

Middlebury College, Vermont, has a new president. He is the Rev. Paul Dwight Moody, youngest son of Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist. Dr. Moody served overseas as senior chaplain of the A. E. F. wide world.

Grown up yachtsmen, who sail toy craft on the lake at Edgemont Park, Montclair, are the envy of the boys in the neighborhood. The photograph depicts the start of one of the weekly races. Paul Thompson.

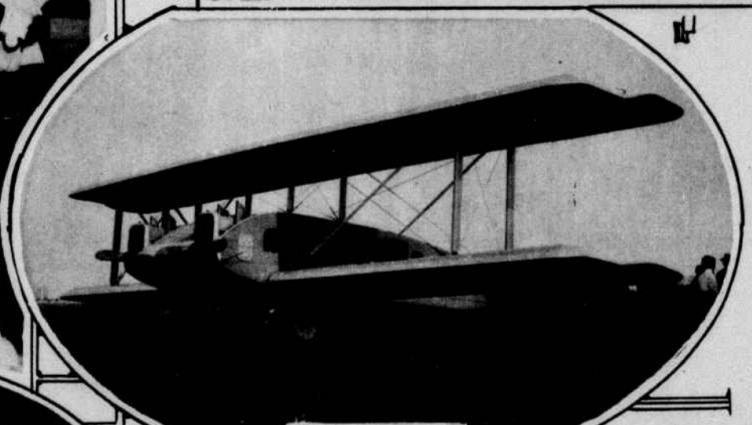

These Jewish orphans, who arrived in New York on board the Lithuania, are a tiny part of the vast wreckage of war in eastern Europe. They are all natives of Poland and were brought here by the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee of New York. Underwood & Underwood.

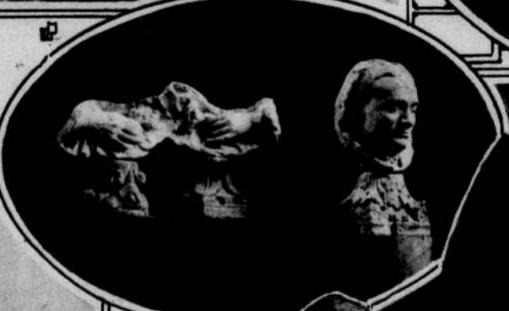

What is said to be a new discovery in the art of metal working, the forging of bronze, has been utilized in this door, designed by Leonard Willeke of Detroit and executed by the Gorham Company of New York.

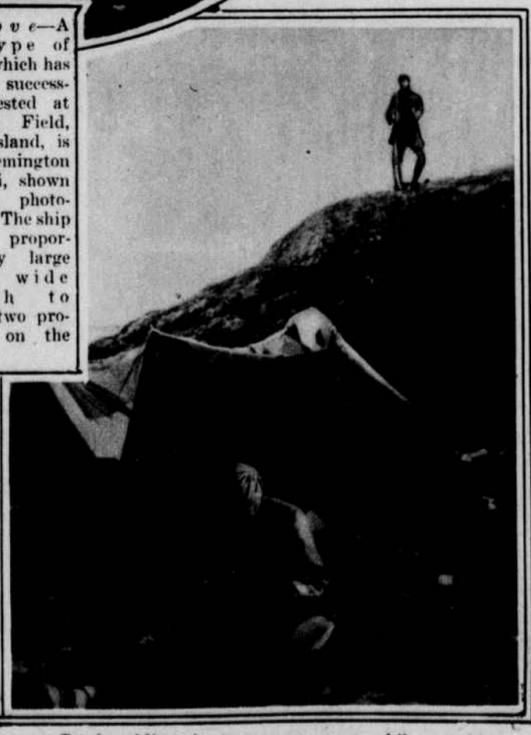

Above—On March 9, the sixtieth anniversary of the battle of the Monitor and Merrimac, bronze tablets will be erected on New York buildings, commemorating the services to the United States of Cornelius H. De Lamater and Capt. John Ericsson. This is one of the tablets.

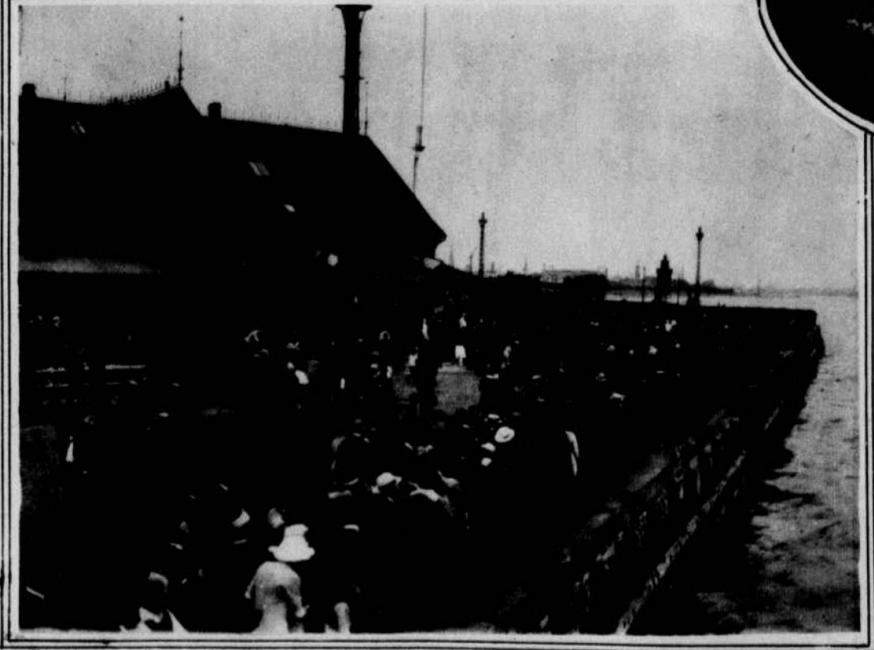

Above—A new type of plane, which has been successfully tested at Curtiss Field, Long Island, is the Remington-Burnelli, shown in the photograph. The ship has a proportionately large body, wide enough to mount two propellers on the nose.

Above—Mask of Caruso's face and hands, made after death by an Italian sculptor. Caruso's stepmother listening to the dead tenor's voice reproduced by gramophone. Giulio Parisi.

Greek soldiers in temporary camp while marching against the Turkish army. A sentinel appears on the hilltop against the sky. N. C. Tsatsois.

The steamer George Washington was greeted by a crowd on her first return to a German port since the war. The photograph shows the scene on the North German Lloyd pier at Bremen.