

Ambassador and Lady Geddes Give Brilliant Dinner

Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge and Arms Parley Delegates Chief Guests.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York, Nov. 22.—The British Embassy was on a festive occasion when the Ambassador and Lady Geddes were hosts at one of the most brilliant dinners given in connection with the arms conference.

The British Embassy was on a festive occasion when the Ambassador and Lady Geddes were hosts at one of the most brilliant dinners given in connection with the arms conference.

The guests at dinner were the Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, Prince Tokugawa, M. Briand, Senator Schanzer, Senator Lodge, Senator and Mrs. Underwood, Mr. E. B. Roper, Ambassador, Mr. Lord and Lady Lee, Sir Robert Gordon, Sir John Salmond, Mr. Sastri, Admiral of the Fleet Earl Beatty, Secretary of the Treasury, Attorney-General, Post Master General, Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Fall, Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis, Under Secretary of State and Mrs. Fletcher, Right Honorable John Jordan, Sir H. Llewellyn Smith, Admiral Counts and Mrs. Counts, Brigadier General Brewster and Mrs. Brewster, Mr. Garrat and Mrs. Garrat, Lady Douglas, Lieutenant Colonel Sir Maurice Hanky, Lord Riddell, Air Vice-Marshal Hignins, Sir Arthur Willert and Mr. Spriggs.

Guests from the British Embassy were the late Mr. and Mrs. Denby entertained for Vice-Admiral Acton of the Italian Navy, with the Italian Ambassador, Senator Rolandi Ricci, and the Naval Attaché of the Embassy, Capt. Piero Civillani, among the guests.

MISS TUCKERMAN BUYS OLD CHURCH IN LENOX

To Tear Down Abandoned Edifice Opposite Her Villa.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. LENOX, Mass., Nov. 22.—Miss Emily Tuckerman of New York has purchased the old Episcopal church property at Stockbridge and three adjoining houses which are diagonally across the Edwards Park from her villa.

Miss Tuckerman is to have the edifice razed. Mr. George H. Bend of New York is to demolish her daughter's villa at Stockbridge, and the Maples for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dixon of New York are guests of Miss Heloise Dickson at her home in Lenox.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hollister Pease had a dinner party to-night at their Lenox villa.

Miss Mary Applewhall Tappan, closed Tanglewood to-day and went to Boston. Mrs. Alfred Gilmore and family went to Newport.

Mr. Raymond T. Baker, who has been spending several weeks in New York, returned to Holmwood to-day for Thanksgiving.

EDWIN D. MORGAN SELLS NEWPORT VILLA

Beacon Rock Purchased by Mr. Marion Eppley.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 22.—Mr. Marion Eppley to-day purchased Beacon Rock on Ocean drive, from Mr. Edwin D. Morgan. It is one of the finest estates in Newport and a show place overlooking the Rhode Island coast.

Mr. Eppley is a niece of the late Henry A. C. Taylor. Beacon Rock includes several acres of ground, a large villa and many other buildings, including a large garage.

TEA FOR MISS CARRERE

Other Guests Chiefly Members of Her Bridal Party.

For Miss Elizabeth Cochrane Carrere, daughter of Mrs. L. Sidney Carrere of 507 Madison avenue, who will be married to Mr. William Warren Barbour on December 1 at the home of her father, and Beatrice H. Wilson, daughter of Mr. Walter Hope Wilson of 973 Park avenue, gave a tea and bridge party yesterday for the future bride in her home.

The guests were chiefly other friends of Miss Carrere, who, like Miss Beatrice H. Wilson, will be members of her bridal party. They were Mrs. H. Maynard Dickson, a sister of Miss Carrere, who will be her matron of honor, and Mrs. L. Roy Jones, Mrs. Frederick K. Barbour, another sister of Miss Carrere; Miss Dorothy Just, Miss Mary Warren and Mrs. Reginald Rowland, who will be the other attendants. Some of the other guests were Miss Adeline Kelly of New York, Mrs. Archibald Stearns Wilson of Hastings, N. Y., and Miss Ruth Blanchard of Elm Falls, N. Y.

