

CITY THROGS BEGIN SEEKING COOL SPOTS

Handbag Brigades Swamp Grand Central and Pennsylvania Stations.

TIDE NOT YET AT CREST

Closing of Schools and Start of Two Week Vacations Near at Hand.

It was chiefly a handbag lot of passengers who set off yesterday on week-end trips. The regular two week's vacation army hasn't really got underway, according to such expert authorities as the men who start your summer wardrobe container on its holiday journey. They look for the big exodus at the end of this week, and after that the rush will be fairly steady until about Labor Day, when it will rise to another high pitch before everybody comes back with a nice sunburn and a few more pounds.

There was just one other person, besides a reporter, in Grand Central station yesterday, who apparently was not catching a train. He was a lean, tall man who stood on the balcony of the concourse about 1:30 P. M. Having nothing to do he gazed at the crowd below. It was a good sized crowd, being the advance guard of the men and women who get a half holiday, eat a quick lunch and take the first train for the suburbs or a seashore resort.

Along about 2 o'clock the man began to look agitated. The crowd below had increased with the unloading of subway trains and taxicabs faster than the trains could carry the people away. It began to look like a mob. The man seemed worried and went over to an elevator operator to find out if there was anything unusual about the scene.

"Aw, it's just the Saturday rush," the elevator man explained. "Don't worry, the big fight's a week off yet," he added reassuringly.

The wave of humanity seemed to reach the crest at that hour, then it appeared to subside, and again, at 4 o'clock, it showed a tremendously increased volume. By that time every one who could get away for the afternoon had started.

Over at the Pennsylvania Station the handbag programme was also reported. Trunks and other pieces of baggage, big enough to check, were said to be rather light. But the parcel room was nearly swamped and the porters roped a harvest from the incoming tides of men, women and children carrying their Saturday and Sunday outfits, with a gift for the host or hostess tucked under the other arm.

"Come around next Friday," suggested a baggage chief at this station, "and you'll see something worth while. Then you'll find the real vacation people leaving town by the thousands. They'll be taking long trips and we'll be mighty busy. But this, why, say, we've had busier times down here in the spring than to-day. School won't be out for another week, for one thing; that keeps a lot of people in town. They can't go away with the children and they haven't opened up their own country places yet. Some of 'em will be starting as early as Wednesday, but Friday and Saturday will be the big days. We look for even bigger ones than last year. Maybe they'll be record breakers."

At the ferry slips the same suit case burdened gathering was observed. It looked, to the reporter, as if something like a million persons had left the city by various routes and will this morning open their eyes upon green hills or foaming breakers, or both, and the same number will return to-night or to-morrow morning with a fine coat of tan as a reward for the suit case struggle.

VETERANS CONTINUE DRIVE.

Seek Fund to Aid Idle and Furnish Hospital Treatment.

The campaign of the Veterans of Foreign Wars for funds to provide hospital treatment and jobs for former service men who need such aid will be continued this week, closing on July 4. The committee in charge announced yesterday that there are 100,000 unemployed in the city now, and 50 per cent of these are former service men.

Monday meetings will be resumed at Borough Hall, Brooklyn, and the drive will be carried on intensively in all boroughs.

RELIEF FROM HEAT SOME TIME AWAY

North Wind Likely to Make Living Uncomfortable, but Storm May Give Relief.

ONE DEATH REPORTED

Three Overcome by Yesterday's High Temperature—Two Taken to Hospital.

Although the heat wave was not very severe yesterday, with the thermometer reaching only 86 degrees, its force is by no means spent, and New Yorkers may expect a very hot and sticky Sunday. From the Weather Bureau atop the Whitehall Building, came the statement that there is not yet in sight any real relief from high temperatures. Yesterday, while the thermometer stood at 86 degrees from 1:30 to 2:30 P. M., the heat was bearable, for the humidity was only 35 per cent.

The variable winds of yesterday will continue to-day, but will be from a generally northern direction most of the time. Increasing cloudiness is expected to add to the humidity and the consequent discomfort.

The possibility of a local thunderstorm, the Weather Bureau conceded, is not remote, and such a storm would afford relief for a few hours at least. The storm would also add a little to New York's monthly rainfall, which needs more precipitation if this June is not to stand as the driest ever recorded. Up to the present this is the driest June known in twenty-seven years. So far this month only 6.69 inch has fallen. This is 2.12 inches less than the normal June rainfall. The precipitation figures were lower New Yorkers less than they do farmers, for the drought has had a serious effect on some crops.

Three prostrations and one death were reported yesterday. In Manhattan John Manning, 25 years old, of 222 East Sixty-fourth street, was overcome at Eighty-sixth street and the East River, and Bertha Behrend of 131 West 110th street was overcome at 28 West 113th street. Manning was able to go home, but the woman was taken to Harlem Hospital.

Tony Mangino, 34 years old, of 2349 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was stricken by heat while in front of 184 Herkimer street. He was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital, but died there.

Henry Wohlens, 32, of 22 City Hall place, was taken to Broad Street Hospital last night suffering from heat prostration. He collapsed in front of 117 Wall street.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY FOUND ON SPEEDWAY

Empty Lysol Bottle Indicates Possible Suicide.

The body of a well dressed, unidentified man about 50 years of age was found early yesterday morning in the Harlem Speedway, near 174th street, by Patrolman Pardu, of the West 17th street station. Beside the body was an empty phial marked Lysol, which the man evidently had drunk, as his tongue and lips were burned by the liquid.

The supposed suicide, whose body is now in the morgue, weighed about 100 pounds, had gray hair and mustache, wore a black suit, black tie, Juliet shoes and a white silk shirt with black stripes. In one of his pockets were found two clippings on electricity and referring to Prof. Charles P. Steinmetz.

J. D. Heath, an attorney of 2 Rector street, visited the morgue and partially identified the dead man as one of his clients, Michael H. Haffey, who many years ago operated in real estate in Harlem. Later, however, Mr. Haffey was found in Bellevue Hospital, where he has been for two days suffering from heat prostration.

REFORMATORY HEAD IS SUED.

Suit for $20,000, based upon allegations that her son, George, died at the New York State Reformatory at New Hampton, N. Y., because he did not receive proper medical attention, was filed yesterday in the Bronx County Supreme Court by Mrs. Bridget Pratt, an administratrix of her son's estate. Sidney W. Brewster, superintendent and warden of the institution, is named as defendant.

Mrs. Pratt said that her son was committed to Hart's Island reformatory September 1, 1915, and later was transferred to New Hampton. He became ill there and died April 17, 1920. She charges that Supt. Brewster was negligent in providing medical care.
