

American relief for starving Russia is going forward fast. Photograph shows the first special train from Moscow to Kazan, 430 miles, being safeguarded by signs telling of its object. Paul Carroll and Elmer Burland, relief agents, are watching the signs being tacked up. International.

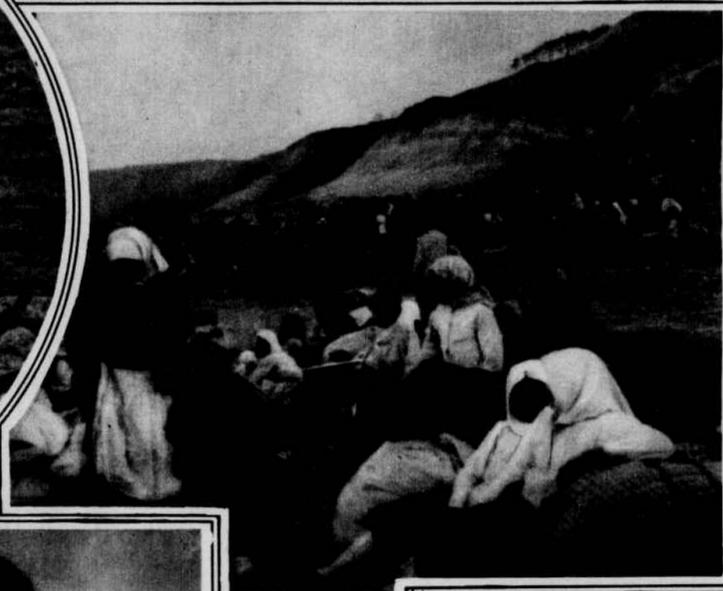

Unloading American relief grain at Kazan for the starving Russians. The men at lower left with white collars are American correspondents who have sent such graphic stories of the suffering. This train also carried seed grain for the next planting. International.

Homeless Russian peasant mothers and their babies from the Volga region awaiting American relief rations. Copyright, Pathe News, from Gilliams.

Starving Russians preparing a frugal meal in one of the refugee camps adjacent to the Volga region. Entire villages have been deserted in the famine regions. Copyright, Pathe News, from Gilliams.

Above — Russian famine refugees, with their household goods, encamped near a railroad siding awaiting American relief supplies. Copyright, Pathe News, from Gilliams.

The Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Miss Gladys Deacon of Boston, studying the moving picture camera. She will photograph the Blenheim estate activities. International.

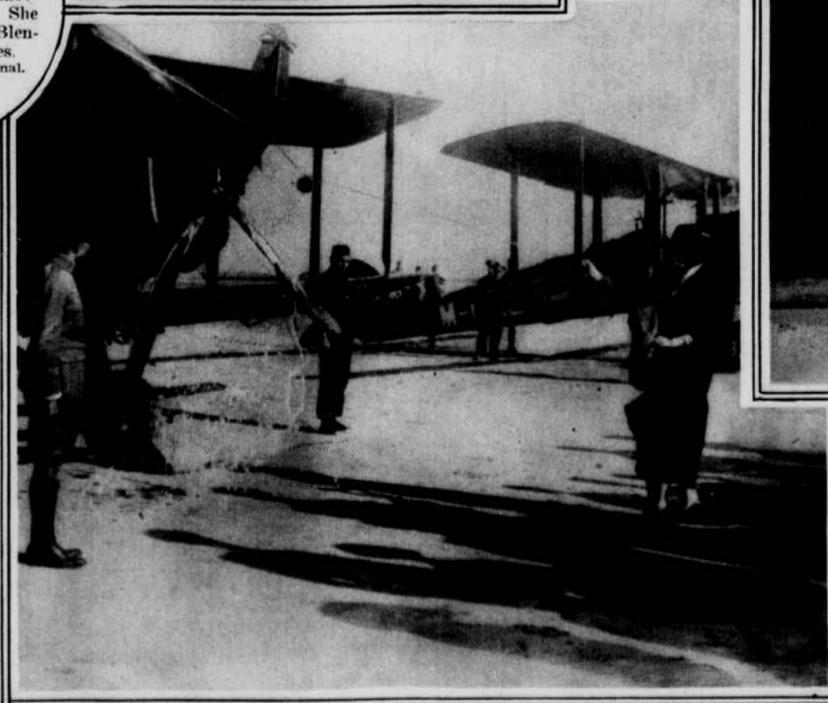

At left — Latest picture of Jan Kubelik and his $25,000 violin, which was almost lost in a mid-channel collision. The artist tied the fiddle to a lifebuoy, but didn't have to throw it overboard. Copyright, Kadel & Herbert.

Above — Sir F. W. Moneyppenny, M. V. O. ('Black Rod'), at the reassembling of the Ulster Parliament. He is one of the leading figures in the Belfast Government. Central News.

The French aviator Kirsch and the airplane in which he recently made world's records for 100, 200 and 300 kilometers at Etampes. His time for the 300, 1 hour, 4 minutes, 39 1-5 seconds, sliced 38 seconds from Sadi Lecointe's time of 1920. International.

At left — The Queen of Spain breaking a bottle of champagne and naming an airplane, the Salamanca I, given by the city of the same name to aid in fighting the Moors. International.