

NEW YORK HERALD

Published by the Sun-Herald Corporation, 280 Broadway, Telephone, WORTH 10,000.

Directors and officers: Frank A. Munsey, President; Ervin W. Wardman, Vice-President; Charles D. Dowd, Treasurer; H. H. Thibault, Secretary.

MAIL SUBSCRIPTION RATES: One Year, $12.00; Six Months, $7.00; Three Months, $4.00.

ADVERTISING RATES: First page, 100 words, 10 days, $10.00; Second page, 100 words, 10 days, $8.00.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY THE SUN-HERALD CORPORATION, 280 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, N. Y.

SALE OFFICE: 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Telephone, WORTH 10,000.

RECEIVING OFFICE: 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Telephone, WORTH 10,000.

POSTAGE: Paid at New York, N. Y., and at additional mailing offices.

SECOND CLASS MAIL PERMIT NO. 100, NEW YORK, N. Y.

REGISTERED MAIL PERMIT NO. 100, NEW YORK, N. Y.

POSTMASTER: Please send address changes to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

ADVERTISING: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

REPRINTS: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

PHOTODUPLICATIONS: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

TRADE MARKS: Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

REGISTERED MAIL PERMIT NO. 100, NEW YORK, N. Y.

POSTMASTER: Please send address changes to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

ADVERTISING: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

REPRINTS: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

PHOTODUPLICATIONS: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

TRADE MARKS: Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

REGISTERED MAIL PERMIT NO. 100, NEW YORK, N. Y.

POSTMASTER: Please send address changes to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

ADVERTISING: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

REPRINTS: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

PHOTODUPLICATIONS: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

TRADE MARKS: Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

REGISTERED MAIL PERMIT NO. 100, NEW YORK, N. Y.

POSTMASTER: Please send address changes to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

ADVERTISING: Write to THE NEW YORK HERALD, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

try champions across the mountains to try conclusions with the best of the Eastern horses. Speed was a conspicuous quality in Emperor of Norfolk, Ely Rio Rey and many other champions bred in California.

There is always an inclination to hail the newest phenomenon as the best, but Morvich must run fast and carry weight in record time over the longest distances thoroughbreds are asked to go in this country before he can supplant Man o' War in the affections of the racing public.

The two horses are dissimilar in type. Morvich is a short backed, muscular colt, not more than 15.3 hands high, while Man o' War was 16.1 1/2 hands and built in proportion when he was the same age as the reigning sensation of the turf.

France is showing her ability to keep her exports and imports at an almost exact money balance. In February her purchases abroad very largely overmeasured in bulk her sales abroad, the imports being 4,127,000 metric tons and the exports only 1,519,800 metric tons.

In March the preliminary figures record 4,400,000 tons of imports against 1,600,000 tons of exports. But again the values of the imports and the exports were virtually equal, each standing in round numbers at 1,900,000,000 francs.

Mr. DENIS, with his customary impudence, is calling for the release of the other violators of war laws who were sent to prison as he was but not let out when he was freed.

But Denis is at large, thanks to a sentimental mistake which was discovered as soon as the agitator got out of prison and shouted his unrepentance. Perhaps he would find it harder to get back into prison than it was to get out.

The victory of General Wu Peifu, Viceroy of Honan and chief of the central Chinese army, appears complete. The forces of his rival, General Chang Tso-lin, have been driven back toward Manchuria, from which they recently set out on their march of conquest, a scattered, disorganized army, leaving much of their artillery and munitions of war and their dead and wounded on the field.

The war between these two Chinese leaders or super-titans is the seventh since the Republic in which some party or faction has resorted to arms to settle in its own way the political difficulties of the country.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

He comes, he says, with no mission of any sort to perform. He is a visitor with the idea of finding a control which he exercised over the nominal President, Hsu Shih-chang, and what was the opposition of Wu Peifu.

The rivalry between these two chiefs is not ended by any means. Chang Tso-lin is likely to be a menace to Peifu until he is driven back to his capital at Mukden. To accomplish this is Wu Peifu's declared aim. But even this ultimate success and General Wu Peifu's complete control of the central Government at Peking would give no assurance that China's troubles were ended.

