

COTILLO CHARGES TO BE INVESTIGATED

His Bill Held Up After He Is Assured of Legislative Inquiry.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Albany, April 6. The conditions surrounding the transmission of money to foreign countries and the charge that millions of dollars entrusted to steamship and express companies and their sub-agents never reached their destination is to be investigated by a legislative committee this summer.

Senator Cotillo charged last week that to defeat his bill a $200,000 slush fund had been raised and that one of the most powerful lobbies that ever came to Albany had been sent to the capital.

Senator Cotillo charged last week that to defeat his bill a $200,000 slush fund had been raised and that one of the most powerful lobbies that ever came to Albany had been sent to the capital.

"I don't think the talk we have heard concerning sinister and improper motives in the last two years has done the service to any good," Senator Cotillo said.

Senator Cotillo announced that the decision for a legislative investigation came after conferences with the legal adviser of Gov. Miller, the banking committee and representatives of the steamship and express companies.

institutions as the Rand School in New York, are the purpose of bills introduced to-day by Senator Lusk. They are two of the anti-education measures recommended by the Lusk Legislative Committee, which investigated radical activities two years ago. They were vetoed last year by Gov. Smith. One of the bills requires all school teachers to obtain a certificate from the Commissioner of Education that he or she is of good moral character and loyal to the State and Federal governments. The other provides for the licensing of all schools except public schools and such institutions as are incorporated by the University of the State of New York or maintained by religious or fraternal organizations. The teaching of the doctrine that organized government shall be overthrown by force is prohibited.
