

MR. MALONY TAKES A HAND

He Will Fight Lee Hart for National Delegate.

KING CO. CONTEST NO LONGER

Chairman Democratic State Committee Relates Alleged Conversation Between Himself and Mr. Hart—Latter Says His Campaign Has No Reference to Lewis—State Convention to Settle Contest

It is now almost certain that the fight between Lee Hart and J. W. Godwin for the national delegateship will be taken into state politics and will result in one of the bitterest factional feuds in the history of the state Democracy.

Mr. Meade Emory, one of Mr. Hart's strongest supporters.

national delegate on his merits, and without regard to any other issues.

Mr. Malony's Statement.

Mr. Malony's contribution to the local Democratic row is interesting as showing how thoroughly well the average Democrat likes a fight, and also how deep are the chasms that divide the state Democracy.

The fight in King county for the national delegateship is in reality a fight against Col. Lewis and his friends by Lee Hart. A month or more ago Mr. Hart and I rode on a train together in Eastern Washington.

"I am going to skin Lewis, and I am going after every Lewis man in the state. I shall get Godwin's head first, and then you will come next. Then I shall go after John T. Condon and next William Blackman and Judge Moore. I will compass the defeat of all of these men."

"That was in substance the statement that he made to me. I am sure that that is what he intends to do. I am sure that he would undertake to relegate all of Mr. Lewis' friends to political obscurity. This, it seems to me, explains his fight against myself. I understand full well what he is trying to do. He wants to defeat me for the national delegateship, but he will never succeed. When I was elected chairman of the state committee, I determined to keep my hands off the Godwin-Hart contest. But since Mr. Hart has gone out of King county to attack me and to prevent my election to Kansas City, I feel that I for vice president, or any office for which he may aspire. He also intends to defeat Judge Moore. His pretended cessation of his fight against Mr. Lewis and Judge Moore is for the sole purpose of throwing them off their guard, that he may the more easily work their undoing politically."

Mr. Hart's Reply.

Mr. Hart was informed of the text of the above interview yesterday afternoon. He was asked for a statement, and replied:

"I have nothing to offer for publication. I am seeking to be elected national delegate on my merits. There is no other question involved in this contest. I have no fight on with Mr. Lewis or anybody else."

Democrats there are in plenty who do not attempt to hide the fact that the present contest is one which in point of bitterness and extent has scarcely been equaled in the history of the state Democracy. With contesting delegations promised from the First ward, and there is no telling how far this will go, and the open threats made on both sides that whichever candidate wins there will be defeated in the state convention, there is every prospect that the Democracy of the state will be called on to settle the controversy, on one side of which there appears Leo Hart and his friends, and on the other Chairman Malony, of the state committee, and others.

William Blackman, an avowed Hart worker, said yesterday: "Thomas Malony will never go as a delegate to Kansas City. If he is in the race for the southwest he will be defeated at the state convention because of the manner in which he acted with reference to Hugh Wallace in 1896. You can quote me as saying this."

Both Sides Claim Victory.

The lines are being drawn tightly day by day between the two factions. The Hart men were early in the field and had, they claim, an organization by precincts before the Godwin organization was formed. The Hart men say:

"We have them skinned. The Godwin lieutenants affirm: "We will win in a canter. We'll carry every ward in the city."

The primaries are to be held May 8 and the convention May 12.

NO USE FOR SENATOR CLARK.

Montana Democrats Declare He Can Never Run Again.

When Senator Clark returns to Montana he will find no enthusiastic welcome awaiting him. On the contrary, according to prominent politicians of that state now in this city, cold water will be thrown on his proclaimed ambition to again make the race for the seat which it is charged he once secured by the use of money. Among the Montana visitors now in the city is E. Collins, state treasurer, whose home is in Helena. He is a Democrat, and has been identified with that party in Montana for twenty years.

Government Establishes Temporary Office in Seattle.

LIKELY TO BE MADE PERMANENT

If Experiment Proves Successful and Sufficient Men Can Be Enlisted It Will Be Regularly Maintained—Only Other Station on Coast at San Francisco—What the Service Offers to Those Who Enter It.

The government has decided to establish a naval recruiting office in this city. It will be more or less of an experiment and for the present the office will be temporary. If it proves successful, however, it will be made permanent. The establishment of the office is a matter which the Seattle Chamber of Commerce has been agitating for several months and every effort is being made to justify the action of the government in giving the city a trial. At present the only naval recruiting station on the coast is at San Francisco.

