PLANE NEW AND COSTLY

Farmer Recalls Mysterious Party in Automobile Just Before Dog Was Killed.

An oil stained, wind wrinkled strip map, pasted on a long piece of canvas, showing the country from Montreal to New York was found yesterday in the upended wreck of the airplane which crashed just after dark Monday on the hillside above Croton on Hudson.

In this worn chart, which obviously had traveled many hundreds of miles pressed between the knees of a pilot in the cockpit of a fast flying plane, the State troopers and county officials of Westchester saw tangible evidence of a prosperous rum running business by air. They also saw a reason why Westchester county, with its numerous road houses and thirsty, well to do people, has had so many aerial visitors.

Quite a few airplanes have been flying over Westchester lately, some running low and out of gliding distance of the river. It was conjectured that many of these may have been laden with bottles like the mystery plane which fell at Croton.

How the Map Found.

The map, which was found by George J. McCall, deputy sheriff, owner of the land on which the plane disintegrated, has the mileage from Montreal to Glens Falls neatly written on its face, with a black line to indicate the route. Montreal is marked "175" and the various important towns have mileages down to Glens Falls, which is zero. Apparently the pilot landed at Glens Falls, for gasoline, oil and water. Immediately below Glens Falls is the numeral "170" and the black line follows the Hudson River down to Croton, which is "30." At Croton the line forks. One branch runs straight across country over Briarcliff to Stamford, Conn., and ends in a cross in the middle of Long Island Sound. The other branch runs to Manhattan.

Apparently Monday night at dusk the big Curtiss plane, with a 160-horsepower motor, reached Croton. Here the pilot appeared to hesitate, for he flew low in circles around the farm of Mr. McCall, about a mile north of the village. Possibly he hesitated about landing on a narrow field stretching upward from the hillside and ending on a stone wall, or possibly in the darkness he was not sure he had arrived at the right place. At any rate, he glided down close and then attempted to zoom upward away from the rising ground. He cleared a road, but landed straight ahead in a steeply slanting brush covered hillside. The plane buried its nose in the ground, the landing gear snapped, the metal tipped propeller splintered to bits, the lower wings and several struts snapped, and fully a third of the 150-gallon tank of gasoline and Irish whiskey in the front cockpit were spilled.

Said He Was Mail Pilot.

Mr. McCall, who started immediately for his woodlot, when he heard the motor quit, found the plane deserted. With a flashlight he searched the nearby bushes for the body of the pilot, who had scrambled down to the road and moved off in a motor car. The pilot, young and good looking, told these people that he was unburnt, and endeavored to keep them away from the plane. He said his name was Wynne, and he was a former mail pilot, and that he wanted a motor car to get to Mineola at once. He then dashed up to the plane again and met McCall. "Don't let anybody see near the plane," he said anxiously, and raised an oilcloth strip covering the front cockpit. As he did so Mr. McCall caught the odor of whiskey above the smell of hot gasoline and oil.

Don't try to whiten teeth with grit that scratches the enamel. That's harmful. Use a soft polishing agent—the Pepsodent agent. Then combat the dingy film twice daily in this new, effective way.

That's what millions of people the world over are doing, largely by dental advice. Look about you and see the beautiful teeth that result.

Clouded by film

Teeth are clouded by a film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Stains enter it, then the film, if left, forms the basis of dingy coats. That's why teeth lose luster. Film is also the basis of tartar.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to that film. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it.

GERMANY FIRE FIGHTERS WELCOME HEAVY RAIN

Churches to Give Praise for Answer to Prayers.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. CAPT. MAY, N. J., May 16.—A drenching rain fell through the night on the forest fire which had been burning for eight days at Woodbine. The rain gave a rest to the volunteer fire fighters, who stuck after the strikers quit. One of the fire fighters who had had little sleep since the start of the fire, said others cried for joy when the rain came down in torrents.

It is understood the county officials will demand an inquiry by fire wardens into the cause of the fire, which has cost nearly $2,000,000 in damages and has menaced several towns for weeks and kept the residents in terror.

CHARGES IN BOSCH INQUIRY MADE AGAINST DAUGHTERY

Letters From Scaife to Representative Woodruff Allege Collusion With the Defendant's Attorney.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., May 16.

The Congressional to-day revealed an alleged attempt by Col. Thomas E. Felder of New York, an attorney, to engage H. L. Scaife, recently discharged investigator of the Department of Justice, in the interest of the Bosch Magneto Company.

Correspondence is presented by Representative Woodruff (Mich.) in an effort to show that Attorney-General Daugherty, who is soon to start the prosecution of the Bosch Magneto case, was in collusion with Col. Felder, who is representing the Bosch interests, even to the extent of arranging for the services of the one-time Government investigator for the defense.

The charges are contained in an "extension of remarks" made by Mr. Woodruff and are in the form of two letters, one from Mr. Scaife to Mr. Woodruff and the other from Col. Felder to Mr. Scaife.

"During the course of a conversation," Mr. Scaife wrote, "Col. Felder stated that he had been retained as counsel:

with to pay off all customers. The mines had cost the firm for the year $154,000, mainly salaries to employees and cash advances to individuals connected with the property.

Mr. Reis asserted that there was a possibility of recovering perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars in assets as the charges made on the Dier & Co. books, from which he had taken his figures, were of amounts charged against the firm, when, properly speaking, many of them should have been made against individuals.

Mr. Hayes stated that certain Stock Exchange houses which had been subpoenaed and instructed to produce "cir books," had consented to an adjournment in order that their books might be examined by the accountant for the trustee in bankruptcy.

BUCKETING TEST CASE COMMENCED BY BANTON

Howard K. Stanley, former member of the stock brokerage firm of Minter, Norton & Co., 26 Broad street, went to trial on a charge of grand larceny in bucketing orders yesterday before Judge Johnstone in General Sessions.