Dr. SUN YAT-SEN'S plan for a unification presents, in the opinion of many foreigners in China, the greatest degree of hope for stability of government. But to bring this about means a settlement of factional differences, the ending of the domination of the regional chiefs and the substitution therefor of provincial governments backed by and under the authority of the people.

At its annual dinner last week the Westchester County Bar Association in a set of highly laudatory resolutions unanimously expressed the esteem and admiration of its members for Justice MARTIN J. KEOGH, who will retire with the close of 1922 from the Supreme Court, Ninth Judicial district, after twenty-seven years of notable service on that bench.

By the time a child is 16 years old, unless it is a moron or worse, it has learned to read and write and has at least a working knowledge of mathematics, history and geography.

Richard Croker won the Derby with his chestnut colt named Orby. Or I should say that there be many call it still Derbees.

Dr. DAVID FORSYTH of London is quoted in the newspapers as an authority on the loves of men and women. By profession he is a psychoanalyst. Dr. Forsyth's thoughts on love may be all very well in the laboratory, but not a single pair of lovers in the whole wide world will pay the slightest attention to his utterances on the subject.

A Philadelphia woman displeased by the garb of her daughter has solved one problem by giving to a Far East relief fund the knickerbockers which stirred her ire. There remains, however, a moral question. If the knickerbockers are improper for an American girl, are they not improper for an Armenian girl? Perhaps the Philadelphia mother soothes her mind with the thought that "out of sight is out of mind."

The spacious New Rochelle estate of Judge KEOGH on the shore of Long Island Sound, where tranquility and reposeful ease invite him in his frail health and declining years to abide more and more, come daily pilgrimages from far and near, men, women and children, by dozens and scores, in motor cars, carriages and afoot, seeking the sage opinion and the gentle admonition of the snow-haired man whom they all look upon as neighbor and friend.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

He comes, he says, with no mission of any sort to perform. He is a visitor with the idea of finding a pleasant change and of enjoying the country. America will see that he is in no wise disappointed. It receives with pleasure this man of striking and worthy achievement.

New York is treated once more to the comic side of the school attendance law. A little more than a year ago the town laughed heartily when a young married woman was taken to court because she refused to attend the continuation school. This time the farce is even more amusing.

Lewis de Francesca was haled to court because he ignored the law which compels school attendance for persons under 18 years who have not reached certain academic heights. The young man could only plead that he was married last November and that he believed that a husband's place when not at work was in the home rather than in the school.

This continuation school law is not one of those absurd archaic things which legislators have neglected to expunge. It is one of the silly new things, at least in the extension of the age of those who must go to continuation school. It is one of the products of the constantly rising desire on the part of the professional busybodies to regulate the lives of individuals.

Richard Croker won the Derby with his chestnut colt named Orby. Or I should say that there be many call it still Derbees.

Dr. DAVID FORSYTH of London is quoted in the newspapers as an authority on the loves of men and women. By profession he is a psychoanalyst. Dr. Forsyth's thoughts on love may be all very well in the laboratory, but not a single pair of lovers in the whole wide world will pay the slightest attention to his utterances on the subject.

A Philadelphia woman displeased by the garb of her daughter has solved one problem by giving to a Far East relief fund the knickerbockers which stirred her ire. There remains, however, a moral question. If the knickerbockers are improper for an American girl, are they not improper for an Armenian girl? Perhaps the Philadelphia mother soothes her mind with the thought that "out of sight is out of mind."

The spacious New Rochelle estate of Judge KEOGH on the shore of Long Island Sound, where tranquility and reposeful ease invite him in his frail health and declining years to abide more and more, come daily pilgrimages from far and near, men, women and children, by dozens and scores, in motor cars, carriages and afoot, seeking the sage opinion and the gentle admonition of the snow-haired man whom they all look upon as neighbor and friend.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

He comes, he says, with no mission of any sort to perform. He is a visitor with the idea of finding a

He comes, he says, with no mission of any sort to perform. He is a visitor with the idea of finding a

Results of Prohibition. Treasury Figures as Evidence of Law Enforcement.

To THE NEW YORK HERALD: From your news columns it appears that the revenue under the prohibition law amounts to about $200,000,000 for nine months. This is approximately the equivalent of $10 from each grown man in the population. As a large percentage do not indulge in liquor at all it doubtless means the equivalent of an assessment of from $50 to $100 on each drinker. Even at this it represents only a few quarts of whisky in a year.

