

DEWY HALL FILLED.

U. OF W. LITERARY SOCIETIES AD- DRessed BY REV. W. A. MAJOR.

Some Earnest Words to the Young People Who Will Soon Enter the World's Battle—Other Features of the Program—Class Day Exercises This Evening.

Dewy hall at the university was filled last night with members of the several literary societies, who assembled to enjoy a select programme of music and recitation.

The programme included a reading by Rev. W. A. Major, entitled "Some Earnest Words to the Young People Who Will Soon Enter the World's Battle—Other Features of the Program—Class Day Exercises This Evening."

Mr. Major was then introduced by President W. J. Howe, of the Altheusian society, who presided during the evening.

Mr. Major's address in part: "The world is short in time till you will be the prominent factors of our country. The present leaders will stand and the future will have shifted off the scenes of earth."

What you do, in every particular, will make the world better. You are not here for a specific purpose. It is never intended that you should be a factor in the world's progress.

Failures in human lives will one day be considered awful in their consequences. Take the optimistic view that each individual is intended to do a little piece of development. Men are not expected to make progress over the bones of the dead.

There must be in the mind of every man who is engaged in any work, a clear vision of the end to which he is working. Disabuse your mind in the beginning of the idea that some one else is more important than you.

OF HEART FAILURE.

CHARLES W. FRISBEE DROPS DEAD IN THE MOUNTAINS. He Was on His Way to the Money Creek Mining District With Two Companions — For Many Years Connected With H. C. Henry in Railroad Building — His Body Brought to Seattle—Funeral Services Tomorrow.

In the mountains, six miles from Skykomish and three miles from a trail, Charles W. Frisbee, general auditor of the Peninsula railroad, fell dead of heart disease Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The death shock occurred while he was resting on the ground, and before the stricken man could speak a word to his companions, Joseph Lee and Jack McCarthy, he sank down and expired.

The two men stood by the dead body, silent and horrified at the tragic end of their prospecting trip. The blow fell upon them like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. They looked at the stricken man and then at each other. They could hardly realize that the man who had started out with them in the morning so full of life, so happy in the belief that fortune would smile upon his efforts, had passed away so suddenly.

They realized that it was an almost impossible task to carry the body to Skykomish unassisted. It was three miles over a country irregular and piled up with obstacles at every step, before a trail would be reached, and after that the way was tortuous in the extreme. They talked the matter over, and finally came to the conclusion that one of the men should go for assistance while the other would stand watch over their dead companion.

This decision having been reached, McCarthy started across the mountain to camp Chicago, where he arrived yesterday morning, and told Foreman Peter Olson, who was a personal friend of Mr. Frisbee, of what had happened. Olson immediately made for the mountain yesterday morning, and Mr. Frisbee's body was brought to Seattle by Olson and Foreman Peter Olson, who was a personal friend of Mr. Frisbee, of what had happened.

Funeral services for Charles W. Frisbee will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the funeral home of J. J. McLaughlin, 1215 Second street. The casket will be in charge of the funeral home.