Philip SUVAL

Largest and best collection of Mezz-tints and Etchings. Paintings Restored. 746 MADISON AVE. Between 66th and 68th Sts., N. Y.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES. Christ an Healing Service. St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 141st St. Rev. WILLIAM T. WALSH, Rector. Every Thursday (to-morrow) at 10.30 and by appointment. Audubon 9230.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

NEW YORK. Mr. and Mrs. H. Anthony Dyer of Providence are at the Vanderbilt. Mr. T. Pearsall Field gave a supper and dance in Sherry's last night.

The Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest entertained her friends at dinner last evening in Sherry's.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Thorn Kissel have come from their country place in Peapack, N. J., to the Hotel St. Regis.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Havenmeyer will go to-day to Islip, L. I. They recently returned from a trip to Colorado.

Mrs. Moses Taylor Pyne has returned to 283 Madison avenue from Princeton, N. J.

Col. and Mrs. Benjamin B. McAlpin will open their new apartment at 309 Park avenue on Monday next, coming from Orono, N. Y., for the winter.

Miss Annie B. Jennings will go to-day to Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., from Fairfield, Conn., to be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jennings over Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch gave a reception last evening in their home, 41 East Sixty-first street, for Mr. Vincent d'Indy, the French composer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Flagg will pass Thanksgiving at their country house in Dongan Hills, S. L., returning to New York on November 28.

Mr. Edward J. Berwind, who had been passing several weeks in Europe, will arrive in New York this week on board the Adriatic.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Courtland Penfield have postponed their departure for Europe. They will sail by the Paris on December 14 to pass the winter in Montone, France.

Mrs. Henry Arthur Hutchins, Jr., of Boston have arrived in New York with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Gilmore Kerley of 10 East Eighty-fifth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ogden Jones who have been visiting her mother, Mrs. Edward Ripley, in Mendon, Vt., have gone to Cooperstown, N. Y., to be guests of Mrs. Waldo Johnston for the winter. They will go to their farm in Southern Pines, N. C., in the spring.

WASHINGTON. Miss Lindsay Wood entertained informally at dinner last evening, taking her guests later to the reception at the British Embassy.

Mrs. Coolidge occupied a box at the National Theatre yesterday for Mrs. Leahy, recited and Mrs. Henry F. Fletcher as her guest.

Baroness de Cartier, wife of the Belgian Ambassador, entertained informally at luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Edward Flagg, recited and Mrs. Henry F. Fletcher as her guest.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks and members of the Navy and Mrs. Denby will attend the Army and Navy football game in New York. Secretary and Mrs. Denby will have Lord and Lady Lee of Fareham as their guests.

The Swedish Minister and Mme. Wallenberg had a luncheon yesterday for the Countess of Anselme. The guests included Mme. Hausa, the Minister of Portugal, Viscount d'Alte; Mr. Leander McCormick-Goodhart of the British Embassy and Miss Ingegard Wallenberg daughter of the hostess.

Miss Ruth Wallace will arrive in Washington to-day to spend Thanksgiving with her parents, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace, in their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel. She will return to her studies at Goucher College in Baltimore on Sunday.

NEWPORT. Arriving at the Muenchinger King last night were Mr. and Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Creighton I. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Hepburn, Mrs. Prescott Slade, Mrs. Eugene S. Reynal and Mrs. T. H. Thebaud from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin will arrive from New York on Thanksgiving Day for a short stay.

Mr. Louis B. McCagg and his daughter, Mrs. Mary McCagg, are here for a few days, visiting their villa.

H. S. VANDERBILT JOINS BACHELORS COMMITTEE

Takes Place of Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., Recently Married.

Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt has been added to the committee of the Bachelors to take the place of Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., whose recent marriage takes him from the list of bachelors, in charge of the series of five dances to start Friday evening in the Vanderbilt Hotel, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. William Goadby Low and Mrs. R. Thornton Wilson have been added to the women's committee.

The hostesses at the first dance will include Mrs. Field, who will entertain a party of ten; Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr.

MISS HALSTEAD ENGAGED.

