A DEFENSE OF FREE SILVER.

relatives will be sent a telegram telling them of the affair.

Seattle, Jan. 28, 1908. To the Editor: I have read with much interest, but am free to say without profit, your editorial in today's issue of your admirable journal, said editorially being captioned "Republicans and the Gold Standard."

I will advert to but one clause of your argument as basis upon which to rest a hypothetical question in contravention of your deduction.

You hold that the free and unlimited coinage of silver into standard, full legal tender dollars at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold by congressional enactment, irrespective and independent of the consent or acquiescence of any other nation or government would give to the silver dollar so coined a fictitious value. Now, I take it that you are not alone learned in the art of framing words into sentences of various ideas, but that you also have knowledge of the rudimentary and fundamental principles of business; that is to say, if you have anything to buy, you will buy it for the least money of the material that is possible; and per contra, if you have anything to sell, you will sell it for the most money or its equivalent that is possible.

I predicate my reasoning involved in the hypothetical question which follows upon the assumption that as a business man you would do business in accordance with the theorem laid down.

Were you a producer of silver bullion or possessor of that metal in any quantity, would you part with it—that is, sell it or exchange it—for any other commodity at a less price per ounce or per pound than you could get for it at the government mints—that is to say, than you could have secured into ready cash under money—100 cents' value of commodity, labor included, and could liquidate 100 cents' indebtedness, in the absence of any specific contract to the contrary?

I opine that you would not, nor would any other sane man. Now, the moment, comparatively speaking, that this great nation shall have thrown open its mints to the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold, and by congressional enactment shall have declared that every dollar so coined is full legal tender and standard money, being subject or subordinate to no other money tendered legally with higher functions, I hold, because common sense dictates the conclusion, that the commercial value of silver as merchandise rises to $1.25 per ounce, its mint value. Wherein, then, would our silver dollars have fictitious value? The present low value of silver as a commodity is more due to adverse legislation affecting it as money, than to any and all other causes combined. Remove the cause, and you destroy the effect. Give silver its rightful function as money under the constitution, by virtue and power of legislative enactment of this great commercial nation, and in a few months international bi-metallic will have been completely England, the great creditor nation, would be forced to acquiesce to protect and subserve her own interests. Yours respectfully, JNO. AUBREY JONES.

PASS COUNTERFEIT COINS.

A DANGEROUS GANG WAS WORKING ON THE SOUND.

Bad Bills and a Particularly Well Executed Five-Dollar Piece Have Been Set Afloat in Tacoma by Persons Bound to the Klondike.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Jan. 28.—The influx of people from all over the world to Puget sound en route to the Alaskan gold fields has with its many advantages some few drawbacks, as is illustrated here by the activity of government, state and city officials. These officials are kept constantly on guard against trickery and fraud from the criminal class which is prominently represented among the strangers who daily reach Tacoma, where they either remain to await transportation to the north or move to some other port in the hope of facilitating their movements.

Included in the numerous gangs of sure-thing men and other worse criminals are men of wide reputation in their respective lines, and despite the fact that they are bound for the north and want to take no chances of interference on the way, the large number of transient people furnish such an inviting field for operation that "tricks are turned" quite frequently. This fact Tacoma has been practically free from the usual sure-thing tricks, as the gangs are closely watched and given to understand that they will not be permitted to operate here. So that, instead of the worst-out methods, new schemes are sprung, and when a victim is now fleeced it is by some clever trick not down in the catalogue of common, every-day grafts. Not only are these up-to-date systems occasionally set to work with success, but the Sound country is gradually becoming flooded with counterfeit money. The first of the "ques" noticed here was a peculiarly well-made $5 bill, and the latest importation is an excellent imitation of a $5 gold piece. The latter is so well made that merchants who handle hundreds of them in the regular course of business each year are easily victimized. The coin seems to be full weight, has a perfect color, is well milled, and finished so cleverly that any ordinary person would not hesitate to accept it. It is said that some of the coins which have been turned over to the government officials show that the counterfeiters bear different dates, which adds to the trouble of detecting them or tracing the business men how to recognize them.

One of the most prominent hotel men in the city yesterday found one of these coins among his cash receipts of the night previous. Because of its newness it attracted his attention, and after comparing it with others of the same denomination he discovered that it was bogus. United States officials are doing all they are able to locate the source from which the coins are distributed, but as yet they are unable to say of their progress in this direction. The impression prevails that the crooks who have circulated them have waited until ready to leave for the north, and have used them at the last moment before their departure, thus making it very difficult to trace them.

