

STILLMAN NAMES AN INDIAN GUIDE IN HIS DIVORCE SUIT

Allegations Made in Action Brought by Banker Cover Nearly Two Years.

CASE CALLED TO-DAY Arguments Will Be Made in Open Court at Poughkeepsie.

BABY ALSO A DEFENDANT

John E. Mack Named Guardian Pending Litigation—Attorneys Refuse to Talk.

James A. Stillman, president of the National City Bank, has named Fred Beauvais, a half breed Indian guide of Camp St. Ilmas, Province of Quebec, Canada, as correspondent in the suit for divorce he has brought against Anna U. Stillman in the Supreme Court at Poughkeepsie.

The name of Guy Stillman, now twenty-eight months old, also is mentioned prominently in the papers, the whereabouts of which are known only to the attorneys in the suit. No lawyer on either side would make a statement yesterday.

The docket of the Supreme Court, which is in the chamber of Justice Joseph Morschauer, before whom the suit will be tried, reveals that the summons and complaint were served upon Mrs. Stillman early last September. On the thirteenth day of that month attorneys for the banker and his wife appeared before Justice Morschauer, and an order of appointment was made, naming John E. Mack, formerly District Attorney of Dutchess county, guardian ad litem for Guy Stillman, who is named jointly with his mother as defendant. Since then the action has been one of moving papers.

Principals Not in Court. Since September attorneys for Mr. Stillman have appeared in court three times, and they will make their fourth appearance to-day before Justice Morschauer at Poughkeepsie, when the argument will be in open court. Neither Mr. Stillman nor Guy Stillman has appeared in court at any time, and the indications are that they will not appear to-day.

Mr. Mack, as guardian of the legal rights of Guy Stillman, which are said to be jeopardized by the divorce action, has been present each time the continuing attorneys have appeared, and placed motions before the court. The motion which the Justice will be asked to rule upon to-day is one made last Saturday by the law firm of Gleason Morschauer and Daniel J. Gleason, Surrogate of Dutchess county, who has been named as referee to take testimony relative to the allegations of the complainant. Neither Justice Morschauer nor Referee Gleason, however, would discuss the case.

Referee Named Last December. "I cannot say when the action was begun," said Mr. Gleason, "or whether there is more than one action. All I know is that I was appointed referee about six weeks ago. I have seen the complaint, but I cannot tell you its contents." Justice Morschauer said: "I know nothing about the complaint. I would not see it, you know. All I know about the case is what will be found in the official docket. I was requested by the attorneys for both parties to appoint a guardian ad litem to defend the rights of the infant and to appoint a referee." Surrogate Gleason could not recall the exact date of his appointment as referee, but the docket revealed that it was on December 11, 1919. On that occasion, as before, Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft represented Mrs. Stillman and Guy Stillman, while Mr. Stillman was represented by the firm of Nicolai, Venable, Fuller & Stillman.

Although Mr. Gleason refused to admit that certain French Canadians have benefited on the case, it is understood that at least four have appeared and told of the alleged relations between Mrs. Stillman and the Indian guide, Beauvais. The guide was not among those who appeared, and it could not be learned if he would be called. It is known, however, that a private detective made a trip to Camp St. Ilmas recently in search of Beauvais, although it is not known who employed the detective.

Justice Morschauer explained that it is not unusual for a complaint in a divorce action not to be filed before the referee begins hearings, as was the case in the Stillman suit. In the Ninth Judicial District of the Supreme Court, over which Justice Morschauer presides, it is not necessary for an attorney to file the complaint until there has been a decision of judgment granted, and then it may be filed with the County Clerk of any county included in the department. The Ninth District comprises the counties of Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Orange and Rockland.

George W. Wickersham, of counsel for Mrs. Stillman, refused to deny or affirm any of the reported actions taken in the case. He said, however, that a statement might be issued within a few days. Attorney for Mr. Stillman also refused to discuss the case.

NEW JOB FOR DR. ALSBERG. Dr. C. L. Alsberg, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture, has been appointed a director of the Food Research Institute which is to be established at Stanford University, California, according to an announcement made last night by the Carnegie Corporation. Dr. Alsberg will assume his new duties about July 1, it was said.

MOROSINI, OLD TIME TENOR, DIES AMONG HIS TREASURES

Body Found at Foot of Stairs, Victim of Accident—Was in Original Cast of "Erminie" and Supported Lillian Russell in the Nineties.

Three choir girls studying vocal music under the direction of Robert Morosini, who was well known twenty-five years ago as a light opera tenor, were puzzled Wednesday night when he failed to keep an appointment for a lesson.

