

Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey Hold Races as Lemora Wins Grand Prix

Third Reception Mrs. Ogden Goetz to Remain at Claridge Instead of Taking House in London.

Special Cable to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1921, by The New York Herald.

Hundreds of Americans are remaining in London in spite of the fact that the international polo and golf tournaments have been played.

Among the Americans present at the third reception of the American Ambassador and Mrs. George Harvey were...

President Millerand and many Americans among those witnessing the event.

A crowd estimated at 100,000 persons saw J. Watson's chestnut colt Lemora win the Grand Prix...

The race provided the climax of Paris's Grand Semaine. To-morrow fashionable Paris will begin packing its trunks...

Prof. I. N. Kandel of Columbia Teachers College has arrived from Manchester, England, to confer with French educational officials.

Dr. and Mrs. D. S. Blomfield of Baltimore have taken an apartment here. Mrs. Burr Mcintosh, after having spent the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lauren S. Hamilton.

Col. Edward Ryan, head of the Baltic Division of the American Red Cross, has returned to Paris after a week of conferences here.

Mrs. George S. Morrison of Montclair, N. J., and her daughter, Miss Morrison, have returned to the Hotel Regina from Nice.

Mrs. David Belasco has arrived at the Waldorf and will return to New York with her son-in-law, Morris Gest, the latter in the company of his daughter.

Mrs. and Mrs. William MacNichol have arrived at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Wadsworth of Chateau Thierry for the summer.

Dr. and Mrs. Perry S. Heath of Washington, after a tour of southern Italy, are passing a month at Lake Como.

BRITONS SEEK FILM FAME. Many Want to Appear in Lady Diana Manners's Play.

Special Cable to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1921, by The New York Herald.

J. Stuart Blackton, Hollywood play producer, says that more than 10,000 applications have been received from persons who wish to play parts in "The British Admirer," the forthcoming film in which Lady Diana Manners will star.

As a result, Mr. Blackton says, he has obtained 100 of the prettiest women in London, not to mention an aggregation of the 75 wisest Baldwin prize.

David Stoffer writes Best Essay on Municipal Government.

The Baldwin prize, offered annually by the National Municipal League for the best essay on municipal government by a college student, has this year been awarded to David Stoffer of Harvard University, according to an announcement made yesterday by the league at its headquarters, 261 Broadway.

WNS BALDWIN PRIZE. David Stoffer writes Best Essay on Municipal Government.

The Baldwin prize, offered annually by the National Municipal League for the best essay on municipal government by a college student, has this year been awarded to David Stoffer of Harvard University, according to an announcement made yesterday by the league at its headquarters, 261 Broadway.

FRENCH OPEN CONSERVATORY. Music School Will Interest Itself in American Students.

FOUNTAINEBLEAU, France, June 26.—The Franco-American Conservatory of Music, directed by Albert Sacchi, director of the Conservatory of Fine Arts, Leon Berard, in the presence of more than one hundred Americans from Paris, London and New York, M. Bernard's address was requested by Robert Underwood Johnson, former American Ambassador to Italy, Hugh C. Wallace, American Ambassador to Norway, Second Secretary of the Embassy.

The conservatory will take special interest in American students.

SOJOURNERS AT NEW LONDON. Special Dispatch to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1921, by The New York Herald.

New London, Conn., June 26.—Sunday found a great number of the Yale-Harvard race enthusiasts remaining in town, and last night at the Griswold Hotel, a number of them were holding parties. Among those from New York remaining over Sunday are Mrs. Preston Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. T. Douglas Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard V. Thomas, Mrs. John McE. Bowman, Mrs. Myra D. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gould, David M. Glendon, Mrs. M. H. G. Harold G. Villard, Miss Marjorie Villard, Henry S. Villard, Mrs. Huntington Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon.

WEDDING NOTES. Miss Hannah Hastings White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Avery White of Worcester, Mass., was married on Saturday to Mr. Harold G. Catlin, of New York, by Rev. Dr. J. M. G. Thomas, Mrs. John McE. Bowman, Mrs. Myra D. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gould, David M. Glendon, Mrs. M. H. G. Harold G. Villard, Henry S. Villard, Mrs. Huntington Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon.

