iowa. After he left college, in January, 1853, he was appointed deputy postmaster at Long Pine and held that position a year. He then went to Washington to become the cashier of the Brown County Bank, which position he held until his wife became city treasurer for a year, but resigned when she came to Washington. During all the time he was in Long Pine he was interested in abstract bookkeeping with his father, W. L. Whittemore. Mr. Whittemore had heard a great deal about the city of Washington through his friends, who wished him to come here to embark in business. Finally he concluded to come to the state and arrived here in April, 1855, shortly after his arrival in June, 1855, he was appointed auditor and bookkeeper of the Washington Central Improvement Co., of Keokuk. This position he held for three years. In the latter part of 1858 he was made assistant secretary of the Republican State Convention in Keokuk, Iowa. He worked during the presidential campaign as to secure the commendation of the leaders of the party. This commendation was given to him by the chairman and secretary of the central committee. In 1860 Mr. Whittemore was appointed assistant county auditor, and in 1861 he held that responsible position he has ably filled ever since, and where he has made thousands of friends by his courtesy, his integrity and his ability. He has been elected to the position of county auditor, and on all occasions. This was witnessed by the fact that he was practically unanimously elected by the Republican county convention for auditor on Wednesday.

Mr. Whittemore is a member of the Royal Order of the Sons of the Revolution and Protective Order of Elks, and is a Knight Templar and a member of the Mystic Shrine. He was married in Long Pine, Iowa, to Mrs. Mary Edgington, on April 25, 1858, to Gertrude Edgington and is the father of a boy, Harry, aged 5 years.

Mr. Whittemore is noted for his executive ability, and has managed business and public affairs in a most able manner. He is a member of the Washington county bar, which is almost a foregone conclusion, he will be sure to manage the affairs of that office so as to redound to the credit of the Republican party, his friends and himself.

J. M. E. Atkinson, Republican candidate for county treasurer, was born in Boston, Mass., in 1829. His father, John Atkinson, and his mother came to the Pacific Coast, locating in Eureka, Humboldt county, Cal., in 1851. His mother was married to E. P. Wood, the resident manager and part owner for S. L. Mastie & Co., of the Port Discovery Mill Company. Mr. Atkinson was married to Mrs. W. H. Taylor in 1854, at which time he became agent at Newcastle for the Seattle Coal and Transportation Company, and held that position until 1857. He resigned October 1, 1888, to become manager of the Seattle Coal and Iron Company, and held that position until 1890, when he was connected with James Campbell in the hardware store. Six days later the big fire swept away their business, and continued the business with renewed vigor. The firm was known as Campbell & Atkinson, and was located in the city of Seattle, where they closed out the partnership. Atkinson drawing out and Campbell continuing it under the name of the Union Hardware Company. In April, 1889, Mr. Atkinson bought the interest of Captain W. H. Taylor in the insurance firm of Taylor & Atkinson, which then became Burns & Atkinson.

Mr. Atkinson has always in a quiet way had a voice in the political affairs of Seattle, and was elected to the territorial legislature, serving in that body during the winter of 1877-8. In 1886 his name was before the Republican county convention for county treasurer, but was beaten by only two votes by F. W. Wald, it being the year the People's Party became a fact. Mr. Atkinson was married in Port Townsend in February, 1875, his bride being Miss Calhoun, daughter of Captain Rufus Calhoun, of the U. S. Army, and a sister of the late Dr. George V. Calhoun. Mr. Atkinson is said to have as many personal friends as any man in King county, and he will receive enthusiastic support from all sources.

Frank A. Steele, nominated for prosecuting attorney, was born in Erie county, Pa., and is a little more than thirty-two years of age. During the period of his military service, extending over three years, he participated in some of the hardest fought battles in the West and South. He started with Sherman on his celebrated march to the sea, but in an action before Atlanta in August, 1864, he was severely wounded. He recovered, but he was not able to engage in active service, and he considered the war closed. He returned home and resumed his studies, which the outbreak of the war rudely interrupted. He taught school a short time, and then entered the Oklahoma college, in Iowa, and afterwards the state normal university of Illinois, where he fitted himself for teaching. He was appointed principal of the graded school at Whitehall, Ill. A year later he was elected sheriff of McLean county, Illinois, and served one term. Judge Osborn then read law and also attended the law department of the Western university, where he was graduated with the degree of B. L. In January, 1875, he was admitted to the bar, and for several years he gained in the successful practice of his profession at Bloomington, Ill. He arrived in Seattle in September, 1881, and at once began active practice. He was elected attorney in 1883-84, and in the fall of 1888 was elected probate judge. He was later elected judge of the superior court, and has twice been re-elected. He is highly esteemed as a painstaking, deliberate and conscientious judge. Judge Osborn has always taken a deep interest in educational matters, and recognizing his peculiar fitness for the position, Gov. Ferry appointed him a member of the board of regents of the state university. He is a member of John F. Miller post, G. A. R., in the organization of which he was identified. He has been an active member of the order of the Knights of Pythias, having been master of the executive committee of the order for a number of times a good deal of poetry, which has been given to the public through the columns of the Washington and Oregon press. Judge Osborn is married and has four children.