District Attorney Banton pointed out that he considered this a test case. He said he wanted to determine if the evidence presented against Stanley for bucketing will enable him to obtain a conviction for grand larceny. Neilson Oloott, Assistant District Attorney, prosecuting, told the jury the case was a "clear one of bucketing."

Joseph Kelsner, chemical manufacturer of Newark, the complainant, testified that he had opened an account with the brokerage on September 28, depositing $700 in cash and $1,500 in Liberty bonds, to be used for the purchase of orders on margin.

Several transactions took place, he alleged, until October 24, when he ordered his account closed after its figures had swelled to $3,200. He received a check for $1,500 on account, which was returned marked "no funds."

VALENTINO WEDDING LEGAL, HE ASSERTS

Douglas Gerrard, Best Man at Ceremony in Mexico, Describes Event.

MARRIED IN GOOD FAITH

Many Documents Signed and Dozen Witnesses Present, Says Movie Star's Friend.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. LOS ANGELES, May 16.—Authentic details of the Valentino-Rambova wedding were brought to this city to-day by an eye witness of the marriage, Douglas Gerrard, who was best man for the bridegroom. He stated that if the official nature of the ceremony and the prominence of civic and governmental dignitaries who attended signified anything, the validity of the marriage certainly was established.

Mr. Valentino went to Mexico with a letter from the Mexican Consul here directed to the Mayor of the city, Otto Moller, last Thursday Mr. Gerrard said. "It took from then until Saturday to settle the legal and technical details. Innumerable documents had to be signed and the ceremony was done in the presence of a dozen witnesses, which was performed with complete legal detail of Mexico.

Even at the last moment, when some question arose regarding whether the marriage contract would hold in California, Mr. Valentino and Miss Rambova, or as she is known in private life Miss Hudson, hesitated about allowing the ceremony to take place. However, they were urged by all present to contract the marriage. The Mayor of the Mexican city himself said that he would stand back of it. A deputy sheriff from across the border said that it was advisable to proceed. He declared that a marriage contracted under similar circumstances in Arizona or Texas would be legal.

"I believe that this is conclusive evidence of the fact that Valentino entered into the marriage in good faith. His sincerity about the wedding was what impressed the officials of this Mexican city so that they would sponsor the ceremony. Not only was the President there but also the magistrate, Judge Sandoval, who performed the ceremony, and the chief of police.

"After the wedding a festival in Mexican fashion was held and the bride party was feted. Everybody made speeches suitable to the occasion. A concert was given by Mexican musicians, and even the military band played the Mexican wedding march and national anthems of Mexico and America.

"The feast lasted until late, and the band then accompanied us to the border. We returned to Palm Springs late that night, where Mr. Valentino expects to remain for the present.

Mr. Gerrard has long been a friend of Mr. Valentino, and directed the actor when he was playing at Universal City.

HAVERSTRAW BRICK MEN EXPECTED BACK TO-DAY

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., May 16.—About 1,200 striking employees of the Haverstraw brickyards are expected to return to work to-morrow morning as a result of a meeting to-day between the operators and a committee of eleven representing the strikers. Those who have been residents of Haverstraw for some time will go back first. Those still on strike are the imported labor from New York and the South.

The operators offered an increase of 50 cents a day in wages. The seven negroes on the committee voted to accept. The four white men stood firm for an increase of $1 a day.

At the offices of Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, it was explained that no action could be taken in the Valentino case by the mentor of the movielovers until some legal action had been taken by the California authorities.

Mr. Hays, it was pointed out, would not handle such matters until after they had been brought into court, if they were wrong, as in the Araculic case, and until public opinion seemed to call for his intervention.

No statement was made at the offices of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, where Valentino is under contract.

SENATE IS FLOUTED FOR NAVAL JUNKET

Resolution Fails to Prevent 27 Officers Making Trip to Japan on Transport.

DENBY MAY BE IN PARTY

Graduates of Annapolis Want to Visit Their Old Classmate, Admiral Uriu.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16. [New York Herald Bureau.] Despite a resolution adopted by the Senate to-day protesting against the use of the transport Henderson to convey members of the Annapolis class of 1881 to Japan as the guests of one of their number, Admiral Uriu, plans for the trip have not been changed. It was announced to-night at the Navy Department. The ship is scheduled to start next Saturday from Hampton Roads.

Secretary Denby expects to be in the party, as he is considered the "brother-in-law of the class." The members of the class will take with them their wives and others of their families. The party will consist of from twenty-five to twenty-seven persons.

The Senate resolution, introduced by Senator McCormick (Ill.), declared: "It is the sense of the Senate that the transport Henderson should not be allowed to proceed to Japan to convey certain former midshipmen."

On last Friday Senator McCormick paved the way for his resolution by saying: "I wish to call attention to the Senate to the report that the great transport Henderson is to proceed from the United States to Japan for the sole purpose of conveying hither Annapolis classmates of Admiral Uriu.

"It is an excellent idea that the classmates of the Admiral, including the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy of the United States, should go to Japan in the interest of comity between the nations, but inasmuch as the navy complains of a shortage of fuel, I venture to suggest to the Committee on Appropriations that possibly there is a vessel operating the charter of the Shipping Board which could find berth for the twenty-seven classmates of Admiral Uriu to carry them to Japan without a great expenditure involved in the navigation of the Henderson from this country across the Pacific."

Senator Robinson (Ark.) also took occasion to observe: "It seems astonishing to a degree almost unbelievable that any agency of the Government has any such purpose in mind."

If the Navy Department ignores the pointed hint thrown out by the Senators, it is said the proposed junket will be the subject of comment on the floor of the Senate within the next few days.