ALFONSO STARTS FOR SPAIN. London, June 26.—Kilg. Alfonso, who has been visiting London for Paris to-day on his way to Spain. King George, the Duke of York, Prince Henry, and Princess Beatrice and Alfonso, Merly del Val, the Spanish Ambassador, and his staff were at the station to bid Alfonso farewell.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE

NEW YORK. Mr. and Mrs. F. Egerton Webb will go to Locust Valley, L. I., next Friday for a stay of two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Barclay will go to Warrenton, Va., from Southampton, L. I., early in July.

Mrs. Clinton Gilbert and family expect to go to Murray Bay, Canada, early in July for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sloane have opened their house at Penpack, N. J., for the summer.

Miss Frances Ogden Jones is entertaining a party of sixteen friends at her house in New London, Conn.

Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly, who has been passing a few weeks in Newport, has returned to Convent, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Berwind have gone to Bridgehampton, L. I., for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Livingston Parsons have gone to Islip, L. I., for the summer.

The Misses Fannie, Kitty and Marion Wickes, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes, will go this week to Newport from Tuxedo Park.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Osgood Field will go to Lenox, Mass., from Lake Mohogun, N. Y., early next month.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Crocker, who are at their home at Oyster Bay, L. I., will go to their camp in the Adirondacks in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whitridge, who are at Southampton, L. I., will remain there until July 15, and then go to Tuxedo Park.

Mrs. John Hall McCullough, who was at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel after her recent arrival from Europe, has gone to the Yama Yama farms, at Napanoch, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Osborn, who are the guests of Miss Mary Dodge at Warwick House, London, England, will start for New York on July 30, and on their arrival here will go to Southampton, L. I., to be guests of her mother, Mrs. Grant de Forest.

WASHINGTON. Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Shepard, with their daughter, Miss Alice Shepard, will leave to-day for their summer home in Jamestown, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles, Cal., who have been on a Los Angeles trip from Europe, will return to Washington to-day.

Chu Chi Chin, special representative of the President of China, and his suite will arrive here to-day on an informal supper at Gunston Hall, Va., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hertle.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Edward W. Eberle have left Washington for New York and will start Friday for California, where Admiral Eberle will resume command of the 1st Fleet. While in New York they will be at the Hotel vanderbilt.

NEWPORT. Capt. Frederick R. Nalls, U. S. N., and family have arrived at their Jamestown cottage for the summer.

Miss Julia Berwind gave a luncheon yesterday at her cottage in Bellevue avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtis James left Newport yesterday on board their auxiliary steam yacht Aloha for Fire Island, N. Y. They will leave Saturday for an extended cruise in foreign waters.

Mr. Jesse H. Metcalf of Providence entertained friends on board his power yacht Felecia, a new craft this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Peabody and Mr. Robert J. Kelly, the latter having come over from Huntington.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Dilworth had an informal dinner last night at their villa for Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Hutten, who had come to Peconic Bay on their yacht after having been at the variety races at New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael M. van Beuren of Newport are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Malloy at the Lenox Club.

Mr. George Wadsworth Cobb of New York is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Cobb of Oyster Farm in Pittsfield.

Miss Caroline L. Morgan of New York is to spend the summer at Nantucket and will defer coming to Lenox until fall.

Arrivals at the Red Lion Inn, Stockbridge, include Mr. William Constable Broad of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis Scull of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Knox Bell of New York are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Morris at Brookhurst.

Mrs. Russell Hopkins of New York has leased Mr. Samuel Frothingham's house, Overlook, at the foundation of the National Foundation of Washington, D. C., at the residence of Mrs. Robert C. Black, Pelham Manor, this afternoon, at which moving pictures of the foundation will be shown. Miss Janet Richards will be the principal speaker in presenting the aims and ideals of the foundation. The following women from Washington will be present: Mrs. Calvin A. Coolidge, wife of the Vice-President; Mrs. Stephen Elkins, Mrs. Charles Broughton Wool, Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. C. C. Callahan. Overlook is near the National Foundation. Among the New York women who will be present are Miss Theresa O'Donoghue, Mrs. Michael Gavin, Mrs. John Ajar, Mrs. De Lancey Kane, Mrs. Pleasant Pennington, Mrs. Gouverneur Kortright, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Miss Alice Carpenter and Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman.

Gen. Grant's Great-Grandson and Miss Curtis Have Russian Wedding

Gen. Grant's Great-Grandson and Miss Curtis Have Russian Wedding. The ceremony was held at the home of Mrs. Grant de Forest in Southampton, L. I., on Sunday.