They telephoned to his home at 3318 avenue L, Brooklyn, but received no answer. They went to the Manhattan house and found it shut tight. They called a neighbor. "There must be something wrong," they said. The police were called.

Detective Johnson and a policeman broke open a rear window and came upon Morosini lying on his side, one foot almost touching the inner screen door, his head resting upon the lower step of the stairs to the second floor. He was in his night clothes and had been dead three days. There was blood on his cheek and mouth.

While the autopsy has not been performed as yet, the police are convinced that death was accidental. It is thought that Morosini, who had not been in good health, became ill Wednesday morning and sought to call aid by the telephone downstairs. He apparently fell the entire length of the stairs. The police found that Morosini was considered eccentric by neighbors. He was a Christian Scientist, they said, and had lived alone ever since his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Owen, widow of John E. Owen, an old actor, died two years ago. He did his own marketing and cooked his own meals.

The house was a veritable treasure chest of antiques and bric-a-brac. Pictures were everywhere. There were autographed photographs of Fritz Kreisler, Max Gardes, and Ellen Terry. Twenty-second street, where Morosini lived, was a large autographed photo of Caruso dated 1908, and one of Edna May, 1905.

Frank Weaver, a florist of 135 West 188th St., Mrs. Schumann-Heink, a large autographed photo of Caruso dated 1908, and one of Edna May, 1905. Morosini's friend thirty years, said yesterday that Morosini had been a leading tenor with the Duff and Emma Abbott Opera company in the nineties. Weaver said that Morosini sang with the Duff Opera Company when Lillian Russell was its prima donna. He added that Morosini had been in the time of his death organist and choirmaster at the Labor Temple at Fourteenth street and Second avenue. He was a member of the original cast of "Erminie" with Francis Wilson at the Casino Theatre.

3 MEN BIND WOMAN AND SEIZE JEWELS

Enter Newark Apartment at Point of Gun and Escape in Limousine.

Mrs. Lillian Hietrich returned from an automobile ride yesterday afternoon, and after leaving her car in the garage she walked up to her apartment on the third floor of 351 South Twelfth street, Newark. She went in and placed her handbag, containing $25 in cash, on a table by the door. Without closing the door she stepped to the center of the room and began to remove her coat when she heard a noise behind her. She turned to see three young men crowding into the apartment.

"What do you want?" cried Mrs. Hietrich. She jumped forward and seized one of them, trying to push him out of the apartment. But the man drew a revolver and pointed it at her, while one of the others closed the door and locked it.

"Keep still!" commanded the man with the gun, "or I'll kill you!" While this man continued to cover Mrs. Hietrich with his revolver, the other two burglars went into the bedroom of the apartment and jerked the sheet from the bed. He ripped it into strips, and then, with the aid of another, tied Mrs. Hietrich to a pillar behind her. The burglar then went to the door between the living room and the bedroom. They tied her hands and feet fast to the post and wrapped several of the strips of cloth about her body, so that she could barely move.

The burglars made no effort to search the apartment. One of them continued to point his revolver at Mrs. Hietrich, while the others tore two diamond earrings from her ears, a diamond lavallier from her throat and two diamonds from her fingers, all valued by Mrs. Hietrich at about $1,500. Then they started out, one of them putting the handbag in his pocket as he passed the table. They stopped at the door and looked back at Mrs. Hietrich, who said she would be killed if she made an outcry.

But the door had no sooner closed behind them than Mrs. Hietrich began to squirm and work herself loose from the pillar. She managed to release herself in a few moments and ran to the front window, where she leaned out and shouted for the police. Several other tenants heard her and telephoned to Police Headquarters. While looking out of the window Mrs. Hietrich saw the three men leave the doorway of the apartment house and walk slowly down the street toward a limousine which stood near Fifteenth avenue. When she started just before they reached it. Two of them leaped into the machine, and the third missed his footing and fell, one of the rear wheels running over his arm. The other two men jumped from the car and helped the fallen man inside and then the machine turned into Fifteenth avenue and disappeared.

When the police a description of the three men, but up to a late hour last night no trace had been found of them.

POLICE WOULDN'T MAKE HUSBAND MOVE OVER

So 300 Pound Woman Could Not Go to Bed.

Sergeant Nutty was behind the desk in the West Forty-seventh street station last night when a woman, who weighed at least 300 pounds, pushed open the door and made her way, with much wheezing and puffing, to the desk.