ROUNDING UP VOTERS.

Republican Committee Will Try to Get Full Registration.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Jan. 28.—The local Republicans are evidently not to be outdone by their opponents as to pre-election work, and have formally begun to shape affairs for the April election. The first meeting of the city central committee held last evening the chief topic of interest was registration and discussion as to the best method to get all Republicans on the ballot without delay. Chairman S. H. Balkwill reconsidered his resignation and will remain as the presiding officer of the executive committee.

A large turnout of members showed the high interest in the matter of the coming election, and all present expressed a desire to do the work and enter the lists. The work of getting Republicans registered was informally talked over and decided upon. The executive committee is to handle as it might see fit. Ward and precinct committees will at once begin a systematic round-up of voters of the party, and will appoint lieutenants in each precinct to assist them. Each precinct is to be given a list of a certain number of names of persons who he is to see to it are made to register without delay.

BIG MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Given Originally on the Washington College Property.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Jan. 28.—Hartford college, of Philadelphia, has sued to recover the sum of $6,000 due and secured by mortgage upon twenty-two lots located between Tacoma avenue, G street, Seventh and Eighth streets, which in days gone by were valued at about $5,000. The defendant named are the Annie Wright seminary and William M. Jeffries. The notes and mortgage which were transferred to the Annie Wright seminary are signed by Bishop Phillips, W. D. Taylor, W. F. Fritchard, Frederick Motter and L. H. White. William Jeffries, named as a defendant, was president of the Washington college in 1891, and from his statements it was believed that financial aid would be received to put the college on its feet from certain rich Philadelphians. A few years later the institution was closed, after having sold and deeded its property to the Annie Wright seminary, subject to the $6,000 mortgage now being sued upon.

WILL FILL IN THE GULCHES.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Jan. 28.—Commissioner of Public Works, Deberry is beginning his preliminary steps in the matter of the city filling in the several gulches over which bridges are now constructed. He advocates this plan strongly, and as the city owns all the tools and machinery needed for the work, the outlay necessary will be for labor alone.

Was Probably Drugged.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Jan. 28.—Peter Olquist, who was picked up on the street in an apparently drunken condition last night and lodged in the city jail, was likely drugged and robbed, according to the belief of the officers. While well dressed, the man did not have a cent in his pockets, and he has not explained what happened to him. Detectives are looking into the case.

THREE CARS IN THE BAY.

Carelessness of New Employee Causes Loss to Great Northern.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. WHATCOMB, Jan. 28.—This afternoon two box cars loaded with flour and an empty box car were thrown into the bay at the Great Northern depot, and a passenger coach was wrecked from the tracks and narrowly escaped being thrown over. It all resulted from a new employee leaving part of a train on a curved switch, close to the main track. A train, backing in, striking the cars, No. 10, was hurt, but a brakeman went overboard and had to swim for his life. One car lies on its top, with all sides burst. The others are not so badly damaged. The flour is damaged, and the high tide covering the cars. Conductor Korn was in charge of the train.

Lost Several Fingers.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. OLYMPIA, Jan. 28.—When for some time last night about 9 o'clock in Morgan Bros.' shingle mill, Ed Walker had his right hand badly lacerated by a knot saw. He was at once taken to Dr. McCready, who operated the thumb and the middle fingers of the right hand. Young Walker is about 19 years of age, and is the son of George Walker, one of the pioneers of this country.

ARE YOU TO LIVE IN ALASKA?

Some Requirements That Will Be Found Indispensable.

The universal article of diet in that country, depended upon and indispensable, is bread or biscuit. And to make the bread and biscuit, either in the camp or upon the trail, yeast cannot be used—it must be baking powder; and the powder manufactured by the processes of the Royal Baking Powder Company, miners and prospectors have learned, is the only one which will stand in that peculiar climate of cold and dampness and raise the bread and biscuit satisfactorily.

There is no better guide to follow in these matters, than the advice of those who have gone through similar experience. Mr. McQuesten, who is called "the father of Alaska," after an experience of years upon the trail, in the camp and in the use of every kind of supply powder, said: "We find in Alaska that the importance of a proper kind of baking powder cannot be overestimated. A miner with a can of the best quality of baking powder in Alaska. We have tried all sorts, and have been obliged to settle down to use nothing but the Royal. It is stronger and carries further at first, but above all things it is the only powder that will stand the severe climatic changes of the Arctic region."

