PROSECUTOR GOES EARLY

Reputed Statement That Wife
Knew of Mills' Murder Is Promptly Denied.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 27.—The presentation of evidence in the Hall-Mills murder case to the Somerset County Grand Jury will be concluded to-morrow night, according to statements to-night in official quarters. Six witnesses are to be called to-morrow, including Mrs. Jane Gibson, so-called eyewitness.

Opinion is divided about equally as to whether indictments will be found. Those close to Wilbur A. Mott, Special Deputy Attorney-General, believe that two bills will be voted. Others say they can see no reason why the Grand Jury should take such action. Minor events to-day during the session of the Grand Jury led many to believe that the result will be negative.

Mr. Mott has not put before the Grand Jury a witness whose tale had not been told and retold before the Grand Jury took up the case. Mr. Mott examined Mrs. Addison Clarke, also known as Minna Clarke, for less than five minutes. Detectives said to-night that Mrs. Clarke knows much more than she could have told in the time she was in the jury room.

Mott Leaves Scene Early.

Mr. Mott with his chief and lieutenant, James F. Mason, left Somerville to-day at 2:40 o'clock, an hour and ten minutes before the Grand Jury adjourned. Asst. Atty. Gen. Mott had been doing most of the questioning.

Two brands of stories have followed the Grand Jury hearing. One, from semi-official sources, is that the evidence has been detrimental to the interest of the woman in gray that Mrs. Gibson says she saw on the Phillips farm the night of the murder; the other brand, from various sources, all interested, is to the effect that nothing worth recounting has been revealed.

Nineteen witnesses were examined to-day. Chiefly their testimony had to do with the affair between Hall and Mrs. Mills and the general knowledge of it.

Occasionally and inferentially the Grand Jury was given the impression that Mrs. Hall must have known what was going on. So strong was this inference that a report spread during the afternoon that Mrs. Hall has issued a statement acknowledging that she knew of the relation between her husband and Mrs. Mills. This was denied promptly for Mrs. Hall by Timothy N. Feiffer, her counsel.

Mrs. Clarke Ninth Witness.
Mrs. Clarke was the ninth witness. She is not to be recalled. It was learned positively. Mrs. Clarke was referred to in the letters that passed between Hall and Mrs. Mills. Mrs. Mills once wrote her: "Poor Mills is always satisfied with the crumbs." She was supposed to know of the happenings at Point Pleasant and the gossip in the choir about the Lake Hopatcong trip on which the architect and his wife and Mrs. Mills went on the day before the murder, and she was one of those to visit the church on the day the bodies were found. She was at the Hall house on the Thursday afternoon of the murder.

Ralph Gorsline also was examined to-day. According to one report, he was questioned only as to the gossip in the church about Hall and Mrs. Mills. Edwin Carpenter was not put on the stand. Carpenter, who drove over from New Brunswick in the green Mercer car which has been mentioned frequently, waited in the corridor all day. Attorney Beckman told Carpenter that what he has been summoned to corroborate had been corroborated by another witness, Barbara Tough and Louise Geist, servants in the Hall house, were examined. G. Russell Gildersleeve, at the afternoon session, told the Grand Jury of having seen Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills in New York, arm in arm, in the neighborhood of Forty-second street.

Tells of Phone Calls.
Miss Myrtle Opie, the chatty neighbor, told of the telephone calls that had come from Mrs. Mills in the course of the fatal Thursday afternoon. She was followed by Mrs. Elsie Barnhart of Paterson, Mrs. Mills' sister, who related the incident in the course of which Mrs. Mills was reported to have said that Mrs. Hall said to her: "You are making my life very unhappy."

William Phillips told of having seen Mrs. Hall enter her home at 2 o'clock on the morning of Friday, alone. He was followed by Peter Tumulty, chauffeur and gardener at the Hall house. After Tumulty had testified Mr. Mott departed. He said then that the remaining witnesses were not of importance. The first of these was George Kuhn, to whom Willie Stevens made some of his mysterious remarks after the crime. The next two were two boys, brothers, Austin and William Grealis, one of whom delivered a new suit to Willie Stevens a few days after the crime, and the other boy who took some of Willie's old clothes to be cleaned.

Then came Mrs. Kelly, who lives in the same house as the Mills, and Mrs. Augusta Tennyson, another of Mrs. Mills' sisters. Cedar Paulus was called to testify as to whether he saw lights in the church Mrs. Hall says she visited at 2 in the morning. The Paulus home is across the street from the church.

To-morrow Mrs. Jessie Jamieson, member of the choir and some time companion of Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Clarke, will be called, as will A. H. Bennett, neighbor of the Halls, whose testimony as to the barking of his dog in some measures corroborates Phillips' testimony. Henry Mills, brother of "Jimmy" Mills, is to appear to-morrow. Other witnesses are expected to include Detective Ferd David of Middlesex county, and a Newark newspaper man who saw Mrs. Mills' body in the undertaker's rooms and learned of certain telephone calls from the Hall home on the day after the murder. Then will come Mrs. Gibson, the star witness, and with her Mr. Mott expects to conclude his case.

WIFE'S SISTER ENDS 'TIERNANS' REUNION

Third Person Takes Charge of Home Affairs and Bars
Reporters.

Source Here, Nov. 27.—The harmony said to exist in the Tiernan household following announcement to-day by Prof. John P. Tiernan that he and his wife had agreed to a complete reconciliation was threatened to-day after the arrival of Mrs. Tiernan's sister.

Although Prof. Tiernan said the sister was not welcome she took charge of affairs. Her first action was to bar newspapermen.

"There will be no more publicity in this case," she said. "Tiernan has held the whip hand over Gus always. He has given out interviews in which he alone starred. From now on it will be different. I am here to see that Gus (Mrs. Tiernan) gets a square deal, and she is going to get it."

Mr. and Mrs. Tiernan declined to be interviewed.

Following the settlement of the case, the professor said they planned to sell their household goods and move to New York. Arrangements had been made to sell the household furniture at a public sale Friday.

H. G. Wells A SHORT HISTORY OF THE WORLD

A notable achievement—The New York Times Book Review.

A dramatic review of man's struggle upward.—The New York Evening Post.

Mr. Wells has a fine imagination for prehistoric things and a magnificent vision of the future.—The New York Herald.

This new book—a romance of world history—is not to be confused with THE OUTLINE OF HISTORY—nor is it to be thought of as a condensation of this former work. It is an entirely new and different volume. In its simple and delightful style it represents the history of mankind as Mr. Wells wanted to write it—from the standpoint of man.

Beautiful and remarkable are the illustrations, beginning with the picture of luminous spiral clouds, continuing through the photographs of early wall-paintings of Egypt, the various kinds of Buddha statues, examples of Greek and Roman art to the last one, a peaceful scene of an English garden with the inscription "Given wisdom, all mankind might live in such gardens."