"I want a policeman to make my husband move over so I can go to bed," the woman said. "He is lying all over the bed and he won't let me in."

"What's the matter with him?" "He says he is sick, but I don't believe it. I think he is lazy and mean. I've got to go to work in the morning and I'll get fired if I don't get some rest. He won't move over so I can get some rest."

"Why don't you push him over?" asked the sergeant. "I tried to," the woman said. "I've been pulling and pushing at him for an hour, but he won't move."

The sergeant told her that the police department had no authority to make her husband move over, and the woman left with the advice to go to court in the morning and tell the magistrate.

CHARGE CONCEALED WEAPONS

George Long, 18, an electrician's helper, living at 64 East Forty-first street, was arrested last night in the waiting room of the Grand Central Terminal by Detectives Cuhane of the East Fifty-first street station and Kennedy of the Grand Central station. He was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. When arrested at the police station a home made black and white detector's badge was found on his person. He told the officers he got the badge from New York about two months ago from South Bethlehem, Pa.

CARUSO SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Three reports of the condition of Enrico Caruso, issued at various times during yesterday were all favorable. His physicians prepared a bulletin which said the patient is progressing slowly and that his wound is improving. He was resting comfortably last night.

I intend to make The Herald my exclusive advertising medium and to recommend it to my friends at every opportunity," says a line from another Herald Want Ad, which was published yesterday.

PROMOTER FACES PRISON SENTENCE

John Channing Bernard of Fashion Show Fame Guilty of Grand Larceny.

John Channing Bernard, promoter of the Revue de Fashion at the Hotel Pennsylvania, faces a court sentence on a matter that has nothing to do with his failure to pay models, wardrobe women, stage hands and carpenters for what they did in producing the show. It developed yesterday in the Criminal Courts Building, when a little group of angry models gathered about the doorway of Part 6 of General Sessions, that Bernard on February 1 had pleaded guilty to grand larceny in connection with a moving picture stock selling scheme. Sentence was to have been pronounced yesterday. It was deferred until March 12.

No one saw Bernard in the Criminal Courts Building. If he arrived in response to summons he did not make his presence known to the young women of the Revue de Fashion, nor did Norman L. Bailey of Caldwell, N. J., see him. It was Bailey's complaint that Bernard obtained $500 from him by fraud in July, 1919, that brought the fashion show promoter into court on a larceny indictment. Bailey told the girls details of his complaint against Bernard while he waited outside the courtroom. Arthur S. Tompkins to arrive and pronounce sentence.

Bernard was indicted on August 3, 1919. It was charged that he inserted an advertisement in a Newark newspaper in the name of the United States Film Corporation of New Jersey, with which he then had no business connection, and that he induced several persons to qualified persons who would invest in the stock of the company. Bailey, who answered the "ad," said Bernard offered him $50 a week as a promoter manager if he invested $500. In return Bailey would get $2,000 of stock, par value. According to the indictment, in which Thomas E. Bailey, a brother of Norman, also was a complainant, Norman gave Bernard $500 in Liberty bonds in New York city. No job and no stock materialized.

Through counsel Bernard pleaded guilty before Justice Tompkins and offered to make restitution, giving $200 to Bailey in open court. Counsel appeared in court a second time on February 26, and his client was then engaged in promoting a fashion show and would soon have the remaining $300 to complete the payment. Justice Tompkins deferred sentence until yesterday, but was unable to reach the court room before 2 o'clock, and by telephone fixed later date for sentencing.

Assistant Corporation Counsel James E. Smith, who examined eight witnesses in the Revue de Fashion investigation. He said that $6,100 has been discovered on deposit by the Revue de Fashion, Inc., in the Commercial Trust Company, and that the show promoters have submitted a report listing $7,185 as money collected and expended.

Witnesses who have appeared say that it was represented early in the year that the show profits would go to Far East Relief. Later those interested incorporated a company for producing the show, but Bernard's name does not appear as an incorporator.

JOE AND HIS HEN PASS NIGHT IN STATION JAIL

His Holding of Chicken Head Down Causes Arrest.

Joseph de Antonio and a brown hen, which he had bought somewhere in Brooklyn and was carrying home by subway in preparation for a feast to be eaten last night at the home of a woman, were arrested in Night Court simultaneously last night after a woman had complained to a patrolman riding in the subway that Joe was carrying the hen upside down.

The arrest took place at the Chambers street station during most of the ride through the tube Miss Frances E. Clarke of 1659 Park place, Brooklyn, had stood at one side of De Antonio, telling him that she had ought to be held with his head up.