Flashed the Boiler Down.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. SNOHOMISH, Jan. 28.—Maughlin Bros. are replacing machinery in the Cyclone mill preparatory to starting up. On Wednesday they brought a large boiler down from a high station, which will be placed in position as soon as possible. The boiler was brought to this city by water. The flues were tightly plugged, and it was floated down stream and hauled up the log chute by means of the machinery.

A SEATTLE WOMAN IN JAIL.

WAS CARRYING A PISTOL FOR SOME UNKNOWN INDIVIDUAL.

She Is Young, Blonde, Handsome, Had Money and a Job—After Her Arrest She Made a Desperate Attempt to Strangle Herself With Her Bon.

Special Dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer. TACOMA, Jan. 28.—A handsome woman hailing from Seattle and calling herself Mrs. Harris is in jail here. She arrived yesterday, and while with friends in a restaurant last evening accidentally discharged a pistol she carried in her clothing. Today the police had her under surveillance, and about 11 p. m. she was arrested.

The revolver she had with her yesterday was taken from her, and this evening she purchased a second weapon from a pawnbroker, who sold her cartridges that would not fit the weapon, fearing from her actions that she meant mischief. The officer who arrested her had been watching her all day, and had been told by her this afternoon she intended returning to Seattle this evening.

She failed to keep her word, and upon learning that she had purchased a second weapon, it was deemed wise to place her under arrest. From her talk, while excited and intoxicated, it is thought she followed some errand lover with the intention of doing him and perhaps herself harm. Her name is not Mr. Harris, but her real identity is kept secret by the police, if it is known by them.

Tonight, after having been arrested, searched and loaded in the women's work of the city jail, Mrs. Harris tried to commit suicide by strangulation, using a fur boa to accomplish the deed, but the jailer, who had been ordered to watch her closely, came into the room in time to rescue her. She was given a cot, tucking with all her strength at the two ends of the boa, which she had wrapped about her neck. This attempt has led the police to keep an officer on guard at her room for the balance of the night.

ALL THE SURPLUS WHEAT.

The Letter Crowd Believes It Ows Every Bushel Not Needed for Food and Seed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—"Basing our estimates on the government figures, we think we now own every bushel of surplus wheat in the country," said G. E. French, the active manager of the big wheat combination, was speaking for himself and Joseph Letter, who is the visible head of the clique. He said:

"According to the most reliable estimates obtainable, we think there is not more than 15,000,000 bushels of wheat unaccounted for. Scattered over different parts of the country we have holdings of 15,000,000 bushels, so we can safely claim to have possession of all the surplus. Added to the government estimate of 33,000,000 bushels for last year's crop the 30,000,000 bushels carried over from the crop of 1906, gave Mr. French his basis of 63,000,000 bushels as the original supply. This he proceeded to dispose of as follows:

Home consumption (estimated).....	14,000,000
Seed (estimated).....	30,000,000
Total.....	44,000,000

The difference between the original estimated supply and the amount accounted for is 19,000,000 bushels. This is the amount of wheat which, according to Mr. French, furnished the key to the situation, and on which the clique has put a price of 15¢ in advance of the Chicago price for May wheat, whatever that may be from day to day.

Too Curious.

Margaret Holmes Bates, in an interesting article, tells some amusing instances of the trouble Johanna, the big chimpanzee at Central park, has brought upon herself by her excessive curiosity. Perhaps one of the best is her experience with a seltzer bottle.

One day a friend of Johanna's keeper brought him a bottle with the usual siphon attachment. Johanna is very curious. As soon as she saw the bottle she was eager to have it in her hands. She begged earnestly that the keeper place it within her grasp on the outside of her cage.

Instantly she grasped it, but handed it very gently. She seems to have studied the nature of glass, since she was so unfortunate as to break a mirror. The siphon puzzled her. She turned the bottle round and round, fingered the cap, and at last held it in such a position as to pour the muzzie straight in her face. At the same instant she happened to press the spring. The seltzer squirted into her face and over her head. Then such screaming! Johanna held onto the bottle, and, not understanding what had caused the flood, she kept her finger on the spring until the bottle was nearly empty.

How frightened she was! The keeper, fearing she might be swayed, did not dare to enter the cage and relieve her, but after awhile succeeded in persuading her to put the bottle on the floor. Then poor Johanna lay on her back, sobbing and moaning alternately, and it was some time before her keeper could quiet her. He tried to explain the mystery of the