Granddaughter of the Late Murat Halstead to Become Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Halstead announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hildegard Halstead, to Lieutenant Charles Richard Hatherall, Corps of Engineers, United States Army. Miss Halstead was graduated from Miss Fort's School, Farmington, Conn., and is a granddaughter of the late Murat Halstead of Cincinnati.

Lieut. Hatherall is at present stationed at Fort Bliss, Tex. He was graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in 1920.

MISS M. W. MILLER TO WED.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller of 16 East Ninety-sixth street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Winthrop, to Mr. William D. Crim, son of the late Dr. F. D. Crim of Utica.

Miss Miller was graduated from Vassar in 1919 and is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, who was a sister of Mr. William Rutherford Mead and of the late Mrs. William D. Howells. Mr. Crim was graduated from Cornell in 1917 and was in the aviation corps during the war.

ENGAGED TO BISHOP'S SON. An engagement of interest here is that of Miss Barbara Branson Johnson, daughter of Charles A. Johnson of Denver, to Mr. Stanley Johnson, eldest son of the Bishop of Colorado.

AMATEURS PRODUCE MELODRAMA AS BENEFIT FOR DAY NURSERY

Quartet by George Enesco Is Performed for the First Time Here.

Misses Dorothy Schiff, Virginia de Haven and Marjorie Hughes.

Debutantes of Society and Others Appear in 'Murder on the Half Shell' at the Plaza.

With two hours of seriocomic musical tragedy that gave a ballroom full of spectators in the Plaza last night hardly a chance to catch their breath, fifty members of the young set of society, including some of the 1921-22 debutantes, "jazzed" into melodrama with musical trimmings to start the local season in amateur dramatics.

The vehicle, "Murder on the Half Shell," originated by Algernon Greig and staged by Miss Grace H. Henry, society's leading producer, was sub-captioned "A Musical Tragedy with Musical Elaborations." Whatever the offering of tragic-comedy-farce-drama might properly be designated, it gave the audience in the new ballroom a thoroughly amusing evening, and incidentally sent into the treasury of the Manhattanville Day Nursery $3,000, which will be enough to fit up a new ward in that institution.

The real objective of the capable young women who were the new ward in the nursery and to attain it they worked hard through two weeks of rehearsals, and one trout before another they were ready to go on.

The complicated tangle involved in "Murder on the Half Shell," started in the office of movie magnate, by name Selu Lloyd. In this part reappeared on the amateur stage Mr. Van Henry Cartmell, Jr., who went to followers of the annual productions of the Amateur Comedy Club. In quest of cinema fame there went Mrs. Virginia de Haven, the heroine of the play. It was Miss de Haven's debut on the amateur stage. She was accompanied by Mrs. Grace (Miss Christina Nichols), Harry Henderson, the hero (Mr. Louis C. Orenka, Jr.), Adolphus Madison, the villain (Mr. Meredith Wood), and numerous other aspirants, including a dancer (Miss Julia Shanley), and a singer, another dancer (Mrs. Ernest MacMillan 83).

They and many others were accepted by Mr. Cellu Lloyd for the cast of his new film when into the scene Mrs. Howard, a reformer (Miss Grace Hendrick), forced herself in an effort to cut short the lure of the cinema over the modish world. From the office all went, in the second act, to the movie studio and the rehearsal bright about many amusing things, including the transformation of Mrs. Morrell into the fairest vamp who ever made the Junior League.

The dramatic action centered chiefly in the undoing of the villain with his ulterior motives. He died a very rough death, mourned by six wives, who arranged themselves according to rank about him and sang and danced a merry dirge.

The tallest of the wives was Miss Isabelle MacMillan and the shortest Mrs. John Stanford, while in between were the other four fascinating widows, the Misses Marie R. Lamarche, Isabelle Wood, Betty Cushman and Virginia Fox.

The real objective of the capable young women who were the new ward in the nursery and to attain it they worked hard through two weeks of rehearsals, and one trout before another they were ready to go on.

