

Interesting study of boy life, a photograph taken aboard the school ship Caracciolo, maintained by the City of Naples, Italy. The commander, a retired naval officer, is a prime story teller and is just giving his charges the climax of a real sea "thriller."

Taking photographs from a 5,000-foot perch above the Yosemite Valley is only part of the day's work for K. C. Pillsbury. He is shown here on the famous balanced rock on Half Dome. Copyright. U. & U.

In oval.—George M. Cohan as he appears as The Vagabond in "The Tavern" at the Hudson Theatre, one of the 1921 season's great successes.

The Paul Bartlett statue of Benjamin Franklin in front of "Poor Richard's" birthplace, January 17, 1706, in Boston. The statue was unveiled yesterday in Waterbury, Conn., its final resting place.

Winona Winter, one of the five stars in "The Broadway Whirl," opening tomorrow in the Times Square Theatre. Copyright, Strauss Peyton.

Vivian Martin as she appears as the star of "Just Married" at the Shubert Theatre.