Miss Clarke finally called Patrolman Green, who was riding home. He took De Antonio and the chicken and Miss Clarke to a police station and later to Night Court. Magistrate Nolan held De Antonio in $100 bail for a hearing. He hadn't $100, and was locked up, taking the hen with him.

WALL ST. CLERK LOSES WIFE; SUES FOR $100,000

Ferris Accuses Du Pee, Said to Be California Capitalist.

Archibald Ferris, a Wall Street clerk, through his attorney Harold R. Kover of 120 William street, began a suit yesterday for $100,000 against John Du Pee, California capitalist, for alleged alienation of the affections of his wife, Alice Ferris.

Ferris in his complaint says he was married in Washington, D. C., in 1917 and that while he was in service in March, 1918, Du Pee met his wife, accompanied her to restaurants and places of amusement and by his display of wealth poisoned her mind against her husband and led her to desert, so that she will not return to him even now.

ROBBERS MURDER JEWELLER; ESCAPE WITH $2,000 GEMS

Bind and Gag Owner After Battle in Harlem Shop.

BULLDOG GUARDS BODY

Seven Suspects Arrested for Alleged Complicity in Recent Holdup.

ARMS FOUND IN MOTORCAR

New Brooklyn Patrolman Foils Restaurant Burglary and Arrests Three.

Abraham Harris, jeweller, was tied to an armchair yesterday in an improvised bedroom in the rear of his little store at 2268 Eighth avenue, gagged with a knitted necktie, robbed of jewelry valued at $2,000, and finally shot to death by two bandits after he had broken away in a terrific struggle and had one shot at his torturers.

Two negroes, who had seen two white men carrying boxes of jewels away from the store, and running in opposite directions, discovered Harris' store. He had a bullet wound in the chest and another in the left side of his neck. His revolver, with one chamber empty, was on the bed near by. A pet bulldog, making a noise between a grovel and a whimper, was standing by the body. Pieces of furniture in the room were upset and broken, indicating that Harris who was a powerful man, had put up a hard battle with the bandits.

Patrolman Broderick, who was called from the West 123d street station, was unable to get near the body until he had tied the strap of his flashlight around the neck of the bulldog. Then he needed the help of the negroes to drag the dog away.

Harris, his arms and legs securely fastened, was bound to a chair with a piece of white rope. The police believe that when the robbers entered they backed him into the bedroom and tied him up. Later, while they were scooping up pieces of jewelry scattered about the room, Harris succeeded in freeing himself sufficiently to reach for his revolver on the bed and fire a shot. The shot, it is believed, went wild and struck a tool rack in the hallway, but the indications are that the bandits then fired one shot each and ran away with the loot.

Search Instituted. David Harris of 2366 Grand Concourse, a brother of the jeweller, who took charge of the store, said that the safe had been cleaned out, and, though the value of the stolen jewelry probably not be sure until after an inventory. The negroes who found the body furnished a fairly accurate description of the bandits to a patrolman at Court Justice.

Seven men in a touring car, which the police say is used for funeral processions, were arrested yesterday at a residence, were arrested by detectives of Commissioner Enright's automobile cruising squadron. The car was picked up at Bleeker and Thompson streets and followed for several blocks, when the detectives drew up alongside, drew their pistols and lined the men up to be searched. Nothing was found on them, but three loaded revolvers and two blackjacks.

When arraigned before Magistrate Bernard Rosenblatt in Essex Market Court the men did not deny that they were charged with suspicion of robbery in connection with the holdup of a cigar store at 101 Bowery on the night of February 26, and were held in $1,000 bail.

The men gave their names as Morris Helman of 150 Rivington street, Harry Debinof of 3 Jones street, Carmine Rago of 4297 Third street, and Louis Aaron Winger of 42 Avenue D and Harry Wandrup of 109 Attorney street.

Suspected of Holdup. A youth describing himself as William McGovern of Tennessee and stopping at the Mills Hotel, was held in $2,000 bail yesterday for the grand jury by Magistrate McQuinn in Jefferson Market Court on the complaint of Jack Friedman, a vaudeville actor of 237 Third avenue. Friedman said that McGovern and another man held him up on the night of March 7 at Seventh avenue and Thirty-sixth street.