The complicated tangle involved in "Murder on the Half Shell," started in the office of movie magnate, by name Selu Lloyd. In this part reappeared on the amateur stage Mr. Van Henry Cartmell, Jr., who went to followers of the annual productions of the Amateur Comedy Club. In quest of cinema fame there went Mrs. Virginia de Haven, the heroine of the play. It was Miss de Haven's debut on the amateur stage. She was accompanied by Mrs. Grace (Miss Christina Nichols), Harry Henderson, the hero (Mr. Louis C. Orenka, Jr.), Adolphus Madison, the villain (Mr. Meredith Wood), and numerous other aspirants, including a dancer (Miss Julia Shanley), and a singer, another dancer (Mrs. Ernest MacMillan 83).

They and many others were accepted by Mr. Cellu Lloyd for the cast of his new film when into the scene Mrs. Howard, a reformer (Miss Grace Hendrick), forced herself in an effort to cut short the lure of the cinema over the modish world. From the office all went, in the second act, to the movie studio and the rehearsal bright about many amusing things, including the transformation of Mrs. Morrell into the fairest vamp who ever made the Junior League.

The dramatic action centered chiefly in the undoing of the villain with his ulterior motives. He died a very rough death, mourned by six wives, who arranged themselves according to rank about him and sang and danced a merry dirge.

The tallest of the wives was Miss Isabelle MacMillan and the shortest Mrs. John Stanford, while in between were the other four fascinating widows, the Misses Marie R. Lamarche, Isabelle Wood, Betty Cushman and Virginia Fox.

The real objective of the capable young women who were the new ward in the nursery and to attain it they worked hard through two weeks of rehearsals, and one trout before another they were ready to go on.

The complicated tangle involved in "Murder on the Half Shell," started in the office of movie magnate, by name Selu Lloyd. In this part reappeared on the amateur stage Mr. Van Henry Cartmell, Jr., who went to followers of the annual productions of the Amateur Comedy Club. In quest of cinema fame there went Mrs. Virginia de Haven, the heroine of the play. It was Miss de Haven's debut on the amateur stage. She was accompanied by Mrs. Grace (Miss Christina Nichols), Harry Henderson, the hero (Mr. Louis C. Orenka, Jr.), Adolphus Madison, the villain (Mr. Meredith Wood), and numerous other aspirants, including a dancer (Miss Julia Shanley), and a singer, another dancer (Mrs. Ernest MacMillan 83).

They and many others were accepted by Mr. Cellu Lloyd for the cast of his new film when into the scene Mrs. Howard, a reformer (Miss Grace Hendrick), forced herself in an effort to cut short the lure of the cinema over the modish world. From the office all went, in the second act, to the movie studio and the rehearsal bright about many amusing things, including the transformation of Mrs. Morrell into the fairest vamp who ever made the Junior League.

The dramatic action centered chiefly in the undoing of the villain with his ulterior motives. He died a very rough death, mourned by six wives, who arranged themselves according to rank about him and sang and danced a merry dirge.

The tallest of the wives was Miss Isabelle MacMillan and the shortest Mrs. John Stanford, while in between were the other four fascinating widows, the Misses Marie R. Lamarche, Isabelle Wood, Betty Cushman and Virginia Fox.

The real objective of the capable young women who were the new ward in the nursery and to attain it they worked hard through two weeks of rehearsals, and one trout before another they were ready to go on.

The complicated tangle involved in "Murder on the Half Shell," started in the office of movie magnate, by name Selu Lloyd. In this part reappeared on the amateur stage Mr. Van Henry Cartmell, Jr., who went to followers of the annual productions of the Amateur Comedy Club. In quest of cinema fame there went Mrs. Virginia de Haven, the heroine of the play. It was Miss de Haven's debut on the amateur stage. She was accompanied by Mrs. Grace (Miss Christina Nichols), Harry Henderson, the hero (Mr. Louis C. Orenka, Jr.), Adolphus Madison, the villain (Mr. Meredith Wood), and numerous other aspirants, including a dancer (Miss Julia Shanley), and a singer, another dancer (Mrs. Ernest MacMillan 83).