Harry C. Gordon, Republican nominee for county auditor, was born in Shelby county, Ind., on April 12, 1860. He was raised on a farm, attending the county schools till he received the common school diploma in 1878, and began teaching school in his seventeenth year. During the winter he taught and in the summer he worked on the farm. He was employed in the printing office of the city of Shelby, Ind., at intervals during a period of four years, besides helping to do the farm work. He also studied in the printing office of the city of Shelby, Ind., at intervals during a period of four years, besides helping to do the farm work. He also studied in the printing office of the city of Shelby, Ind., at intervals during a period of four years, besides helping to do the farm work. He also studied in the printing office of the city of Shelby, Ind., at intervals during a period of four years, besides helping to do the farm work.

Herbert W. Taylor, nominated for clerk of the superior court, was born in Sturges, Mich., on a farm February 25, 1838. He came to Washington in the spring of 1868, he cleared a farm of 20 acres in White river valley. As a practical farmer in every sense of the word, he was elected to the office of sheriff of King county in the state seat from the Twenty-fourth district and was elected sheriff of King county in November, 1884, after one of the hardest fought political battles ever waged in King county. His enemies concede that he has made up the best and most economical sheriff that King county has ever had.

William P. McElwain, who is a candidate for re-election as justice of the peace, graduated from Allegheny college, at Meadville, Pa., of which state he is a member, in 1886, with the degree of A. B., and in 1888 received the degree of A. M. He studied law in the office of C. C. Clark, attorney for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and attended Union college of law in Chicago, where he received the degree of LL. D. in 1887. After practicing law in Chicago he came to Seattle in 1888, just one month before the fire. He was a member of the legislature from the Forty-first representative district, and was elected justice of the peace of Seattle in the election two years ago.

I. Israel Walker, Republican candidate for constable, was born at Chester, S. C., thirty years ago. His father is Rev. D. I. Walker, who was state senator from his county from the reconstruction period until South Carolina fell into the hands of the Democracy in 1870. Mr. Walker attended Livingston college, Salisbury, N. C., where he received a normal school education, and in 1875 he began to teach in a school. He has ever since been engaged in the trade. He came to Seattle just after the fire, and worked at his trade. He has been identified with the Republican party since he came to Seattle in 1888, just one month before the fire. He was a member of the legislature from the Forty-first representative district, and was elected justice of the peace of Seattle in the election two years ago.

George Gau, nominated for constable for Seattle precinct, was born at St. Cloud, Minn., February 14, 1863, and received his early education in the public schools of his native town. He attended the University of Michigan in 1885, and received the degree of A. B. He has ever since been engaged in the trade. He came to Seattle just after the fire, and worked at his trade. He has been identified with the Republican party since he came to Seattle in 1888, just one month before the fire. He was a member of the legislature from the Forty-first representative district, and was elected justice of the peace of Seattle in the election two years ago.

John H. Powell, nominated for legislator from the Fourth district, was born in 1866, in Adams county, Ill., and graduated from the University of Michigan in 1888. He removed to this state in 1890, since which time he has been a member of the law firm of Allen & Powell, which firm has an extensive practice, confined in great part to commercial law, in which specialty they are the leaders of the bar of the city. While always interested in politics, this is Mr. Powell's first appearance as a candidate for office.

George B. Kittling, nominated for representative from the Fourth district, was born in Harrisburg, Pa., his father being Dr. L. Kittling. The family moved to Wilmington, Del., in January, 1860. He attended the common schools of Lancaster, Pa., in 1857, with the degree of A. B. In 1860 he was admitted to the bar of Dauphin county, at the capital of Lancaster, Pa., in 1857, with the degree of A. B. In 1860 he was admitted to the bar of Dauphin county, at the capital of Lancaster, Pa., in 1857, with the degree of A. B. In 1860 he was admitted to the bar of Dauphin county, at the capital of Lancaster, Pa., in 1857, with the degree of A. B.

