

Sports togs of cotton prevail and this model with its' cape and hat of crepe mohair has a distinguishing rag carpet effect because of its stripes.

Photographs on this page from Old Masters.

Under brim trimming distinguishes this fabric hat designed for sports wear next summer.

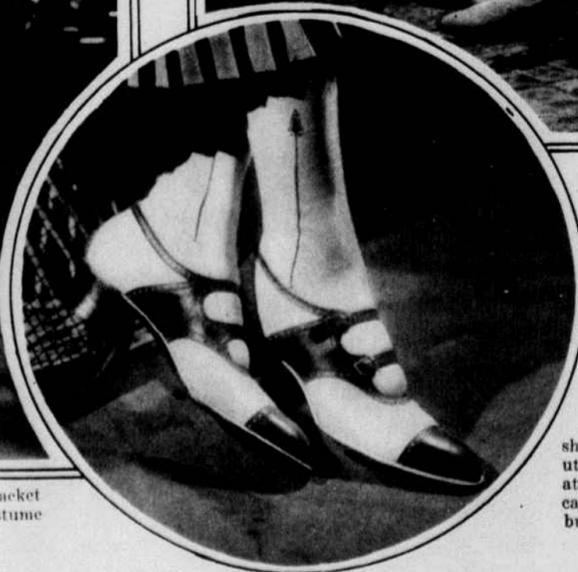

Knitted capes, faced with wide bands of Angora, are essentials for the young women following sports. Mary Lewis of "The Greenwich Village Follies" is displaying this fine example.

Striped flannels with fringed edges and the jacket in blazer effect make an up to date golfing costume for 1921.

Above — Pajamas of crepe de chine with loops of ribbon form a fetching costume for the debutante's sanctum.

In circle — Sports shoes up to the minute have this combination of leather and canvas and the double buckles.

Silk crepe suit designed especially for country wear, but which bids fair to find a vogue in town as well. Allyn King of "Ladies Night" is pictured here wearing one.

This sports outfit includes a plain material skirt plaited at the sides; plaid jacket with patch pockets and a scarf of knitted silk.