Patrolman John Cooney, recently appointed to the police force and attached to the Bergen street station in Brooklyn, got into action yesterday for the first time when he arrested three alleged burglars whom he said he caught riding a restaurant at 179 Third avenue, Brooklyn. The men put up $1,000 bail, he said, and several shots were fired before they surrendered. He marched them to the point of a revolver to the Bergen street station, where they gave their names as Otto Huhn of 211 Dufrail street, Reginald Matthews of 158 Third avenue and Harry Page of 511 Warren street. The police said that several boxes of cigars were found on them. Page and Matthews are negroes.

Some valuable antiques were stolen last Thursday night from the home of George S. Hiss, at 149 Sunnyside avenue, Brooklyn. While the family was out to dinner burglars ransacked two bedrooms, opened a safe and visited the bathroom. Although there was a quantity of solid silverware in the dining room, only the antique pieces were taken.

Little Brother's Coat is of an equally lovely misty blue-mixture, decidedly mannish with its strictly tailored lines and belted back. Inverted pleat in back; notch collar and flap pockets. Sizes 1 to 3 years.

Other attractive coats in tweeds, polo cloths, serges and homespuns in all the colors a child likes best.

Hats, $4.95 to $12.95

The little boy in the picture is wearing a smart tailored hat of straw, with gros-grain band, $4.95.

The little girl's hat is of natural colored straw with border of dark brown, and long streamers of brown gros-grain ribbon to match, $12.95.

Other extremely chic hats in colors to harmonize, or match coats. Prices up to $12.95.

Third Floor, Old Building.

John Wanamaker Broadway at Ninth, New York

Broadway at Ninth Street New York Business Hours—9 to 5. Tel. Stuyvesant 4700.

The John Wanamaker Store Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co.

IT is not big type and big talk in the newspapers—but the quality, fashion and fair price of the goods in the store which make value and give lasting satisfaction.

Store-Wide Showing of New Easter Fashions

Riding Out to the Soldiers' Home

one day with Abraham Lincoln his friend discovered that the President, like many others of us, had the habit of loading his trousers' pockets with little scraps of papers culled from the newspapers and magazines. Mr. Lincoln, at a sudden turn of the conversation, put his big hand into his pocket and brought out a bunch of scraps and picked out the little piece bearing this verse, which was appropos to what he had been saying of the urgency of prompt action:

"A weaver sat at his loom Flinging his shuttle fast, And a thread that should wear till the hour of doom Was added at every cast."

Who wrote the verses the writer does not know. Possibly Mr. Smyth in the Book Store will tell.

[Signed] John Wanamaker

March 12, 1921.

Matinee Recital

In the Auditorium, Today at 2:30, Under the direction of La Forge-Berumen Studios. First Gallery, New Bldg.

S-w-e-e-t-s

The week-end special is a delicious assortment of Italian creams with fruit and nut flavors, chocolate covered, at 60¢ pound.

Eight Gallery, New Bldg. Downstairs Store, New Bldg.

Much-favored Blouses at $6.95

The much-favored overblouse with Eton collar and cuffs of heavy crash linen and with a narrow tie-around girdle is specially featured for today's selling. Wool jersey in henna color, midnight blue and a beautiful Holland blue.

The same model is also to be had in imported cotton ratine, in light green, Copenhagen blue and lavender at $5.95. Second Floor, Old Bldg.

Women's new Spring Coats at $48

There are little straight line coats that have a small cape effect over the sleeves in dark blue Poret twill, with collar and cape effect, stitched in white.

Another coat in fine blue Poret twill has a tendency to ripple about the bottom and has white, stitched and pointed panels from the hem to the hips.

Other models, cut bolivia cloth and tinseltone, are in shades of ostrich, tan, pewter, gray and Copenhagen blue. These are made with set-in sleeves with a wide armhole, a departure from the dolman. Not quite straight of line, some are in three-quarter length sports models.

Lined with fancy and plain silks in matching color. Second Floor, Old Bldg.

Men's Easter Gloves

Chamois, natural color—a yellowish shade—with smart embroidery and stitching. $3.50 pair. Washable.

Buckskin gloves, with self or black embroidery, pair $4.50. White kidskin, $4.50 pair. Mocha in gray, $3.50 pair. Mocha, gray or mode, $5 and $5.50 pair.

REYNIER chevette, gray or tan, $5.50. Capeskin gloves, pair $3. French pique kidskin, tan, $3.50.

Paris Coats, adapted, at $39.50, $59.50

An adaptation of a Madeline et Madeline model is of a noteworthy quality of navy blue serge, which gives an effective background for the profusion of knotted embroidery in gray wool yarn on the collar, cuffs and deep border around bottom of coat. Lined with soft blue silk, $39.50.