Miss Clarissa Pelham Curtis and Mr. Cantacuzene-Speransky. Mr. Cantacuzene-Speransky and Bride to Have Second Ceremony To-day.

Special Dispatch to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1921, by The New York Herald.

Boston, Mass., June 26.—Although the "official" wedding of Mr. Michel Cantacuzene-Speransky and Miss Clarissa Pelham Curtis of this city does not take place until to-morrow at Nahant, a religious ceremony in accordance with the Russian orthodox rites of the Greek Catholic Church was performed this afternoon in the little farm church of that community at 6 Dearborn street in the Roxbury district.

The Rev. J. E. Grigoroff, rector of the parish, officiated. The service was witnessed by many who will serve as attendants in the ceremony at Nahant to-morrow. To-day's ceremony, which lasted about half an hour, was largely of music, the church choir occupying a prominent role.

The bride couple was attended by little Pauline and Gordon Palmer, the bride's nieces, and by Mrs. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Honore Palmer of Chicago and about 100 men and women of society along the North Shore.

What Ethel Clayton may have done in the past to carry her to such eminence as she now possesses in the theater is not known, but certainly a vague silhouette among the dolls that told the tale of what a terrible thing wealth is. Herbert Rawlinson was the temporarily distraught hero who came home with a measure which enables him to display the movie wardrobe at its best.

One confession did more to emphasize the perils of too much money than any follow the tight belt buttoned in front, panels that might have almost served for a frock coat in the past and a V shaped neck cut low in front, were distinguished marks of his production.

Mr. and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, author and playwright, was taken yesterday from her apartment in the Hotel Belmont to Miss Alton's sanitarium, 25 West 61st street, and operated on for gallstones. Dr. Albert E. Sellings of 132 East Thirty-sixth street, who performed the operation, said it was successful and although Mrs. Rinehart's condition was serious she was not in danger.

Mrs. Rinehart was engaged in writing a series of motion picture scenarios and had planned to leave for the West Coast to visit her mother, Mrs. Stanley Rinehart, who lives in this city, accompanied his mother to the hospital. It will be several weeks, Dr. Sellings said, before Mrs. Rinehart will be able to leave.

U. S. GIVES $7,250,000 FOR CHINA FAMINE. T. W. Lamont Says Collection Cost 3 Per Cent.

Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the American Committee for China Famine Relief, announced yesterday that largely as the result of the campaign that closed on June 9, $7,250,000 was raised in this country for China's relief, an estimated cost of about $217,500, 3 per cent of the fund.

Excluding the proceeds of the Government loan, there was obtained in China for the fund about $4,000,000 gold. After thinking all contributions with great energy and acting in the utmost harmony with the American committee, and $1,100,000 generously contributed by the Red Cross and administered directly by its representatives in China.

In addition, the President of China has reported that contributions in China have totalled about $4,000,000 gold. "Any available funds still on hand and any further contributions will, if a feasible programme can be devised, be devoted to the study of methods to prevent future famines. In no question the American advisory committee in Peking has for some time been studying for any practicable step can be taken. If the prevention of such calamities have still shown a connection with the court of King Arthur. The Park houses "The Golem" is at the Criterion in London."

"Bronze Bell" at Rivolt. The Rivolt had "The Bronze Bell," by Louis Joseph Vance, with Courtney Foote in the leading role, as its attraction. There was also a comic and the usual "Two Women" continues at the Hippodrome. "Headless Moth" is still at the Frazee. "The Queen of Sheba" is at the Lyric. The Central still shows "A Connecticut Yankee" in the picture house.

"Salvation Nell" at Strand. Edward Sheldon's play "Salvation Nell" was shown at the Strand yesterday. It is by no means certain that the play lends itself to piecemeal interpretation. As it is a story of scenes passing in the old-fashioned saloon, with its free lunch times, and other adjuncts of pre-prohibition times, make some idea of the play's detachment from everyday life.

"The Fireman" a revival of a picture period, and when she is out on the evidence to put it in the picture. It was at the Rivolt yesterday as an addition to the rich programme. In one scene Charles, who had given fragments and amusing evidence of his pantomime training, poured the liquid dough over the heads of the other firemen. It should be kept in mind that any doubt had not yet been transformed into crust, which will have its bearing on future investigations.

The orchestra, consisting of tenor, Mary Fabian, soprano, and sport and topical pictures completed the Rivolt programme.