It is the ultimate consumer, of course, who actually pays this huge sum of $200,000,000. While it is true that he does not pay it directly to the Government in the form of fines for his illegal transactions with bootleggers, he pays it out all the same and it goes into the national treasury.

Unquestionably this is the cause of the frantic outcries that the law is not being enforced. An unenforced law does not produce so much emotion. Doubtless there are a few gentlemen who are conscientiously arguing that the law should be enforced or else repealed, but the army of their followers is made up of men who would be agitated at better enforcement and are only interested in repeal.

This church is open for rest, meditation and prayer.

Richard Croker won the Derby with his chestnut colt named Orby. Or I should say that there be many call it still Derbees.

Dr. DAVID FORSYTH of London is quoted in the newspapers as an authority on the loves of men and women. By profession he is a psychoanalyst. Dr. Forsyth's thoughts on love may be all very well in the laboratory, but not a single pair of lovers in the whole wide world will pay the slightest attention to his utterances on the subject.

A Philadelphia woman displeased by the garb of her daughter has solved one problem by giving to a Far East relief fund the knickerbockers which stirred her ire. There remains, however, a moral question. If the knickerbockers are improper for an American girl, are they not improper for an Armenian girl? Perhaps the Philadelphia mother soothes her mind with the thought that "out of sight is out of mind."

The spacious New Rochelle estate of Judge KEOGH on the shore of Long Island Sound, where tranquility and reposeful ease invite him in his frail health and declining years to abide more and more, come daily pilgrimages from far and near, men, women and children, by dozens and scores, in motor cars, carriages and afoot, seeking the sage opinion and the gentle admonition of the snow-haired man whom they all look upon as neighbor and friend.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

Field Marshal French, who held the destiny of the British armies in his hands in the early years of the world war, has come to America as a private citizen. New York extends to this distinguished soldier a cordial and sincere welcome.

Earl French was in America ten years ago, and was called home by the war in the Balkans. Since then as commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in the trying days of 1914 and 1915 he has won renown in the battlefields of Flanders and northeastern France.

He comes, he says, with no mission of any sort to perform. He is a visitor with the idea of finding a

5,000 to Sail To-day on Six Liners Daily Calendar

Miss Mabel Gerry and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barbour Among Voyagers.

More than five thousand passengers bound for various places in Europe are scheduled to sail to-day on board six ocean liners—the Homeric, the Kroonland, the Noordam, the George Washington, President Monroe and La Savoie.

The Homeric of the White Star Line, on her fourth voyage to Southampton and Cherbourg, will have 450 passengers in her first cabin and a total passenger list of 1,300.

Society is represented on the Homeric by Mrs. Joyce Aymer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barbour, Mr. J. B. Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Ellis, Miss Mabel Gerry, Mrs. William E. Glyn, Mr. W. S. Goff, Miss Mary King, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Moulton, Mr. Paul D. Cravath, Barquis, Huntley, Mr. Livingston Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Winson of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pew of Philadelphia; Mrs. King C. Gillette of San Francisco; Mr. Kirby B. White and Mr. Lem W. Bowen of Detroit, Thomas N. Gilmore of New Orleans and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodruff of Atlanta.

Others aboard will be Mr. Frank Crownshied, editor of Vanity Fair; Adjt.-Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid and Mrs. Kincaid; Col. C. E. Biehlen, British consul at Seattle; Dr. J. H. G. Franks, British consul at Rotterdam; among the passengers are Dr. R. A. Henry, Mr. J. E. Blossom, Mr. J. W. Jagger, Mr. B. E. Erb and Mr. A. N. Nogerre, all of the Sinclair Exploration Company, who are bound for East Africa via Holland; Mr. Robert Leonard of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

On board the Kroonland of the White Star Line, bound for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Antwerp, was a total passenger list of 500, are Mrs. Ellory O. Anderson and Miss Mary Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Enoch Mrs. Elizabeth Mackenzie, Mr. T. A. Post, Mr. H. N. Seear, Mr. W. E. Thorne, Mr. C. B. Voorhes, Mrs. Edith S. W. Whiting and Mrs. E. S. White, Mr. W. J. Williams, J. Youngs and Miss Mary F. Youngs, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Wilkinson, Mrs. E. H. Stevenson and Mrs. M. B. Kemel.

