KEEP RACES SEPARATE

Retiring Harvard President Says Should be No Admixture.

DECLARES SOUTH'S POLICY IS WISE

New England Educator Also Believes Irish, Americans, Italians, French, Germans and Jews Should Not Intermarry—Depreciates Mixture.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., March 9.—"There should be no admixture of racial stocks" declared retiring President Eliot, of Harvard University last night in an interview. "I believe, for example that the Irish should not intermarry with the Americans; that the Germans should not marry the Italians; that the Jews should not marry the French. Each race should maintain its own individuality. The experience of civilization shows that racial stocks are never mixed with profit, and that such unions do not bring forth the best and strongest citizens. There is no reason, however, why the races cannot live together, side by side in perfect peace and amity.

South Has Wise Policy.

"In the case of the negroes and the whites, the races should keep apart in every respect. The South has a wise policy. I believe that Booker T. Washington has the right idea and that Dubois is injuring the progress of his race with his views." President Eliot emphatically denies that he ever said that there was a "sufrage problem in the North owing to the predominance of Catholics." "In the North we are afflicted in our civic life by having masses of voters who know nothing of liberty. Take the Irish, they say themselves that at home they had no experience at self-government. Our problem is to show the newer arrivals that it is to their interest to have efficient government and not lavish expenditures."

Favors Commission Government.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., March 9.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, retiring president of Harvard University, who spent the day here, will leave early tomorrow for the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa. Dr. Eliot's principal address today was at the high school auditorium, where he discussed "government by commission."

Mrs. Hyler McDaniell was made secretary, and Mr. Mortimer Smith, treasurer. The organization is to be known as the Memorial Church Choir. Following the election of officers came games and music and the evening proved one of pleasure and enjoyment to all present. Dainty refreshments were served. FARMERS MET AT NORMAL SCHOOL YESTERDAY

Many White Agriculturists Attend the Meeting and Listened to Instructive Talks.

A successful all-day session of the Hampton Institute Farmers' Conference was held yesterday in the Normal School gymnasium. Many of the white farmers present joined heartily with the colored men in a frank and helpful discussion of farm problems. Director of Agriculture, C. K. Graham, of the Normal school, gave a demonstration by killing, cleaning, dry plucking and dressing a fowl for market. Lyon F. Ayer pointed out the good and bad characteristics of a dairy cow. Dr. R. R. Clark did the same for the horse. He also pointed out the essentials of good beef stock. I. H. Briddle, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Ethel Gwynne, of the Normal School, judged the corn exhibits. The first prize went to Daniel Tucker, a colored man. Clarence Fowler spoke on "Raising Potatoes." George Davis, on "Corn." William Price, a graduate of Hampton, who is employed under the Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, reported on the growth of the demonstration work in Virginia. S. J. Bowers, of Wellville, Va., told how he had increased his yield of corn from 15 to 51 bushels per acre. H. L. Jackson, a tobacco farmer, of Blackstone, Va., showed how the colored farmers were buying instead of growing all that they ate, drank and wore.

A strong argument was presented in favor of the better selection of seeds, farm implements, and fertilizers, adapted to the special crops, corn, potatoes and tobacco. At the evening session many of the farmers told how they increased the income of their land per acre by following the direction of the demonstration work agents.

UNWRITTEN LAW CODE EXTENDED BY DEFENSE

stood and Carmack understood that there was to be no trouble and that note was never sent.

"You are not trying common thieves or murderers now, gentlemen. You are trying men who come from as fine stock as ever human flesh was made of, the best people of the South."

"Why did they put Miss Daisy Lee, Jim Bradford's stenographer, on the stand?" Meeks continued.

Spares Miss Lee.

"I do not say Miss Lee lied. I would not say that she hit any woman. But I do say that she was mistaken. Miss Lee alone said that Colonel Cooper was not called back. Now even if it were material, we have four witnesses against her, who swear that he was recalled—General Brown, Governor Patterson, James Bradford and Robin Cooper. Yet Captain Fitzhugh arraigned this old white haired soldier for using vile language in Miss Lee's presence. Miss Lee herself said that Colonel Cooper was in another office when he used that language."

General Meeks next took up John Sharp's case.

He asked the jury if they were going to hang a man because he said "Carmack should have been dead and in hell 20 years ago."

He declared there was no evidence against Sharp to connect him with the killing.

"The State declares," said the general, "that these defendants must have known that Senator Carmack would pass the point at which they met him at the time they met him. Well, why didn't they prove it? Senator Carmack stopped at the drug store, stopped to help Mrs. Williams on a car, stopped to talk to Jordan Stokes. Are these all conspirators? For if he had not stopped he would never have met the Coopers. The conspiracy case, gentlemen, is foolish, unreasonable and impossible."

Cooper Peaceably Inclined.

General Meeks argued that Colonel Cooper, having decided not to press his demands upon Carmack, walked over to talk the matter over peaceably; that having failed to send the note which he knew and Carmack knew was to be the declaration of war, he had no idea of trouble.

"And he never even drew his gun when he saw his own son engaged in a revolver duel with his deadly enemy. How do I know it? From the State's star witness, Mrs. Eastman, who never told anything favorable to the defense, and told everything she knew against the accused. But she says when she turned around that she saw Colonel Cooper standing with hands extended, empty.

"There is nothing in any one's testimony—except Colonel Cooper's—that Colonel Cooper ever drew a gun. He said he did, after the shooting stopped, and asked why, he replied: 'To kill Carmack. He killed my son.'"

Said Woman Was Hysterical.

He declared Mrs. Eastman was frightened and hysterical and could not remember all that actually occurred.

He then went to the defense of Rinning, the witness arrested in perjury charge, and asserted with vigor that every word testified to by Rinning was true.

He described Rinning as an old farmer, illiterate, and poor, but who told the truth.

"We say," said General Meeks, "that Colonel Cooper went over to Carmack with his hands open as he had a right to do; that he committed no overt act; that Carmack met him with a drawn revolver belching flame and bullets. We claim that when Robin Cooper saw the deadly weapon, he jumped in front of his father and took the two bullets aimed at the latter. We claim that then, and not until then, did Robin open fire and kill Carmack as the latter was trying to shoot him again."

Self Defense Doctrine.

General Meeks quoted at length from authorities as to the doctrine of self defense and what constituted an overt act, and concluded with an appeal to the jury to study the evidence carefully.

"We regret the death of any one, but in our regret, for the dead, we should not do the living an injustice. I ask you, gentlemen, to bring in a verdict of not guilty against the defendants, turn the old man loose, and let him once more meet upon the streets, the remnants of that old band that went with him in the early sixties. Turn him loose and let him meet and shake the hand of that gallant gray coated crew. Gentlemen, I thank you."

Court adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, when General Gardner will address the jury.

SCHOONER TRAINER DISABLED.

But Crew Refused to Abandon Vessel When Relief Offered.

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, MASS., March 9.—Disabled at sea by the loss of her main and mizzen masts, the schooner Ann J. Trainer bound from Norfolk for New York with a cargo of lumber was reported today by the British steamer Cynthia, Captain Trinick, which arrived from Buenos Ayres.

The Trainer lost her masts in a gale on March 4.

Captain Trinick fell in with her in latitude 37.07, longitude 73.07 and took her in tow, but after five hours the hawser parted. Captain Trinick's offer to take off the Trainer's crew was refused.

The Cynthia then resumed her course. As the Trainer's foremast was still standing hope is felt here that she may work her way into port.