"The Fireman" a revival of a picture period, and when she is out on the evidence to put it in the picture. It was at the Rivolt yesterday as an addition to the rich programme. In one scene Charles, who had given fragments and amusing evidence of his pantomime training, poured the liquid dough over the heads of the other firemen. It should be kept in mind that any doubt had not yet been transformed into crust, which will have its bearing on future investigations.

"The Fireman" a revival of a picture period, and when she is out on the evidence to put it in the picture. It was at the Rivolt yesterday as an addition to the rich programme. In one scene Charles, who had given fragments and amusing evidence of his pantomime training, poured the liquid dough over the heads of the other firemen. It should be kept in mind that any doubt had not yet been transformed into crust, which will have its bearing on future investigations.

"The Fireman" a revival of a picture period, and when she is out on the evidence to put it in the picture. It was at the Rivolt yesterday as an addition to the rich programme. In one scene Charles, who had given fragments and amusing evidence of his pantomime training, poured the liquid dough over the heads of the other firemen. It should be kept in mind that any doubt had not yet been transformed into crust, which will have its bearing on future investigations.

'Carnival,' Movie of British Origin, Invades New York

Picture at Capitol Is Saturated With the Irresistible Power of Imagination.

The German invasion of films was effectively halted yesterday at the Capitol by the showing of a picture of British origin which is certain to turn the thoughts of the fans at once to the possibilities of importation from the tight little island. Three years ago on a dark and tempestuous night—the last night of the year, to be exact—a small and hardy band of first nighters ventured into the fourth to welcome Godfrey Tearls at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

Some few persons followed their courageous example that within a short time the London actor wrapped up his play and took it home. It was "Carnival," what- ever its deficiencies may have been as picture drama, makes an engrossing and picturesque cinema. It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination.

Yesterday he acted it here on the screen at the Capitol. "Carnival," whatever its deficiencies may have been as picture drama, makes an engrossing and picturesque cinema. It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany.

Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

It has many of the qualities which have drawn temporary attention to the films made in Germany. Its scenes are saturated with the irresistible power of imagination. The story of the jealous actor who in playing Othello almost kills in his frenzy the wife who is Desdemona in the performance is attractively and ingeniously told. It is undeniably "tricked," the sudden change in the view of the enraptured audience, applauding and listening, to the views of the actors, talking together behind the scenes or bowing to the admiring public—these are most effective, although they may not suggest any new technique or any development of the conventional cinema drama.

STANCHFIELD SERVICES AT ISLIP SUMMER HOME

Laywer's Body to Be Sent to Elmira for Burial.

Members of the family and a few close friends attended the funeral service yesterday for John B. Stanchfield at his summer home at Islip, L. I. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. William H. Garth, pastor of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church of Islip.

The body was brought to this city following the funeral and will be taken to Elmira, N. Y., where Mr. Stanchfield was born. His wife and two children will accompany the body to that city.

Minutes expressing regret at the death of Mr. Stanchfield were read in Jefferson Market Court yesterday by direction of Magistrate Raphael Tobias. He praised Mr. Stanchfield's abilities as a member of the bar.

$409,921 ESTATE LEFT BY MRS. JAMES SPEYER

Wife of Banker Made Several Bequests to Charity.

Mrs. James Speyer, wife of the banker, left an estate of $409,921, according to a report made public by the report of William C. Clark, transfer tax appraiser of Westchester county. Mrs. Speyer's home was at Scarborough and several bequests were made to charity.

The value of the estate was computed for the purpose of fixing the amount of inheritance tax to be paid to the State.

CHIEF REILLY, BAYONNE, DIES. Veteran Policeman One Held Off Mob of 500 Strikers.

Michael F. Reilly, chief of the Bayonne, N. J., police department, died yesterday at his home, 143 Broadway, Bayonne, in his sixtieth year. He had been ill about two years.

Reilly was appointed a patrolman in 1888, and chief in June, 1915. In 1916, during the labor troubles of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, he was one of the men who held off a mob of 500 strikers who were preparing to attack the jail to release some of their leaders.

He was born in Lackawanna, Pa. He was married, his wife, four daughters and a son.

MICHAEL PAULSEN. Michael Paulsen, a former missionary for the New York Port Society, who resided here nearly 30 years, died Saturday in the Swedish hospital, Bayonne, after a long illness, at the age of 63. Mr. Paulsen was born in Norway. He took up missionary work among the sailors soon after arriving in New York. He was a long time in the Swedish hospital.