BUREAU OF INFORMATION IS STILL UNDER DISCUSSION.

Chamber of Commerce Discusses It and Will Take It Up for Further Consideration This Week—Capt. Taylor Wants Information.

The subject of transferring the proposed bureau of information from the control of the Chamber of Commerce to the city, and placing it under the supervision of the police, was the matter of greatest importance that came up for discussion at yesterday's meeting of the board of trustees of the chamber. It was not until after much talk that the subject went over for further consideration.

The discussion was led by Mr. E. Crane, verbal report of the committee on city and county affairs, bearing upon the bureau of information, in which he outlined the plans of the committee.

There was an important discussion when Mr. Crane moved that the chamber express its appreciation of the wise and economical administration of the city's affairs by the city council during the stress of hard times, and to remind them that conditions have changed and that the pay of the police and fire departments is inadequate to the needs of the city.

It was suggested that the chamber recommend that the pay be raised. Judge McGilvra asked against the complimentary memorial to the city council, but the recommendation to raise the salaries of the police and fire departments. He considered the move in favor of commending the economical policy of the council, but said further that all city departments would be clamoring for more pay.

Mr. Crane's report for the committee having in charge the bureau of information recommended that the headquarters of the committee be located adjacent to the docks and steamer landings, where arriving and departing strangers could take advantage of the facilities offered for obtaining knowledge on subjects in relation to the city and Alaska.

The idea of keeping a register of all hotels, looking for a register of all houses, seems to have been also incorporated in the general scheme, and the uniforming of agents and employees was recommended. It was suggested that a report be sought in an ordinance yet to be prepared, whereby hotels, lodging houses and private dwellings where rooms are let will be given a special license, at a cost per room per day (the average being about 10 cents), and the charge being made upon the price received for such rooms. By this means a fund would be created for the maintenance of the bureau.

The committee also suggested that the uniformed agents of the bureau have police powers.

Mr. Crane stated that the council had agreed to accept the names submitted by the chamber as those to fill positions in connection with the bureau, and had asked that such ordinances as might be necessary for the carrying out of the plan be submitted to the council.

Mr. Crane asked for a concurrence by the chamber in the committee's plan as far as the plan of the bureau was an acceptance of the partial report. Upon motion the chamber endorsed the action of the committee. Mr. Crane said further that the bureau would be public and semi-public houses, that objectionable places can be controlled. The bureau would be an advisory agency of all hotels and lodging houses.

Judge McGilvra asked if the ordinance to be drawn by the committee were to be submitted to the chamber for its approval. He was informed that such was not the intention. Judge McGilvra then stated that he would oppose a movement that the chamber was expected to endorse before the ordinance were drawn. He said that he had looked into the organization of the bureau, and that he had a graph in the city charter under which the council could take the matter up. He stated that under article VII of the charter, which provided for the charter of the bureau, that the proposed ordinance might be presented by ordinance of the council, the same section covering emergency measures. Under the section and article read Judge McGilvra believed that the bureau might be established by ordinance of the city or other authority, as no ordinance for creating a new department is admissible under the charter. Judge McGilvra then submitted at special meeting of the council.

Mr. Durie suggested an amendment that the committee be allowed to add to its members so that lawyers and others who would take part might be included. Mr. Durie stated that expedition was necessary, and that no reason was advanced by anything the committee with authority.

CIVIL AND CRIMINAL CHARGES AGAINST LEVI SMITH SETTLED.

Under the Law of This State McElroy Could Not, It is Claimed, Hope for Conviction—Smith Makes Good His Defiant—Heaton to Escape.

Levi G. Smith is at last clear of all criminal and civil charges for appropriating some $6,000 by raising county bridge and road fund warrants while employed in the county auditor's office. The formal dismissal of the criminal charges was effected yesterday, when Judge Jacobs signed an order upon motion of prosecuting attorney McElroy. The civil charge was wiped out at the same time by the payment to the county's attorney of the full amount of Smith's deficit while in the auditor's office, with interest. Smith owes his freedom to a defect in the statutes on the subject of forgery and obtaining money or articles of value under false pretenses in the Smith yesterday's developments in the case have been expected for a long time and occasioned no surprise. Prosecuting attorney McElroy some time ago gave his opinion that Smith could not be convicted under the present statutes. He figured that it would be better to settle up with Smith than to press the criminal charge, which probably would result in an acquittal and leave the county without a civil claim against him. As has been mentioned in the Post-Intelligencer from time to time, Smith's relatives have been very anxious to have the charge against him dropped, and the money with which the case was settled up was raised by them.

The case was to have come up before Judge Jacobs yesterday on Smith's demand for a writ of habeas corpus, with obtaining articles of value under false pretenses. His demurrer to the charge of forgery was sustained by the lower court some time ago, and was not taken to the supreme court by the prosecuting attorney on account of a former holding of that court in a similar case. Yesterday morning attorney McElroy filed a statement with Judge Jacobs in which he set forth these facts, and stated that he did not believe a conviction could be secured owing to the peculiar wording of the statute in becoming the subject of a charge of forgery. The word "warrant" does not appear as in the statutes of many other states, and that the Union arms, was taken partially from a letter written by Confederate soldier and from the personal recollections of Dr. Young himself. The same section covering emergency measures. Under the section and article read Judge McGilvra believed that the bureau might be established by ordinance of the city or other authority, as no ordinance for creating a new department is admissible under the charter. Judge McGilvra then submitted at special meeting of the council.

