

Postmaster-General Will Hays recently inspected a number of mail carrying planes at Bolling Field, Va. The photograph shows from left to right: W. H. Riddell, General Superintendent Railway Mail Service; George W. Perkins, Will Hays, E. H. Shaughnessy, Second Assistant Postmaster-General; Hubert Work, First Assistant Postmaster-General; Carl F. Ege, Superintendent Air Mail Service; W. I. Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster-General; W. M. Mooney, Chief Clerk Post Office Department.

Underwood & Underwood.

The ice-breaker Alexandria which has been sent by the All Russian Cooperative Society of London to explore the possibility of a new trade route to Siberia by way of the Kara Sea.

Wide World Photos.

Above. Howth Harbor County Dublin, Ireland, experienced a revival of its ancient herring industry during the truce. Photograph shows business brisk along the water front.

Underwood & Underwood.

Capt. Sverdrup and Capt. Redstin, confer with a representative of the Soviet Government before starting north with the Alexandria and her convoy of cargo boats.

Underwood & Underwood.

Galway lassies, who are expert herring packers, journey to Howth for the season. Thousands of men and women are needed there annually.

Underwood & Underwood.

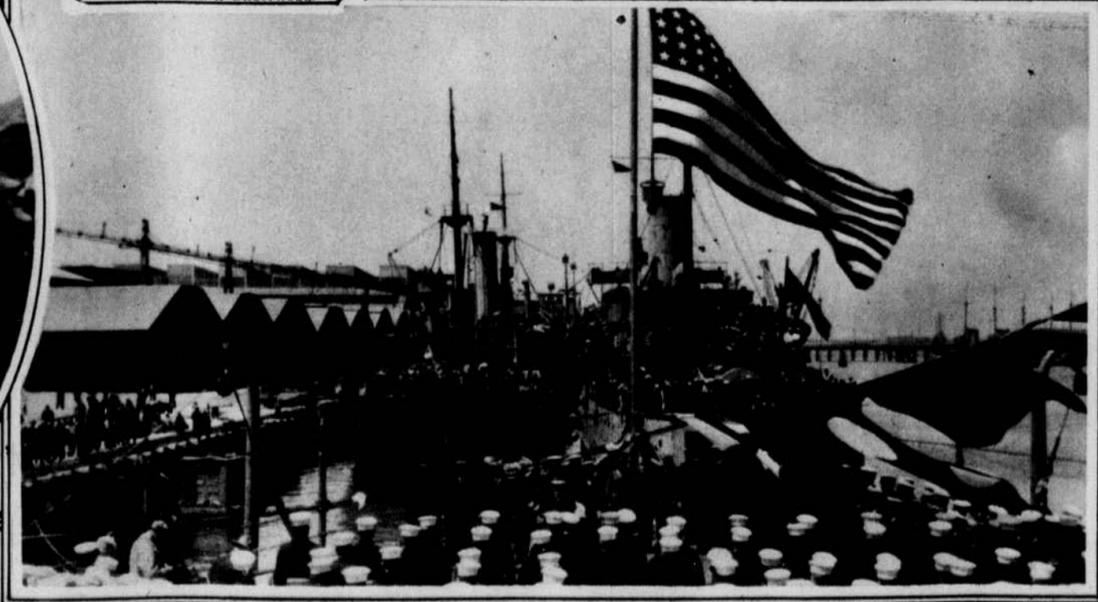

Sir John Simon, one of England's foremost jurists, who will attend the sessions of the American and Canadian Bar Associations.

Here is David McCulloch, photographed at Port Washington, Long Island, after he had broken the world's record for altitude in a flying boat. He took three passengers up 19,500 feet.

International.

Above. Photograph shows a phase of the revival of an Irish herring industry during the truce. The herring are being packed in salt before shipment.

Underwood & Underwood.

At left. Scene at the Mare Island Navy Yard, California, when the U. S. S. California went into commission. She is a super-dreadnaught and one of the finest fighting ships afloat.

Underwood & Underwood.