John McKnight, one of the candidates for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

Railroad Company, at Catawissa, and was admitted to the bar in Columbia county, Pa., in May, 1869. In September of the same year he came to Seattle, acting as head clerk in the law offices of Green & Turner. In 1873 he formed a law partnership with J. E. Boyer, and has been engaged in the practice of the law ever since. Mr. Guile married Miss Hettie Belle Dean, a daughter of Mrs. Dr. S. J. Dean, of this city, and is the father of a lusty boy 3 months old.

Edward L. Blaine, candidate for the legislature for the Forty-second representative district, was born in Lebanon, Linn county, Or., in 1862. He is the son of the Rev. E. Blaine, who was the pioneer Methodist minister in Seattle. In his early youth his parents returned to the East, where Mr. Blaine received his education, graduating from Wesleyan University, at Middletown, Conn., in 1886, with special honors in the Latin language. In college he was employed as a teacher of the classics, and upon graduation entered upon that work in Western, R. I. From there he moved to West Hamshire to take charge of an academy, where he remained two years before coming West again to make his home. In 1886 he purchased an interest in the law office of Green & Turner, which firm he is now vice president. He has now quite prominent in the affairs of the city. He is a member of the Board of Education, and has been elected to the office of trustee of the church. In March last he was appointed by Mayor Black the member of the civil service commission for the long term, and has had considerable influence in organizing and establishing the system of civil service in the city. His family consists of a wife and one little girl. He lives in the Eighth ward, and will prove a winner when the votes are counted in November.

W. H. T. Barnes, Republican nominee for representative from the Forty-second district, was born in Lodi, Wis., in March, 1852. After attending the public schools of his native town he was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in March, 1875. He was in the drug business in Dakota for three years, and then removed to Seattle in 1885, since which time he has been engaged in the drug business. He has had charge of most of the time a drug store at First and Battery streets. He was engaged in the business of a pharmacist in the city of Philadelphia in 1881 by the late Gov. Ferry, and was reappointed by Gov. McGraw in 1885. He has been secretary of the Washington State Pharmaceutical Association, the first house of delegates of Seattle. Mr. Barnes was married to the daughter of D. Buchanan, of Riverview, one of the framers of Washington's constitution.

Edmond S. Meany, candidate for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in East Saginaw, Mich., in 1852; came to the Pacific coast with his family in the early '70s, residing a while in San Francisco. He came to Seattle in 1877, started as a newspaper carrier, and worked his way up to reporter, editor, and correspondent. He was engaged in the press agent of the Columbian exhibition, and is registrar of the University of the state of Washington. Mr. Meany represented the Forty-second district in the Second and Third legislatures.

John McKnight, one of the candidates for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

W. A. Elder, candidate for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

W. A. Elder, candidate for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

W. A. Elder, candidate for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

W. A. Elder, candidate for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

W. A. Elder, candidate for representative from the Forty-third district, was born in County Down, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, February 7, 1846; attended a national school for seven years; served three years as a journeyman; was clerk in a wholesale and retail grocery; came to New York in 1861; served in the Fourth New York regiment, in the early part of the war; re-enlisted in the Fourteenth regular infantry July 23, 1865, and served three years on the Coast fighting Indians; was in Saco, Me., in 1870, and moved with his parents to Catawissa, Columbia county, Pa., where he was engaged in the paper mill of the Catawissa Fibre Company. He attended the public schools in Catawissa until he was 15 years of age, when he prepared for college in the state normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., and entered Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa., in 1865, and graduated from the classical department of that institution in 1869. He finished his preparatory study of the law with Hon. William H. Rhawn, counsel for the Philadelphia Reading

SALES OF THE CITY OF PARIS Dry Goods House. WE ARE DETERMINED TO DOUBLE THE SALES FOR THIS WEEK. The Receiver for the CITY OF PARIS. Will mention a few of the special prices for Monday's business. It will be to your advantage to investigate these remarkable values. This business will be wound up in a short time, and if you need Dry Goods buy them now and make your money go twice as far as it ordinarily would. This is an opportunity to buy the children's school dresses at a bargain. Silks. Silks. Cotton Goods. Lace Curtains. Woolen Dress Goods.