Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. BALTIMORE, March 26.—Arrangements for the masses of requiem and ceremonies connected with the burial of Cardinal Gibbons were completed this afternoon. The funeral procession is expected to be one of the most impressive ever witnessed in the country. The great procession and the last of the series of masses begun the day after his death will be on Thursday. At that time the Cathedral will be the gathering place for a great throng, because of the affection felt for the Cardinal throughout the country. The edifice, however, will hardly be large enough to accommodate the visiting clergy, and for that reason it is understood the laity will find little room. Mgr. John Bonzano, apostolic delegate at Washington, is to be the celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem on Thursday morning. Just preceding the mass there will take place the procession of ecclesiastics, including Cardinal O'Connell of Boston and archbishops, bishops, monsignori, representatives of priestly orders and brotherhoods and knights of the Papal court. The procession will start from Calvert Hall School, across the street from the Cathedral, at 9:30 o'clock, the mass having been set for 10. The musical programme will be by the choir from St. Mary's Seminary, this city. The chants to be sung at the funeral mass never before have been heard outside of the Sistine Chapel at Rome. It was made known to-night that the manuscript of this Gregorian music had never been taken out of the Vatican until a short time ago, when, it is understood, Mgr. Bonzano asked permission to have a copy sent to Baltimore for use in the event of the Cardinal's death. The copy was sent to St. Mary's Seminary to be studied by the seminarians' choir. It was announced to-day that Mgr. Bonzano has confirmed the appointment of Mgr. Corrigan as administrator of the archdiocese. Mgr. Corrigan had been named by the consultants of the archdiocese. The confirmation of the monsignor's appointment is taken as an indication that he will administer the diocese for from six months to a year, it being believed that the Pope will permit at least that time to elapse before he announces Cardinal Gibbons's successor. Messages of condolence were received at the late Cardinal's residence to-day from many sources. Ambassador Jusserand transmitted the official expression of sympathy from the French Government. His message read: "I am instructed by the Government of the French Republic to express to you the heartfelt condolences of the French Government, of his Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, whose nobility and patriotism will ever remain a model for all honest minded citizens." And to Mgr. Corrigan, M. Jusserand sent the following message in behalf of the personnel of the Embassy: "We mourn with you a citizen admirable for his patriotism, a model American in whom during the great crisis France found a friend." Another message of sympathy was from the Hebrews of Baltimore. "We voice the prayer," it said, "that in God's providence a leader shall be given to the Catholics of America who shall maintain the same noble standards of Catholic dignity, American citizenry and human service." The message from the Baltimore Federation of Churches referred to the dead Cardinal as a "preeminent leader and churchman."

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. WILMINGTON, Del., March 26.—Warden M. S. Plummer whipped four negroes at the stake to-day at the Newcastle County Workhouse while hundreds of whites looked on. The warden declared it was the most disagreeable part of his job as head of the prison, but because it was distasteful he did not desire any one else to do it. There was more interest than usual in the whippings, the reason being all the negroes had been convicted of highway robbery and the sentences were unusually severe. Wm. Lewis, whose sentence was ten years and twenty lashes, was the first man whipped. He took his punishment with a smile, and as he was released from the post he smilingly asked Warden Plummer if that was all. Leonard Barrett, whose sentence was ten years and forty lashes; Horace Arceby, whose sentence was twenty years and forty lashes, and John Richardson, with twenty years and forty lashes, followed in succession. The men all flinched from the whip but made no outcry. Barrett did not flinch until the eleventh lash was reached and from that on appeared to feel the punishment keenly. Plummer used the regulation cat-o-nine tails and administered the lashes without bending his arm. He was merciful in the administration of the sentences and did not draw blood, but the backs of the men were raised in marks despite the care of the warden. The whippings were held in the small enclosure at the prison which is used only for whippings and for executions. The law has been made more severe on account of the large number of highway robberies in various parts of the State, and the Legislature believed that adding additional lashes to the penalty would serve to stop this crime. It is seldom that blood is drawn at the whippings, as the warden who have whipped men usually have tried not to be cruel and not to inflict unnecessary punishment. A few years ago blood was drawn but warden since that time have been more considerate.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. WASHINGTON, March 26.—The War Risk Insurance Bureau sent out a warning to-night to all former service men that their wartime or term insurance must be taken up into permanent policies before March 3, 1921. Passage of the joint resolution by Congress which constrains certain war laws as though a state of peace existed, automatically made effective provisions of the War Risk Insurance act for the conversion of wartime insurance into one of the three permanent types, according to the bureau's announcement. These provisions require the conversion within five years after the date of the declaration of peace, but the joint resolution superseded the peace declaration in establishing the effective date or the conversion privileges, officials explained.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. JASPER, Ga., March 26.—The bodies of six more negroes were recovered to-day in the neighborhood of the farm of John Williams, who, it is charged, had them killed in order to cover up the fact he was holding negroes on his place in peonage. Williams is in jail, charged with murder, and his three sons were arrested this afternoon. The search in the region of his farm and the investigation into the practice of keeping men in bondage is being conducted by agents of the Department of Justice. With the six bodies found to-day the bodies of nine negroes have come to light so far, and it is stated that at least two more will be recovered in another day's search. The task of searching for bodies was simplified to-day when Clyde Manning, a negro, who acted as a sort of overseer on Williams's farm, confessed he was the one who actually killed the dead men, and took the United States agents to the graves where the victims had been buried. Manning declares all the killing was done at the direction of Williams, and that he obeyed Williams's orders because he was afraid his own life would be forfeit if he refused. More Bodies Sought. The bodies of three negroes who used to work on Williams's farm were found two weeks ago in the Yellow River. Manning declares two more dead men will be found in the Alcovy River, a stream which skirts Williams's place in a valley adjoining that through which the Yellow River flows. One of the bodies found to-day was taken from the Alcovy River. It was hoisted from the river bed, to which it had been sunk, weighted down with 500 pounds of stone secured to the body by chains. The other five dead men were found in other graves in a grove. Four had been killed with an axe or iron bar, heavy farm implement and the fifth had been murdered with a shotgun at close range, from behind. The bodies of the three negroes found two weeks ago had been sent to the bed of the Yellow River, shackled and weighted, just like the one recovered to-day from the Alcovy River. Prisoner Denies Guilt. Williams denies responsibility for the deaths of the men and appeared greatly cheered when he learned Manning had admitted the actual killings. Although it is not believed there has been any murder to cover peonage except of negroes who worked on Williams's place, farmers of Jasper and Newton counties are in a state of apprehension concerning what may be disclosed by the investigation of Federal agents, for the agents have information that the practice of keeping negroes in virtual slavery has existed on the farms of other men besides Williams and their orders are to pursue their investigation until they either verify the information they have or find it is unfounded. Williams was received from Atlanta to-night that the Department of Justice agents will be given the protection of State troops if any attempt is made to interfere with them or to impede their investigation.