The selection of Seattle as the location of the recruiting office is another tribute to the growing importance of this city in the eyes of the government. Capt. Cole was instructed to investigate conditions in the various cities of the Northwest before opening an office and satisfied himself that Seattle was by long odds the best place for his purpose. The city, he says, is recognized as the great labor market of the Northwest, possessing a large floating population from which he thinks many recruits will be obtained.

The lot of the marines of the United States navy is generally regarded as one of the most desirable in the service of the country's flag. The marine is virtually a soldier of the sea and enjoys a happy combination of sea and shore life. The term of enlistment is five years, two of which under ordinary circumstances are spent in shore duty at naval stations within the United States. The other three are spent in cruising or at naval stations abroad. The pay is the same as in the army, ranging from $18 a month for privates to $41 for the highest noncommissioned officers. In addition the government furnishes shelter, food, clothing and medical attendance.

The allowances for clothing and rations are liberal and the enlisted man if he is of an economical disposition finds no difficulty in saving considerable money out of his clothing allowance. At the end of thirty years service he may retire on three-quarters pay with the customary allowance for good conduct. His life is exempt from much of the drudgery of the "jackie" on board a man-of-war, and he does not suffer the monotony of frontier post life which prevents so many men from entering the army.

The requirements of the government in enlisting men for the marine corps are practically the same as for the army. The recruit must be unmarried, between the ages of 21 and 35 years, not less than five feet five inches, nor more than six feet one inch tall, physically sound, not addicted to the excessive use of intoxicants and be an American citizen or have declared his intention to become such.

Advantages Marines Enjoy. Besides having a splendid opportunity to see the world the chances for advancement in the marine corps are good. An enlisted man who is sober and intelligent rarely fails to become a noncommissioned officer and may even go higher. In war times especially the opportunities for promotion are frequent. In war times also, the pay of the marines is increased 20 per cent.

The recruits made in this city by Capt. Cole will be taken to Bremerton or to Mare Island and thence assigned to duty at naval stations where they may be required. The marines have as their specialty guard duty about ships and shore establishments at naval stations at home and abroad and each warship carries a number of them, generally about 20 per cent. of her crew. The battleship Iowa, for example, has seventy-five. They are armed with rifles, both on sea and land during the war with Spain the marines gained honor for themselves.

At sea the marines occupy a part of the ship to themselves and are exempt from much of the disagreeable menial work of the sailors. For the most part their menial work is confined to keeping their own quarters on the ship clean and orderly.

Capt. Cole, who for eighteen months has been stationed at Fort Orchard, is familiar with conditions on Puget sound and is confident that the government will find no trouble in obtaining a large number of recruits here. He will gladly give additional information regarding his branch of the service to young men who may wish to enter it.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Boston Lyric Opera Company. The engagement of the Boston Lyric Opera Company in this city will prove an event of more than ordinary importance. It will introduce to the music-lovers of this city the great Russo, who has won a reputation as a singer second to no tenor in this country. Also Miss Stanton, Miss Andrews, Miss Leckley, Henry Hallam, George Kunkel, John Henderson, Frank Maslin and Charles Vandine. There is no question that the lovers of high class music in this community will look forward with great interest to this coming engagement, and that opera parties will at once commence to organize themselves.

The reputation of the Lyrics is too well known in this city to need any lengthy comment. The repertoire, Sunday, double bill, "Mascoite" and fourth act of "Rigoletto"; Tuesday, double bill, "Olivette" and third act of "Lucia"; Wednesday, "Il Trovatore"; Thursday, "Marta"; Friday, "Faust"; Saturday, "Marta"; Saturday night, double bill, "Pretty Persian" and Russo in English.

West's Minstrel Jubilee. William H. West's big minstrel jubilee opened last night's engagement at the Seattle theater last evening to a crowd, which filled every nook and corner from orchestra to gallery, one of the best burnt-cork and star specialty production ever seen in this city. It embodies all the characteristics which go to make up the typical American "minstrel show," and goes farther; in this, that there is artistic cleverness and something on the program. In all the large company there is not a weak spot. The audience recognized the brilliancy of the performance by applause such as seldom echoes in the Seattle theater. Everything went with a rush and an sparkle. The music and songs were well