The following members of the order were present: Col. W. W. Robinson, commander; J. B. Heaton, commander; William Mickel, lieutenant; Commander J. E. Noel, lieutenant; T. M. Young, C. W. Thompson, Maj. O. B. Hayden, Capt. H. Kollock, Capt. E. D. Wheeler, Capt. W. W. Robinson, Jr., Maj. C. W. Snyder and Capt. J. A. Stamm.

AMUSEMENTS. Grand Company in "Martha." Judge Gray's popular company appeared at the Grand theater last night in one of the largest audiences of its brief season in Flotow's opera "Martha." The cast is a small one, but those members of the company who are veterans are distinct advantages who were assigned parts. Miss Mortimer and Miss Myers, as Martha and Nance, sang in harmony with the same careful attention that has marked their previous efforts. Mr. Faehs, as Lionel, and Mr. Langlois, as Plunkett, were both in good voice and their interpretations were well drawn. The chorus was good and the opera well staged and dressed. Tonight the bill is "Ship Ahoy," in which the company's specialties are incorporated, and also for the first time in Seattle, the famous march from "El Capitán."

"The Banker's Daughter." Commencing tonight, "The Banker's Daughter" will be the attraction at the Third Avenue theater for the balance of the week, including the usual Saturday matinee.

On Sunday night comes an attraction that has never yet been greeted by anything but crowded houses in the city. It is nothing more than a musical comedy, with new songs, new specialties and new business of every description.

Black Patti Coming. Black Patti, the celebrated colored prima donna, is billed to appear at the Grand theater next Monday and Tuesday. She is accompanied by a large company of singers, dancers and fun-makers, headed by Ernest Hogan, author of "His Ma" and "All Coons Look Alike to Me."

INTENDING PURCHASERS will be sure to find it to their advantage to call and inspect our large and elegant stock of celebrated pianos and organs, embracing the famous Chickering, Kimball and others.

If the superior quality of instruments associated with our prices and terms does not demonstrate to your entire satisfaction that we can sell you a thoroughly first-class piano or organ for much less than it can be obtained anywhere else in the Northwest, we do not expect you to buy, but it will cost you nothing to investigate, and will be as much to your interest as ours. Pianos moved, tuned and repaired.

There is an interesting story connected with the identity of an ordinary-looking overcoat which is held by the police subject to proof of ownership. The police got it away from the sheriff's office, and the sheriff's office has been trying to get it back. Before the matter is settled it may get into the courts.

The story, or at least a part of it, came out unexpectedly yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Justice Austin's court during the trial of George Hawkins on the charge of petty larceny. Hawkins has been in the county jail serving a term for his crime, committed at Franklin. Certain articles alleged to have been found in his possession when arrested, caused J. J. Harrington, a business man of Bothell Creek, to charge Hawkins with theft. The case came up for trial yesterday afternoon before Justice Austin. Harrington was the first witness. He told how he had seen Hawkins standing in front of his drug store. "I keep the drug store locked," said Mr. Harrington, "and open only when I am in the store. Some time during the night of the 15th day of January, I saw Hawkins in front of the store some entered it by cutting away a panel in the lower part of the door. Some tin cans, tooth brushes and purses were stolen. "Anything else taken?" inquired Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Fulton. "Yes," replied Mr. Harrington; "an overcoat." Then he went on to describe the coat as a blue one, a trifle short in length, and of a length that would reach nearly to the knees. He described minutely the lining and name on the band. A coat was then handed to him, and he said it was the one stolen from him. "I could pick it out of fifty," he added.

"Have you any questions to ask the witness?" asked Justice Austin of the prisoner. "Why, the man never saw me in Boise Creek," replied Hawkins. "I was never there."

L. A. Blake testified that he was in Franklin and saw Hawkins come out of the store at 10 o'clock on the night of the 15th day of January. He described minutely the lining and name on the band. A coat was then handed to him, and he said it was the one stolen from him. "I could pick it out of fifty," he added.

NO OFFICIAL INFORMATION.

Question as to Whether U. P. Has Secured Control of the O. S. L.

George W. Heintz, of Salt Lake City, assistant general manager of the Oregon & Idaho Grande Western, stated yesterday that there has been no official information to the effect that the Union Pacific has secured control of the Oregon & Idaho Grande Western. Heintz said that the Oregon gateway would again be closed to lines competing with the Union Pacific for Northwest business. There is no indication that any Union Pacific advance would result in such a move, and as an evidence of this fact Mr. Heintz says that the Rio Grande Western and connecting lines are procuring extra equipment and making heavy preparations to take care of a share of the Klondike business. Mr. Heintz said that the Rio Grande Western, which was with Mr. Heintz at the time the statement was made, furnished the additional information that a through car from Boston to Portland would leave January 25, and that such service will be weekly thereafter. The first through car will leave Portland for the East February 1. The connections are the Boston & Albany, New York Central, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Rio Grande Western and Oregon Short Line. As the car's itinerary does not include any portion of the Union Pacific, it is fair to believe that the gateway remains open.
