

Carnival of Dances New Yorkers at for Younger Set to Celebrate Holiday Parties in Florida Welcome New Year Celebrations in the Large Hotels, Clubs and Many Private Homes.

Differences in years were forgotten last night when society in all its active generations, from the girls who have not thought of becoming debutantes yet to their grandmothers, joined in a merry conspiracy to speed the departing year and bid wviduous 1921 a welcome in a carnival of dances.

The debutantes maintained their right to the social foreground with one of the largest of the dances, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Codman Parish of 27 East Seventy-ninth street, the Colony Club to introduce their daughter, Miss Eliza Seymour Parish.

The guests at the dinner included Misses Lee Dodge, Betty Barber, Margaret O. Flint, Molly V. R. Cotswell, Louise Morris, Phyllis Flagg, Elizabeth F. Woodin, Susan B. Coppell, Clare Reynolds, A. South Ogden, Isabel Rockefeller, Eleanor King, Laura Harding, Katharine H. Post, Louise V. Schieffelin, Audrey T. Sherman, Rosamond Johnson of Boston and Allison Phillips; Capt. Noel Alessandro, Capt. Waldemar V. Archwold and Capt. Marcel Morize and Lieut. Armand Julien of the French Army.

Another dinner in advance of the dance was given by Mr. and Mrs. Greenfield T. Emmet for their niece, Miss Eleanor E. R. Feabody. The other dance guests included most of the debutantes of this season and last.

Other members of the young set assembled this home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire, 7 East Seventy-fifth street, where they gave a dance for their daughter, Miss Lina Lancashire. For the girls and the boys who are regretting the close of their holiday recess from school, there was a variety of New Year's eve parties. One of the largest of the junior parties was a dance at the home of Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay in his home, 3 East Seventy-fifth street, for his daughter, Miss Ellen Mackay, who will be in school. The guests, all of whom were invited, included thirty friends for dinner and a hundred more for the dance and welcome to the New Year.

Some of the merriest of the New Year's eve dances, however, were the parties, such as the second of the Friday Junior Dances in the Plaza under the direction of Miss Georgina Harriman Owen and the patronage of Misses Samuel Sloan, Archibald, J. McKee, James Clark, J. Trowbridge Hollister, James B. Lowell, Thomas P. Lamont, Dudley Phelps, George Dupont Pratt, Percy H. Stewart, shopping at Schermerhorn and Charles Chauncy Stillman.

Messrs. C. C. Baldwin, Jr., John H. Claiborne, Jr., Francis B. Hillhouse, John Harriman, James Russell, Lovell and Paul D. Van Rensselaer, who were invited in college, were members of the floor committee.

More of this merry unconventionality was to be found at a supper and dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lewicki in their home, 82 Fifth avenue, and at New Year's eve parties by Mr. Philip Rihmelaender and Mr. Adolph Lewicki, who were invited to the dance by the latter celebration a vaudeville show gave variety to the welcome to the New Year.

At one of the many parties of the night the celebration took a dramatic form. That was in the large ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria at a dance by the Marquette Club. Just before midnight a pantomime representing the "Four Seasons" and "Father Time" was presented under the direction of Evelyn Rita Jantzen, with elaborate lighting effects. Miss Anna Fried and Miss Sadie Cerniglia, of the famous Lewicki Settlement gave an interpretative dance representing the spirit of 1920 and 1921 respectively. As the clock struck twelve the lights were turned off for an instant and a symphony of the blowing of horns and whistles, the ringing of bells and rattles and other noise making devices. The grand march was led by Mr. Ambrose A. Chalmers, president of the club, and Miss Pauline Fonseca, chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Miss Margery Pennefather and Mr. William P. McManus.

Several other parties led into these celebrations: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Greene of 49 Park avenue held a reception in the Ritz-Carlton to introduce their daughter, Miss Margaret Dorothy Greene.

A reception with dancing was given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. William Marston Seabury at 20 West Ninth street for their daughter, Misses Lancelotti and Ethelred Seabury. Their guests numbered some of the young friends of the family who are here from school for the holiday season.

DISCORD, GERMANY'S AIM, SAYS NIVELLE

Defender of Verdun Sees Peace in Union of England, France and America.

Undivided friendship between Great Britain, France and the United States is the best League of Nations and guarantee of the peace of the world, said Major-Gen. Robert Georges Nivelle, the defender of Verdun, at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday following his return to New York from a tour of the country, including London, England, and Germany. He has everything to gain and nothing to lose by starting a new war and she is endeavoring to sow discord and strife between the Allies for that purpose, he said. "If we are to present an unbroken front in the future, as in the past, peace can be maintained and war is the last thing that France desires."

For the first time in history a victorious nation has advanced funds to its vanquished adversary. We demand no war indemnity from Germany—only that she pay for the damage which she has inflicted. France has advanced $5,000,000,000 francs for the restoration of her devastated regions and credited this sum to Germany's account.

"I believe that American women, both as mothers and as citizens, have an influence which will tend to make future wars impossible. I have had many visits from American mothers whose sons are sleeping in France. One of them came to see me in Boston after a trip of over 400 miles. She said she wanted to shake hands with me. I feel sure that the memory of American boys buried in France will make for future peace and unity between the two great republics. I came here to bring a message of hope and of gratitude from the French Government and people for your aid to us. Everywhere my reception has been wonderful and I cannot doubt the feeling of America for France."

Gen. Nivelle will return to France on board the Lorraine January 6 and an airplane will be sent to him before his departure. Last night he was entertained at dinner by Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. Vanvorbilt in their home at 640 Fifth avenue. He will be the dinner guest of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, to-night.

Gen. Nivelle will motor on Sunday to Oyster Bay to visit the grave of Col. Roosevelt's tomb, after which he will pay his respects to Mrs. Roosevelt at her home. He will be the dinner guest of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, to-night.

It was a happy New Year's eve in the theatrical district, for practically every playhouse was packed last night, as the culmination of a holiday season which has been a record for the district. The managers and other managers believe established new records for a week's trade. The receipts for the night were $1,000,000, the highest for the district since the war. The receipts for the night were $1,000,000, the highest for the district since the war.

The crowds packed the theatres despite the holiday advance in prices. Fred Stone topped the list with the record sale of $7.75 for orchestra seats to "Tip Top." Yet in spite of this figure Henry Young, treasurer of the Globe Theatre, estimated that more than 1,500 persons were turned away from the two performances.

Frank Timney in "Tinkle Me" followed close behind with $600, on which basis the Selwyn Theatre was jammed. Most of the other leading attractions charged $5.50 for the best seats. These included "Sally," at the Grand, "The Merry Widow" at the Knickerbocker, "The Bad Man" at the Comedians and "Enter Madame" at the Fulton.

Celebrations of various kinds were held by managers and casts at the various houses. Foremost among these was the gala performance at the Gaitey, which held the double significance of observing the holiday and commemorating the 1,000th performance at the Theatre of Frank Bacon and his company in "Lightning" marked a world's record. John Golden, the producer, distributed souvenir programmes to the audience, which included a tribute to the play from Mrs. Warren G. Harding—the first public testimonial of its kind from the wife of the President-elect.
