Gov. Rogers, on being interviewed on the probability of an extra session of the legislature, said that unless there seemed to be a universal demand on the part of the people throughout the state he would not consider the possibility of such a session.

The capitol building appropriation veto has thoroughly aroused the citizens of Olympia. Gov. Rogers states that at the time of the passage of the bill Judge Logwell, sergeant at arms in the house, reiterated with Speaker Cline upon his announcement that the bill had passed, and that Cline's statement that other important bills were in the same category was only to clear himself from a serious position.

Approved, but Inoperative. OLYMPIA, March 19.—While the governor has approved the granting $500 to the Yakima state fair, remonstrances have been coming in to the governor from various portions of the state to such an extent that the expenditure of this amount in the present condition of the state's finances that the governor stated today that the chances were he would not appoint a state fair commission to succeed the old one who resigned the first day of the present governor's administration.

The house met today that it was still operating under the order of yesterday for the disposal of the four "left over" appropriation bills, the Indian bill and first taken up under the rule adopted yesterday.

Clark of Missouri then took the floor and signified his return to congress with a characteristic speech, which kept the house in an uproar of laughter and applause for fifteen minutes.

Williams, Dem., of Mississippi, said that beyond emphasizing the novelty of the methods there was no reason why there should be opposition to the pending bill, which was an economical and an intelligent one was then passed.

The last bill was the Indian, of which Sherman, Rep., of New York, took charge. He explained that the bill had been thoroughly considered in the last congress. While it contained some features he did not approve, on the whole it was a most excellent measure.

Another resolution making available the salaries of congressional employees was adopted. A resolution was also adopted to extend the time for investigation of the subject of free alcohol in the arts until December.
