SUICIDE OF A MINING EXPERT WHO WAS IN HARD LUCK.

Stanley's Schemes Fizzled Out, and He Lost His Money and His Grip. A Savage Fight Regarding a Load of Bark-Liquid Licenses at Nelson, B. C.—Supreme Court Decision Against Cheney Normal School.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer.

WHATCOM, Aug. 26.—A telegram was received today from the father of Earl P. Stanley, who committed suicide last night, stating that he would leave at once for this city to take charge of his son's remains. His home is at Santa Clara, Cal.

Very little is known here of young Stanley's activities. When he came here several years ago he claimed to be associated with Tom Price, the well known assayer and mining expert of San Francisco, and said that he was on his way to examine and report upon the quicksilver property near Kamloops, B. C. He had made a number of trips into the mining districts within the past two years, and is said to have succeeded in interesting a number of wealthy Canadian capitalists in some of his ventures, but it is supposed that he did not "pan out" well, and that his backers had ceased to put up.

WILL MOVE TO EVERETT.

Report Regarding Whatcom Falls Mill Controversy.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. WHATCOM, Aug. 26.—The report contained in a special dispatch from Everett published in the Post-Intelligencer yesterday that Loggie & Knight, of the Whatcom Falls Mill Company, of this city, are considering a proposition to lease to Everett a mill having a capacity of 100 tons per day, and a fine plant there upon a site tendered them upon the Snohomish river, has occasioned much inquiry. Mr. Knight was asked by the Post-Intelligencer correspondent whether there was "anything in it," and was told that it is quite true, as the dispatch stated, that they have received a very favorable proposition from Everett, which they are considering, but have not yet accepted. It is also true, he says, that they would have better transportation facilities at Everett, and that they would like to erect a mill there, but they are not at the present time considering it.

It is known as the "Old Colony Mill," from having been built by the Old Whatcom colony from Kansas and Nebraska about fifteen years ago. It is located at the mouth of Whatcom creek and is run by water power. It was there that the mill sawed shingles and lumber, and was cut out in 1881. Mr. Knight says that most of the timber, principally cedar, which they are cutting, comes from the Snohomish, Stillaguamish and Skagitza rivers, and if they were to move they would save a considerable part of the present cost of towing.

CALAMITY HOWLED DOWN.

Populists Reminded That This is the Prospect Before Us.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. EVERETT, Aug. 26.—It was Populist day for a time this afternoon at the Populist Institute being held in this city. The subject was "School House With a Flag," by Rev. W. C. Merritt, of Snohomish. At the close of his address, which was an able one in which he had not in any sense said anything that could be construed as political, Dr. A. H. Eddy, of Bellingham, arose and started a regular Populist campaign speech. He stated that it was not from choice that thousands of men were willing to leave the hardships of Yukon winter, it was not so much to obtain wealth as it was to escape from iniquitous Republican legislation.

MUCH MIXED MATRIMONY.

The Kimbles Both Married Again, Without Divorce. Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. MOUNT VERNON, Aug. 26.—Judge Hudley, of Whatcom, has been busy several days hearing the Kimble divorce case. Divorce was granted and decree entered, ordering division of the property. The circumstances of this case are such as one would seldom read outside of a novel. Kimble was married some forty years ago back East, and three or four years later his wife and he separated without a divorce. They had several children. Mrs. Kimble came West to Missouri and married and Kimble came to this state and married also. Mrs. Kimble's husband died, and she married again. Many years ago she and her second husband were killed by a landslide, and Mrs. Kimble appeared at Mount Vernon and laid claim to part of her husband's property. A long and bitter suit was fought, and it was to the supreme court several times that Mrs. Kimble No. 1 is a great-grandmother now.

THE GOLDEN HARVEST

NOT QUITE MATURE, BUT OUT OF HEAT'S REACH. Grading Delayed for Lack of Samples, but Little to Make Second Grade—Heavy Shipments Coming—Tacoma Brewers Combine—Salmon Moving Eastward—Pierce County Horticulturists Unite.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Aug. 26.—Several days ago the state grain commission, consisting of State Grain Inspector G. P. Wright, W. H. Reed, of Tacoma, and Daniel Stewart, of Walla Walla, expected to meet here today and fix the standards for the ensuing year. It was learned that all samples required cannot be obtained for several days, and the meeting has been postponed a week or ten days.

Samples of wheat are lacking, in particular in the Palouse and Big Bend districts, owing to the fact that the crops there are not matured. It was reported here yesterday that the weather was threatening to damage the standing wheat in the Palouse country. However, there is a diversity of opinion among wheat men as to whether any damage from frost is to be expected. It is well known that the grain inspectors' staff that it would probably be well if the Palouse crop were slightly shrivelled so there could be some grain in the state to grade as No. 2. From all reports the state crop will almost entirely grade No. 1, unless some untoward circumstances occur and damage the grain before it is harvested.

California wheat men are making a strong demand for standard samples of Washington wheat, for the reason that California is buying a large amount in this state. The California crop grades low, and Washington wheat is wanted for mixing with and raising the grade of the Golden state product. One California man here several days ago who had bought 100,000 bushels of Washington wheat for California, and is intended to return to Eastern Washington to make further purchases. V. D. Black, of the Sperry Flour Company, of California, was recently here for the purpose, it is said, of buying wheat for his company.

Wheat receipts at tide water are very encouraging this year, as compared with the receipts at this time a year ago. Receipts at Tacoma in August, 1936, amounted to only eighty car loads, as compared with 280 car loads received to date this month. Average daily receipts here now are twenty car loads, and the number is gradually increasing. The grain arriving is chiefly from the Walla Walla country. It is in the main, of the blue stem variety. A large portion of the receipts is for local milling purposes.