One of the most attractive coats every created by CHER-UIT has been adapted in navy blue tricotine with Tuxedo fronts and collar (all in one) and cuffs of beige colored heavy silk crepe.

This coat may be worn in three ways—with straight-lines, with narrow belt and bloused in the back, or wrapped about one. $59.50.

Pleated skirts, $11.75

Plaid, checked and striped woolen materials; smart colors; our $22.50 to $25 grades. Second Floor, Old Bldg., Tenth Street.

For Miss 14 to 20

Serge Suits, $29.75 long-looked-for price

The market has not descended sufficiently to permit this low price for this type of suit, but we have made it possible by copying a much more expensive model, and by having the co-operation of one of our regular tailors.

Model in which the suits are fashioned has a modified box coat with notch collar and revers; border effect of braid. Navy blue only.

Suits at $35 and $59.50

Navy blue serge suits at $35 are in the smart severely tailored model. Suits at $59.50 are of navy blue tricotine—coats are effectively embroidered.

Taffeta ruffles, $39.50

The tiny ruffles which give such a delightfully feminine touch to the model are picot-edged in a contrasting color—for instance, in French blue on black; tan on brown; French blue on navy blue. The fichu shaped collar is charming, too. Second Floor, Old Bldg.

THE MEN'S STORE

Spring Suits call to men

Suits for young men and for elderly men; suits for business wear and outing wear; suits to which we have entrusted the reputation of this great clothing store; imported and domestic tweeds, unfinished worsteds, chevots and flannels, in very attractive patterns. $40 to $70. Second Floor, Old Building.

Women's new Spring Coats at $48

There are little straight line coats that have a small cape effect over the sleeves in dark blue Poret twill, with collar and cape effect, stitched in white.

Another coat in fine blue Poret twill has a tendency to ripple about the bottom and has white, stitched and pointed panels from the hem to the hips.

Other models, cut bolivia cloth and tinseltone, are in shades of ostrich, tan, pewter, gray and Copenhagen blue. These are made with set-in sleeves with a wide armhole, a departure from the dolman. Not quite straight of line, some are in three-quarter length sports models.

Lined with fancy and plain silks in matching color. Second Floor, Old Bldg.

Men's Easter Gloves

Chamois, natural color—a yellowish shade—with smart embroidery and stitching. $3.50 pair. Washable.

Buckskin gloves, with self or black embroidery, pair $4.50. White kidskin, $4.50 pair. Mocha in gray, $3.50 pair. Mocha, gray or mode, $5 and $5.50 pair.

REYNIER chevette, gray or tan, $5.50. Capeskin gloves, pair $3. French pique kidskin, tan, $3.50.

Paris Coats, adapted, at $39.50, $59.50

An adaptation of a Madeline et Madeline model is of a noteworthy quality of navy blue serge, which gives an effective background for the profusion of knotted embroidery in gray wool yarn on the collar, cuffs and deep border around bottom of coat. Lined with soft blue silk, $39.50.

One of the most attractive coats every created by CHER-UIT has been adapted in navy blue tricotine with Tuxedo fronts and collar (all in one) and cuffs of beige colored heavy silk crepe.

This coat may be worn in three ways—with straight-lines, with narrow belt and bloused in the back, or wrapped about one. $59.50.

Pleated skirts, $11.75

Plaid, checked and striped woolen materials; smart colors; our $22.50 to $25 grades. Second Floor, Old Bldg., Tenth Street.

To-day's Silk Special, $2.85 yd.

Crepe de chine—40-in., soft, crinkly, heavy; 21 shades, including 4 shades of gray, 4 of navy blue and 2 of henna; and plenty of black, white and pink. Main Floor, Old Building.

First Showing of these Fur Scarves

Jap marten one-skin scarves, dyed sky blue—the season's newest shade, $45 each. This is the first showing in New York of sky blue Jap marten.

Other spring scarves—Hudson Bay sable, $39.60 to $95. Stone marten, $35 to $45. Squirrel, $11.75. All one-skin scarves. Second Floor, Old Bldg.

Cuff-trimmed Gloves For Easter

French gloves in suede, pique sewn, slip-on gauntlet style, trimmed in unusual designs on cuffs; $5 to $6.50.

White glace slip-on gauntlet, reversible cuff, with festooned edge, self or brown embroidery and stitching; $3.75.

These Gloves, $1.85

French kidskin, slip-on style, white. Also some 2-clasp glove overseam in tan, brown and white. Main Floor, Old Building.

Fashion's latest ideas in Hats, $8.50