The Savoie of the French Line has among its passengers Col. Theodore Davis Boal, Mr. Donald P. Blagden, Miss Olga Drexel Dahlgren, Mr. Robert D. Farrington, Mr. G. Franklyn, Mr. William F. Hendrix, Mr. J. H. The President Monroe, formerly known as the Panhandle State, bound for Plymouth, Cherbourg and London, has among its passengers Mrs. William Borden, Mrs. W. J. Downey, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harris, Dr. W. P. Ingram, Mrs. Charles Percy, Mr. W. P. Treadwell, Mrs. Henry Bassler and Miss E. B. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. A. Caballero, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hunzicker, Dr. and Mrs. A. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. K. Kohl, Mr. and Mrs. A. Schmidt, Mr. James S. Moore, Mr. J. A. Doyle and Mr. James Schoemaker.

When the warm winds of May Wanded by my door to-day They brought a mystic message from the fields of Far Away: And the city's grim and gloom That surrounds me like a tomb, All faded into nothing, for I sensed the faint perfume Of white lilacs after rain.

When the warm winds of May Wanded by my door to-day They brought a mystic message from the fields of Far Away: And the city's grim and gloom That surrounds me like a tomb, All faded into nothing, for I sensed the faint perfume Of white lilacs after rain.

When the warm winds of May Wanded by my door to-day They brought a mystic message from the fields of Far Away: And the city's grim and gloom That surrounds me like a tomb, All faded into nothing, for I sensed the faint perfume Of white lilacs after rain.

When the warm winds of May Wanded by my door to-day They brought a mystic message from the fields of Far Away: And the city's grim and gloom That surrounds me like a tomb, All faded into nothing, for I sensed the faint perfume Of white lilacs after rain.

When the warm winds of May Wanded by my door to-day They brought a mystic message from the fields of Far Away: And the city's grim and gloom That surrounds me like a tomb, All faded into nothing, for I sensed the faint perfume Of white lilacs after rain.

When the warm winds of May Wanded by my door to-day They brought a mystic message from the fields of Far Away: And the city's grim and gloom That surrounds me like a tomb, All faded into nothing, for I sensed the faint perfume Of white lilacs after rain.

THE WEATHER.

For Eastern New York—Cloudy and warmer to-day; to-morrow unsettled and warmer, probably local thunder showers; moderate shifting winds becoming southerly.

For Northern New England—Showers and warmer to-day; to-morrow cloudy and warmer, possibly showers; fresh south and southerly moderate to strong winds, shifting to southerly to-morrow.

For Southern New England—Cloudy and warmer and probably showers to-day; to-morrow unsettled and warmer with showers, moderate to strong fresh shifting winds, becoming south and southwest.

For Western New York—Generally fair to-day; to-morrow showers and thunder storms, not much change in temperature.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—There have been general rains within the last twenty-four hours in the Atlantic States north of Maryland. The indications are for mostly fair weather in the States east of the Mississippi River to-morrow, except that there will be showers in New England and southern Florida. The weather will become unsettled again Sunday, however, and local thunderstorms are probable in the lower lake region, Ohio Valley, Tennessee and in the Atlantic States north of Florida.

The temperature will rise in the North Atlantic States to-morrow, and it will fall in the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys. In the Atlantic States warnings remain displayed on the Maine coast north of Portland.

Observation at United States Weather Bureau at New York, N. Y., last 24 hours: Temperature, Rainfall, Wind, Clouds, etc.

Stations. High. Low. Direction. Force. Weather.

Ahiole. 52. 38. 20.2. Clear.

Albany. 52. 38. 20.2. Clear.

LOCAL WEATHER RECORDS.

Barometer. 30.00. 29.74.

Wind-direction. N. E.

Wind-velocity. 17.

Precipitation. 0.00.

Temperature. 58.0.

Relative humidity. 65.

Wet-bulb temperature. 55.

Lowest temperature. 46.

Average temperature. 57.

Events to-day.

Celebration of the formal opening of work on the new subway from Times Square to Grand Central.

Senorita Dona E. Donoso will speak on "South America" at the annual meeting of the Teachers of Spanish.

Announcement of winners in the essay contest of the Educational Council of the Port.