Gov. N. L. Miller's Daughters Climb Mt. Whiteface

Pick Quills From Hedgehog Out of Dog—Arrivals at Lake Placid.

The element of discord in this otherwise delightful ascent of the most interesting of all the Adirondack peaks is provided by the hedgehogs which chatter by night in a manner making it impossible for campers to sleep on the summit and kill every dog with their sharp pointed quills. When the Misses Marston, Margaret and Elizabeth Miller, daughters of Gov. and Mrs. Miller, were with their guests early this week at Whiteface Inn, made the ascent of the mountain on Monday they came across a dog on the trail full of the irritating quills. The dog was killed and the animal's sufferings ended. The party then continued the climb to the summit. Montague Glass, author of the "Potash and Perlmutter" stories, again has joined the "Potash and Perlmutter" club. H. F. Pope and family of Cleveland have opened Camp St. Armand.