They and many others were accepted by Mr. Cellu Lloyd for the cast of his new film when into the scene Mrs. Howard, a reformer (Miss Grace Hendrick), forced herself in an effort to cut short the lure of the cinema over the modish world. From the office all went, in the second act, to the movie studio and the rehearsal bright about many amusing things, including the transformation of Mrs. Morrell into the fairest vamp who ever made the Junior League.

The dramatic action centered chiefly in the undoing of the villain with his ulterior motives. He died a very rough death, mourned by six wives, who arranged themselves according to rank about him and sang and danced a merry dirge.

The tallest of the wives was Miss Isabelle MacMillan and the shortest Mrs. John Stanford, while in between were the other four fascinating widows, the Misses Marie R. Lamarche, Isabelle Wood, Betty Cushman and Virginia Fox.

The real objective of the capable young women who were the new ward in the nursery and to attain it they worked hard through two weeks of rehearsals, and one trout before another they were ready to go on.

Flonzaley Quartet Opens With New Rumanian Music

Quartet by George Enesco Is Performed for the First Time Here.

By W. J. HENDERSON. The late Edward J. De Connet bequeathed a priceless legacy to the musical world when he founded the Flonzaley Quartet. It was greatly needed in its earlier days as a contrast and foil to the Kneisel organization, whose style was markedly different. Since Mr. Kneisel and his associates retired from the chamber music field the Flonzaley Quartet has easily occupied an unchallenged position and its public comprises the most cultured music lovers of this and other cities.

Last evening it gave the first concert of its season in Aeolian Hall. The occasion assumed a special importance by reason of the initial performance of a new quartet by George Enesco, the Rumanian composer, who has long lived in Paris. The work, which is in E flat major and is dedicated to the Flonzaley players, was begun before the outbreak of the great war. It was composed and been written before the composer's mind was distracted from his art. The other two were made recently and naturally there is a perceptible difference in quality between the two halves of the composition.

This difference betrays itself in the larger warmth and spontaneity of the first movement. The three and a half fourth show the pale light of the midnight oil. They are indubitably the products of a musical mind working in a congenial field, but the inspiration which the quartet had been permitted to die and to resurrect it was a labor of love, indeed, but a palpable labor nevertheless.

The first and second movements are brilliant chamber music. At the opening is heard what may be called the germinal theme of the entire composition. It is announced in what musicians call "canon" form and is then led through a series of strikingly effective developments in which there is some unusually planned, but entirely successful solo writing for each of the four instruments.

The customary contrast is plainly derived from the fundamental theme and by this process the movement acquires a well knit organization, which is not less impressive but rather richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. James J. Hill, Known for Charity, Is Dead in St. Paul

Eight of Children Near Bed-side at Passing of Widow of Railroad Builder.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 22.—Mrs. James J. Hill, widow of the former president of the Great Northern Railway, died at her home here this morning.

Mrs. Hill had been seriously ill for two months from a heart attack. All her close relatives were here at the time of her death, except her eldest daughter, Mrs. Samuel Hill, who is an invalid. Funeral services will be held at the St. Paul Cathedral on Friday morning.

Despite her numerous gifts to charity and other institutions, it was said that Mrs. Hill's estate would amount to $15,000,000. She received $16,500,000 from the estate of her husband.

Mrs. Hill was born in New York city in July, 1848. She was Mary Theresa Mehegan, second daughter of Patrick and Mary McGovern Mehegan, both natives of Ireland. She went to St. Paul with her parents in 1848. Two years later Patrick Mehegan died, leaving his family in circumstances which made it necessary that the children go to work as soon as they were old enough to do so. The task of supporting the family fell on Mary.

The romance of James J. Hill and Miss Mehegan began in 1863. They became acquainted while he was a clerk for a packing company on the levee and she was acquiring the rudiments of his business education. They were married four years later.

Even before the death of her husband Mrs. Hill had considerable fortune in her name, through gifts from him. She was a contributor to charities and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr. Hill, was a contributor to charities and a large number of St. Paul relief and welfare organizations. He was the richer through her generosity.

Mrs. Hill leaves nine children, six daughters and three sons, and a sister, Mrs. Anna E. Phelps, 1527 West Twenty-first street, New York. Her husband, Mr